SUGAR WEIGHERS SAID TO BE INDICTED

Federal Grand Jury Reported to Have Brought in Bills Against More Than a Score.

COL. FOWLER WILL TESTIFY

Former Collector Expects a Congressional Investigation — Ex-Sampler Tells How Agents Are Bribed.

According to reports at the Federal Building yesterday, at least a score of indictments had been found by the Federal Grand Jury against weighers in the Custom House on charges of collusion in the weighing frauds at the pier of the Sugar Trust at Williamsburg.

Although Special Attorney General Stimson would not discuss it, the impression was that he had taken evidence before the Grand Jury in the last few weeks that had resulted in the indictments and that they had been returned secretly within the last day or so.

Mr. Stimson has made guarded statements that he has been investigating any connivance that may have existed between the Government weighers and the agents of the Sugar Trust. He has admitted getting the indictment of one weigher and has said that he was on the trail of others.

When asked as to the report of the wholesale indictments yesterday afternoon Mr. Stimson declared that he was not prepared to talk of his work in the sugar frauds, but added that he had been active in running them down.

Many Weighers Involved.

Lending substance to the rumor of the numerous indictments was the report made by Collector Loeb to the United States Civil Service Commission in Washington, made public yesterday, in which he said that twenty-two Government weighers had been in collusion with the Sugar Trust's agents. Mr. Loeb's report was supplemented by Richard Parr, the chief of the weighers' division at the Custom House, who said in an interview that Mr. Loeb had been quite conservative, and that the actual number of Custom House employes who had connived at the sugar frauds would run considerably over twenty-two.

"I have made a report of the 'undesirables' who are now at work in the Custom House, those who have been guilty of participation in the sugar frauds," said Mr. Parr, "and the list is quite a long one."

If evidence has been obtained against any of the higher officials in the Custom House service it is not known. So far as the reports go, the charges of collusion embrace only the weighers.

Mr. Loeb's report to Washington and the rumors of indictments had the effect of throwing the Custom House staff into great anxiety. The Custom House has become a dreary place since the investigation of the sugar frauds. Collector Loeb is almost certain to bring about another housecleaning within a short time, and the employes are wondering how many of them are to go.

Congressional Investigation Likely.

There is now a general impression that there is to be a Congressional investigation of the sugar frauds. Ex-Collector of the Port Edward S. Fowler is one of those who believes that Congress is to take action. In an interview yesterday Col. Fowler said that it seemed to be "up to Congress to do something."

Asked if he would go before a Congressional committee and reveal the result of investigations he made of the collusion between the Sugar Trust and employes of the Government in his administration, Col. Fowler replied:

"Of course I would. I have been on the point of making a full statement of conditions, but I shall wait until I am asked to do so by an investigating committee."

Col. Fowler had returned from a two days' absence from the city yeesterday, and it was said that he had gone to Washington for a conference on the sugar investigation. Asked as to this, Col. Fowler replied that he had nothing more to say about Congress and the sugar frauds at this time.

A TIMES reporter asked President W. B. Thomas of the American Sugar Refining Company yesterday if he had anything to say about the sugar frauds, in the light of the recent indictments and the reports that indictments had been found against Government weighers who had received trust bribes.

"No, there is nothing to say now," replied Mr. Thomas. "We have had our housecleaning and there is nothing more to be said from this end."

Mr. Thomas denied a report that C. H. Senff, one of the indicted Directors of the Sugar Trust, had resigned. He explained that Mr. Senff's term as Director expires next January, and that Mr. Senff had expressed a desire to drop out, but that he was not influenced by the fact that he was under indictment, nor had he been urged to resign.

How Sugar Samplers Were Bribed.

The method used by the Sugar Trust agents to bribe the Government's sugar samplers at both its Williamsburg refinery pier and its pier in Jersey City was for the first time described in detail yesterday by Henry C. Corsa of Plainfield, N. J., who for seven years worked as an assistant sampler.

The trust's bribers worked their plan in two ways. They bribed the samplers and their assistants to take a lower grade of samples from the sacks of sugar brought in on the steamers at the piers and also to permit the switching of high-grade samples for one of low grade in cellars at the piers where the trust had sugar ready for substitution. These samples went to the Appraiser's office, and upon them was fixed the amount of duty to be paid on the cargoes of sugar.

Corsa saw the plan worked on the Jersey City pier, and he admits taking some of the bribe money until his conscience smote him. He learned from others, he says, that the same sort of trick was employed at the Williamsburg pier.

It was the custom of the Sugar Trust's agents to pay on an average of $200 in bribe money on each cargo of sugar brought in, the various Government employes getting anywhere from $12 to $25 each for their work.

The bribe money that Corsa tells about was only a part of that paid out by the trust at its two piers. In the "doctoring" of scales an entirely different set of Government employes had to be dealt with, and these, it has been revealed from other sources, were in their turn handled by the trust bribers. Evidence as to this latter sort of bribe money has been in the hands of the United States District Attorney's office for months, and it will form a part of the case against the employes of the Sugar Trust who were recently indicted.

Corsa lost his place with the Government as a result, he says, of his revealing

FIRST PENNA. TUBE TRAIN.

It Will Start from Harrison, N. J., To-day and Run Through to Jamaica, L. I.

The completion of the Pennsylvania tunnels from Jersey City to Long Island City under Manhattan and the East and North Rivers will be celebrated to-day, when a railroad train drawn by a locomotive will start from Harrison, N. J., and without even stopping at Jersey City, will pass under the city. Coming to the surface in Queens County, the train will continue to Jamaica. Extensive preparations to welcome the initial train in Long Island City were completed yesterday. There will be exploding bombs and speeches by Pennsylvania Railroad and city officials.

The train will be made up only of a single special car and a locomotive. The locomotive will take the car under the rivers because the tunnels have not yet been electrified, and President McCrea expects to protect the party from smoke by having the locomotive push the car. The party taking the trip in the private observation car No. 30 will be President McCrea of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Vice President Samuel Rea, and several of their friends. They are scheduled to arrive in Long Island City at 1:30. After reaching Jamaica the party will return by the same route.

The Pennsylvania has four tubes under the East River, known as Tubes A, B, C, and D. On the trip to Long Island City the special train will run through Tube D and will return by way of Tube B.

WILSON WOULDN'T TESTIFY.

Wealthy New Yorker May Now Have to Face Charge of Contempt.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 17.—R. T. Wilson of New York, but just now of Palmetto Bluffs, S. C., a short distance from Savannah, probably has a very unpleasant experience ahead of him for having ignored a summons to appear here before the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia as a witness in a case.

M. R. Marks, who professes to have acted as intermediary between the late J. H. Estill and Mr. Wilson, when the latter bought the Palmetto Bluff home of Col. Estill, filed suit against Estill in the United States Court before Col. Estill's death for $5,750 commissions. Col. Estill refused to pay, and since his death his estate has fought the suit.

When the case was called to-day it was announced that an officer had gone to Mr. Wilson's home and served him with a subpoena to appear as a witness in the case. Mr. Wilson had announced his determination not to appear. The officer then tendered him a sum of money sufficiently large to pay his fare to Savannah, as the law requires. This Mr. Wilson disdainfully refused, throwing it upon the floor, according to the officer.

It is now said that Mr. Wilson will be proceeded against through the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia on a charge of contempt.

TO RAISE FREE SPEECH ARMY.

Meeting Called to Get 1,000 Men to Aid Spokane Convention.

At a meeting of the Free Speech Committee which will be held this evening at the Labor Lyceum, 241 East Eighty-fourth Street, a movement will be launched to send one thousand unemployed men in New York out to Spokane, Wash., to become martyrs to the free speech campaign being inaugurated in that city.

According to "Doc" Ben Reitman, one of the organizers of the movement, several thousand unemployed men will be recruited from cities all over the country and sent to Spokane to help out the cause. The Industrial Workers of the World are in session in the Western city, and the attempts of many of them to speak on street corners has stirred up trouble with the police.

A few days ago 300 men were arrested in one day for attempting to speak in the street. As fast as one man was arrested another would take his place, only to be arrested in turn. This kept up until there were no more individuals to be arrested and the cry went out for recruits from other cities.

As it will cost considerable money to pay the fares of 1,000 men to the Pacific Coast, the sympathizers of the Industrial Workers here will suggest that the unemployed men "hobo" their way to Spokane. At the meeting to-night the principal speakers are expected to be Rose Pastor Stokes and her husband, J. G. Phelps Stokes; Frank Boehn, Harry Kelly, and Frederic Isler. Leonard Abbott will be Chairman.

$1,500,000 INSURANCE POLICY.

It Is Applied for by Kansas Companies on Life of Their President.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 17.—An insurance policy of $1,500,000 has been applied for on the life of George E. Nicholson, 49 years old, a cement manufacturer of Kansas City, by two of the companies of which he is head. Insurance men say this is the largest amount of life insurance ever sought at one time upon the life of one person in the history of insurance.

From 9 o'clock this morning until 9 o'clock to-night, twenty-five physicians, representing different insurance companies, were examining Mr. Nicholson. After it was all over, physicians declared he was in perfect physical health, and local agents of the different insurance companies said the policy undoubtedly would be issued.

Mr. Nicholson is President and General manager of the Iola Portland Cement Company, the United Kansas Portland Cement Company, the Dixie Portland Cement Company, and the Iowa Portland Cement Company. He already has four insurance policies on his life aggregating $325,000, so that when the additional policies are issued he will have nearly $2,000,000 insurance.

Most of the amount was taken by the Mutual Life and the Equitable Life of New York.

Deer Holds Up a Trolley Car.

A buck deer, with two prongs to his horns, stopped a Hudson River trolley car on the trestle at Hackensack, N. J., at noon yesterday. The deer floundered along between the ties for several feet, then leaped into the meadows and disappeared. A hunting party searched for the deer until dark, but failed to find it. It is believed the deer escaped from the preserve on the Havemeyer estate at Mahwah, N. J.

NEW DEVICE STOPS TRAIN COLLISIONS

QUOTATIONS AS YOU GO

Third Rail Carries Telephone Messages While the Train Runs, as Well as Automatically Insures Safety.

President Jacob A. Cantor and Vice President Oliver W. Bird of the Automatic Signal Company, and some twenty other railroad men representing the Erie, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Long Island, Delaware, Lackawannan & Western, Baltimore & Ohio and the Interborough and Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroads, were passengers yesterday in a special train consisting of a locomotive and tender, and two cars, which was employed in a test over the Erie tracks between Newark and Nutley, N. J., to prove the efficacy of a new electric automatic safety device, the invention of Frederick Lacroix of Texas. Head on toward the special in which the railroad men rode, came an engine which had been started more than a mile away. Both special and engine were moving at the rate of 30 miles an hour and a collision was inevitable should the safety device fail to work.

It did not fail. Instead, when the fast-approaching trains got within half a mile of each other, the air brakes were set automatically, not with a suddenness which brought the trains to a quick halt, but with the same gradually increasing force which a skillful engineer would employ in bringing his train to a halt. Both trains slowly stopped, quite far enough from each other to avoid the slightest chance of mishap, yet in neither of the locomotives did the engineer move a hand toward throttle lever or air brake control. Everything was done automatically.

The test was repeated six times, at various speeds and over various distances, and not once did the automatic device fail to work. At the close of the tests the railroad men declared that the device had fulfilled their greatest expectations. It was not alone as a safety device, however, that the invention demonstrated its usefulness. By it, telephonic communication was established between the office of Oliver Harriman, at 111 Broadway, and his brother James, who was a passenger on the special, and who listened to the stock quotations read to him from his brother's office while the train sped along at thirty miles an hour.

Mr. Lacroix, who was present to answer the hundreds of questions which the railroad men put to him, said that the telephonic device would work just as well at greater speed or at a more extended distance. Wherever a long distance telephone can be used, Mr. Lacroix's device can be used.

The trial was the second one which the Erie Railroad has managed. Two weeks ago the invention received a preliminary try-out, and succeeded in bringing a train to a stop. Then it was determined to run two trains head-on at each other, and prove finally the efficacy of the device. The tests of yesterday were the result.

The invention is operated by a third rail such as is used on electric railroads. A shoe from the locomotive touches the rail and receives power through it both for the operation of the emergency brake and for the telephone. The principle is similar to that of the block signal system. A length of track is divided into zones, and so long as only one engine is in this zone a green light shines in the locomotive cab. Whenever two trains enter the same zone, however, this light goes out automatically, and when the trains approach within a given distance of each other the air brakes on each are set automatically. It is possible to arrange the mechanism so that the brakes will be applied with great speed, or so that they will operate gradually.

The ten miles of track between Newark and Nutley were divided into five zones of two miles each yesterday, and it was asserted by Mr. Lacroix that zones of this length are ample to allow of the stoppage of trains even should each be making sixty miles an hour when the device was called into play.

Besides Messrs. Cantor, Bird and Harriman, these officials of other railroads were present at the tests: New York Central—R. C. Johnson, W. Morrison, E. B. Smith, and H. S. Ballert; Pennsylvania—W. P. Allen, F. A. Moreau, and Charles E. Spruer; Erie—J. H. Maddy, E. B. Griffith, and A. C. Elston; D., L. & W.—W. B. Wetherbee and F. E. Smith; Central Railroad of New Jersey—W. H. Higgins; B. & O.—F. P. Paternell; Interborough—J. M. Walden; Staten Island Rapid Transit—P. H. Cassidy, J. H. Clark, and J. E. Galbraith.

BOY KICKED BY A BURGLAR.

Young McKenna Pursued Them When He Found Them Robbing His Home.

Kicked down a flight of stairs by one of two burglars whom he was pursuing, Robert McKenna, 14 years old, son of Charles S. McKenna, a manufacturing chemist of 155 West Ninety-first Street, picked himself up and continued the chase to the roof, where the burglars made good their escape with about $5,000 worth of money, jewelry, and silverware last night.

Young McKenna was alone at home last night, his father and mother having gone out to dinner. About 9 o'clock he heard a noise on the second floor and went up to investigate. He found the whole floor in disorder.

He heard a soft footfall on the floor above him, and ran upstairs. He was just in time to see a man making his way through the skylight to the roof. He sprang up the last flight of stairs and grasped the man's foot.

With an oath the man wrenched his foot loose and kicked the boy in the face with all his strength. The lad fell to the bottom of the stairs, and with blood streaming from a cut on his forehead made by the burglar's boot, sprang up the stairs again and out on the roof.

He was just in time to see two men climbing to the roof of the adjoining house and getting away, each carrying a heavy bag.

When the lad's parents arrived home they made a hurried inventory and estimated that the burglars had gotten away with about $5,000 worth of goods, included in this amount being $500 in money. The thieves entered the house by smashing the lock of the skylight. How they gained the roof the police cannot explain.

ASK TAFT TO PARDON SHIPP.

Georgians Say Sheriff's Story in Jail Will Inflame Ignorant Negroes.

RISING FAWN, Ga., Nov. 17.—A petition to President Taft to pardon former Sheriff Joseph F. Shipp and co-defendants, signed by practically every citizen in this vicinity, says in part:

"We view with grave fear the effect that the fulfillment of the sentence will have upon the ignorant and irresponsible negroes, increasing beyond question the danger to the women of the South."

In order not to miss the many notable features in next Sunday's Times it is important to place orders with newsdealers to-day.

ALARM GROWING OVER ASTOR YACHT

U. S. Revenue Cutter Ordered to Search for Her in West Indian Waters.

WIRELESS AT WORK, TOO

Divorced Wife of the Owner Sails Secretly on the Lusitania—Wireless to Tell Her If Yacht Is Safe.

No word came yesterday as to the whereabouts of Col. John Jacob Astor's yacht Nourmahal, which has not been reported since the West Indian hurricane. The vessel, with her owner, his seventeen-year-old son, Vincent, and several friends, is known to have been afloat in the area over which the recent storm swept.

While it is believed that the Nourmahal has put into some small port in safety there is still a growing anxiety because of the uncertainty regarding her.

Friends of Col. Astor and his guests have requested the United Wireless Company to send out a general order to all ships and land stations to the south to try to get some word of the missing yacht. This was done last night, the inquiry for news of the vessel being sent out by every land station from Manhattan Beach to Key West, Fla.

These stations are working with the naval station at San Juan, and are sweeping the seas by wireless trying to pick up information of the yacht from vessels in West Indian waters. There are eight steamships now in southern waters equipped with wireless, and each has been requested to seek news and forward it to New York by relay as soon as possible.

All stations and all ships have been instructed to drop other business of the moment and transmit news of the yacht as soon as it is received.

There was a rumor yesterday that a firm here had received a message from Col. Astor, but the report could not be verified. No news of the yacht was received at the Maritime Exchange.

The Treasury Department also has taken up the search for the missing yacht, and it was reported here that one of the revenue cutters had been instructed to prepare to sail on telegraphic orders to search for her. Later it was decided, however, that the cutter dispatched to look for the yacht will be the Algonquin, now on the Porto Rico station.

While the search for the Nourmahal was getting under way Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, recently divorced from Col. Astor, sailed quietly for England yesterday on the Cunard liner Lusitania. Her name did not appear on the ship's list, and she remained in her cabin until the vessel left her pier.

At the home of Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, 8 Washington Square North, where Mrs. Astor had been staying, it was said last night that she had received no word as to the safety of the yacht or the whereabouts of her son Vincent before she departed in the morning. She will be notified by wireless as soon as the yacht is reported.

Mrs. Astor had contemplated sailing ever since she instituted divorce proceedings. She wanted to escape the attention attracted to herself by the separation from her husband, and it is said that this was her reason for leaving this country secretly.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—The Treasury Department, on request of anxious inquirers to-day, cabled to the commander of the revenue cutter Algonquin at San Juan, P. R., to search for the yacht Nourmahal. She is reported to have left Port Antonio, Jamaica, for San Juan, P. R., a week ago, and has not since been reported.

NOT ENOUGH BABIES—FORT.

Jersey Governor Stands with Roosevelt Against Race Suicide.

Declaring himself to be a believer with Theodore Roosevelt that "race suicide" is to be regretted, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, addressing the fifty-first annual convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church, at East Orange yesterday afternoon, ventured an opinion as to the reason the Sunday schools are not as largely attended as they used to be.

"I am not sure," said the Governor, "whether it is that we do not send the children to Sunday school or that we do not have the children in our homes to send. I do not think, though, that the latter is true of the people who consider themselves the best in their community in our time. I think with our former President that this is to be regretted, and yet I am not going to argue it." Then he added: "Something, either golf or automobiles, perhaps, makes us neglect the influence of the church on Sunday."

The convention opened yesterday and will continue with all day sessions until to-morrow.

QUICK WORK SAVES BABY.

Army Surgeon Hastens Choking Infant to Hospital and Saves Her.

Lieut. Earl H. Welcome, Assistant Surgeon U. S. A., and detailed to the Willard Parker Hospital for the observation of contagious diseases, by his quickness of action last night saved the life of a year-and-a-half-old girl who was strangling because a peanut had lodged in her throat.

Encountering the frantic mother in front of a drug store and realizing the trouble the army surgeon snatched the child from her arms and hurried the little one to Bellevue, where with the aid of Dr. Hooker he performed the operation of tracheotomy and saved the child's life.

The mother, Mrs. Bertha Fingerhut of 342 East Twenty-first Street, followed the surgeon to the hospital and was overcome with joy when she learned the child was living and on the road to recovery.

ART AGENT MISSING FROM FIFTH AVENUE

John B. Lyman Disappears, Leaving Behind a Valuable Collection.

SON IS DISTRIBUTING IT

Going Back to the Original Owners, Who Had Not Been Paid—Family Mystified by Disappearance.

John B. Lyman, about 50 years old, with dark hair turning to gray, a graduate of Harvard, and for the last four or five years well known along Fifth Avenue as an art collectors' agent of more than common taste and ability, has been missing ten days. He has left behind in his office in the Silo Building, 546 Fifth Avenue, many thousand dollars' worth of paintings, curios, and antiques belonging to art stores and private individuals.

None of his friends, and there were found to be many among the dealers, was able yesterday to throw any light on Mr. Lyman's disappearance. His son, who, since his father's disappearance, has been acting as his agent, in returning to the owners the valuable collections stored in his office, confessed to friends that the family was as much mystified as others. It is understood that in this dilemma the efforts of the police have been sought to find him.

Lyman did a lucrative business, it was said. The last order he placed with E. F. Bonaventure, the art dealer at 5 East Thirty-fifth Street, was for about $15,000 worth of miniatures and curios of many kinds. These he ordered from Mr. Bonaventure in person. While reluctant to discuss the matter Mr. Bonaventure admitted yesterday that he had not hesitated to fill the order, as Lyman had frequently bought from him. Lyman said at the time that he made the purchase to fill orders already given or which he had reason to expect.

On going to the Lyman office over the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, after hearing of his disappearance, Mr. Bonaventure found there every article sent in the last consignment. The collection was sent back to the store, and the dealer said his financial interest in the art man's leave-taking ended there.

It developed about the same time that quite a number of others had committed paintings and antiques to Lyman's keeping pending their sale. The owners have been pouring into the Silo Building since being unable to hear anything from the agent, and in each case where the owner has been able to identify his property the son has returned it.

It is understood that while most of the paintings and other art objects have in this manner been sent away, there remains a considerable collection. It is estimated that with the Bonaventure consignment Lyman left in his office from $30,000 to $40,000 worth of pictures, bric-a-brac, and curios.

Lyman was among a number of agents, most of them university men with keen artistic tastes as well as excellent judgment regarding the money value of art objects, who make a good living in Fifth Avenue by bringing art buyers and sellers together. They are recognized as legitimate accessories of the trade by all dealers, who give them a commission on the sales they make.

The art agent, learning by personal visits the wishes of a prospective art customer, takes him to the store where the object may be found. The agents also do a considerable business on their own account in disposing of paintings which individuals find they need less than the money. Of course, they get commissions on such sales. All these agents also have the privilege in most of the art stores of bringing in customers, receiving from 5 to 10 per cent. commission on purchases that may be made.

Lyman was considered one of the best, as well as perhaps the best, known of these agents. Several of the dealers said yesterday that he was a man of culture and an excellent judge of art. He is tall, clean-shaven, except for a gray mustache, and of rather striking appearance. He is married, living up to his disappearance with his family at 45 West Thirty-fifth Street. It was said at the Harvard Club last night that he was not a member there.

SEEKS WARRINER SUSPECT.

Prosecutor May Make Another Arrest—Cook May Go to Cincinnati.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—The case of Charles L. Warriner, ex-Treasurer of the Big Four Railroad in Cincinnati, who is in jail here, will probably cause Edgar S. Cook, former paymaster of the Big Four in Cincinnati, who is now in Chicago, to come to Cincinnati. Prosecutor Henry T. Hunt said to-day that he wished to talk with Cook and indicated that he would ask him to come to Cincinnati.

Mr. Hunt intimated that he might cause another arrest to be made within the next two days.

Mrs. Jeanette Timmons-Ford-Stewart, who was arrested here last night, obtained a bond to-day through a surety company and was released.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Edgar S. Cook, whose name has appeared in different accounts of the charges against Charles L. Warriner, to-day protested against the stories in so far as they concern him.

"I have committed no crime and have nothing to fear," he said, "but published statements connecting me with Warriner's shortage make me anxious to prove my innocence. I also propose to make some one prove the charges that have been made against me. I have been waiting for advices to go back to Cincinnati, but as I have had none, I have about decided to go back anyway."

MAE WOOD TO FACE CHARGES.

Ready to Come to New York—Says She Can Prove Marriage to Platt.

Special to The New York Times.

JULESBURG, Col., Nov. 17.—Unless her lawyers advise her not to go, Mae C. Wood declares she will start for New York at once to face the charge of perjury pending against her. She says she will prove it unfounded by producing conclusive evidence of her legal marriage to Thomas C. Platt.

Miss Wood is not well, having been suffering for some time from bronchitis, but is ready to make the journey if her counsel desires her presence.

Miss Wood has a ranch with a comfortable cabin here and keeps a few head of stock. A brother, ill with consumption, lives with her. Miss Wood can handle rifles and revolvers like a cowboy. She rides well and enjoys the wild life, which she says she will never forsake.

EARLY SNOW ON MARS.

Prof. Lowell Reports Two New Patches in the Antartic Region.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Nov. 17.—Director Lowell of the Lowell Observatory reports the first apparent antarctic snowfall of the season on Mars. Two patches appeared at latitude 62.72, longitude 100.10. The first patch was seen on Nov. 12 and was small, with a great increase on the 16th. The second patch was observed for the first time on the latter date.

This is said to be exceptionally early for the first martian antarctic snow. The second patch is where a patch in melting last August lingered beyond the rest of the polar cap.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—John Ritchie, Jr., the well-known scientist, received the following dispatch from Prof. Lowell at Flagstaff to-night:

"An observation of Halley's comet shows a starlike head and a semblance of a hood."

HARVARD PLANETARY CENTRE.

Will Continue to Distribute Astronomical News, Says Pickering.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—A statement made recently that Dr. Percival Lowell's observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., would hereafter be the distributing point for international planetary news, instead of the Harvard College observatory, was denied by Prof. Edward C. Pickering, the director of the local station, to-night. In a communication forwarded to astronomers and others Prof. Pickering says:

> No change has been made in the plans of this observatory for the transmission of astronomical announcements, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. All announcements of astronomical discoveries and observations, which are of value and require immediate transmission, if received here, are cabled at once to Kiel and telegraphed at cost to all who desire to receive them. A similar distribution of these messages, and of others in which haste is not imperative, is made by mail without charge to those who make use of them.

Prof. Pickering says that there has been no friction between himself and Dr. Lowell, who is a brother of the President of Harvard. Prof. Lowell's announcements are not made through Harvard.

SNOWSLIDE HITS TRAIN.

Locomotive and Four Freight Cars Swept Into the Fraser River.

NORTH BEND, B. C., Nov. 17.—A Canadian Pacific freight train, on emerging from a tunnel last night, was struck by a snowslide. The locomotive and four cars were swept down a 300-foot embankment into the Fraser River. The engineer was drowned. The fireman escaped by jumping. Two other trainmen were hurt.

The slide missed an eastbound passenger train by half an hour.

Aged Beast Killed Husband Before He Could Bring Woman to Court.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 17.—Mrs. James Edmonds of Washington County deserted her home recently, taking with her the household effects and five head of cattle, but leaving behind an old mule.

Edmonds preferred charges of desertion against his wife and larceny against a Pittsburg man.

Early to-day the mule, Edmonds's only possession, kicked him, causing his death a short time later in a hospital.

HILL SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Man Who Pleaded Guilty in Tiverton Case to Serve Indeterminate Term.

TAUNTON, Mass., Nov. 17.—Frank L. Hill, the herb doctor of Fall River, who pleaded guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Amelie St. Jean of Woonsocket, R. I., was sentenced to not less than seven or more than ten years in State prison to-day.

After the girl's death in his herb shop, Hill dismembered her body and distributed it in the woods near Tiverton, R. I.

DIPHTHERIA AMONG NURSES.

Eight at Cook County Hospital in Chicago Stricken at Once.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Eight nurses at the Cook County Hospital are stricken with diphtheria and are confined in the contagious wards of the institution, according to Warden Charles J. Happel. All the cases developed within the last week.

In order to avoid further spread the other nurses have been examined and any one who complains, even of a headache or slight sore throat, will be subjected to the toxin test. Aside from the eight nurses there is only one diphtheria patient at the County Hospital.

BLOW FRONT OFF CHURCH.

Congregation of Hungarian and Bohemian Miners Were in Feud.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 17.—An explosion of dynamite destroyed the front of the new Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church at Clinton, in the coal fields near this city to-day. Hungarian and Bohemian miners who largely make up the congregation had quarreled as to which should have charge of the church.

Three hundred sticks of dynamite, enough to blow up the neighborhood, were found in different parcels around the edifice. Most of the fuses had been clumsily set and failed to explode the charges.

TOWNS SUES COLER FOR FEE.

Gets $750 Verdict, but Objects to It—Wants $3,750.

Mirabeau L. Towns, Brooklyn's poet lawyer, won a verdict of $750 from Borough President Bird S. Coler in Justice Garretson's part of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. Dissatisfied with the amount, he moved that the verdict be set aside. Justice Garretson reserved decision.

Mr. Towns's suit was brought against the Borough President to recover $3,750 which he said was due him of a $7,000 fee for acting for Mr. Coler in his libel suit for $100,000 against The Brooklyn Eagle. Mr. Coler contended that his arrangement with Mr. Towns had been that he was to pay the lawyer "whatever he felt was right."

Mr. Coler said he had paid the lawyer $3,250, and felt that that was enough. Mr. Towns contended that the agreement had been for $7,000.

Mr. Towns insisted that he had told Mr. Coler he would charge $200 for day sessions and $200 for night sessions. His attorney, Delos McCurdy, yesterday declared the services were cheap at that price, as did Prof. Isaac Franklin Russell, for thirty years a practicing lawyer and of the Faculty of the New York University Law School. Prof. Russell said he would add to the fee $100 a day for preliminary and intermediate work, making the total $10,200.

COUNT CZAKY WED IN SECRET HERE

Former Husband of Jan Kubelik's Present Wife Married Mrs. Bryan Last November.

NOW SECRET COMES OUT

Bride Herself Tells It When the Count Is Interviewed in Her Apartment—Her Family Objected, She Says.

Count Kalman Czaky, said to be a third cousin of Count Szechenyi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, was secretly married to Mrs. Maud Howard Bryan, formerly of Portland, Ore., in this city a year ago yesterday. The Countess told this to a TIMES reporter last night after the Count's baggage had been removed from the Hotel Netherland to the apartment on the fourth floor at 36 West Fifty-ninth Street, which is in Mrs. Bryan's name.

The incidents leading up to the discovery of the secret marriage were dramatic in their disclosure. On Nov. 5 Count Czaky, whose full title is Count Kalman Czaky Koroszejh and Adorjan of Hungary, registered at the Netherland. Last week he visited in Newport. Returning late yesterday afternoon he paid his bill and ordered that his baggage be sent to the address in Fifty-ninth Street.

Inquiry here revealed the fact that a large and costly apartment on the fourth floor at 36 West Fifty-ninth Street, fronting Central Park, had been occupied for several months by Mrs. Maud Howard Bryan, to whom the Count had announced his engagement as far back as last February. At that time the Count said that the wedding would take place soon. Now, as it turns out, the wedding took place on or about Nov. 17, 1908.

A woman servant answered the bell at the apartment occupied by Mrs. Bryan last night, and soon afterward Count Czaky appeared in the doorway. When asked if the date of his wedding to Mrs. Bryan had been fixed, the Count declared that he had no intention of marrying Mrs. Bryan. At that moment Mrs. Bryan appeared and joined the Count in an emphatic denial that they were to be married. The door was closed, but a moment later it was opened by Mrs. Bryan herself, now in tears.

"I wish to correct my former statement," said Mrs. Bryan. "The Count and I were secretly married a year ago. We have kept the matter a secret simply from the fact that my relatives in the West had raised objections to the Count becoming my husband. I do not care to say just now who performed the ceremony, or where it took place, except to assert that we were married here in New York.

"I trust this will end any further publicity in regard to the Count and myself. It seems strange that the disclosure of our marriage should have to be made now and under such circumstances."

From now on the Count and Countess will live at the address in West Fifty-ninth Street. They spent most of the Summer abroad. The Count and Mrs. Bryan, who has a considerable fortune, first met at a musicale given by Mrs. Roswell Hitchcock in October, 1908, at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Last February the Count is quoted as saying that he fell in love with Mrs. Bryan at first sight. "Why not?" he said at that time. "She is charming. I understand that Mrs. Bryan has a large fortune, but I have an income also, and, absolutely, it is not the money. After we are married we will travel a bit abroad then come back to New York, where I intend to go into the banking business."

One June 29 last suit was brought against Mrs. Bryan, who lived at the Rochelle Apartments, 57 West Seventy-fifth Street, at that time, by Michael Uberall of 31 Broadway, an Austrian banker, to recover $500 that Mr. Uberall says his nephew, J. V. Uberall, let the Count have last May. This matter, it is said, was settled out of court.

The Count, who is distinguished looking, is the son of Count Rudolf Czaky of Syrpes. He was born in Budapest in 1877, and was educated in the military academy in that city, and later became a Lieutenant in the Hungarian Hussars. He has been married before. His wife was Marianne, daughter of Herr Walgang von Szell, President of the Senate of Hungary, but the marriage was an unhappy one, and the couple separated by mutual consent. Later a divorce was granted, and she married Jan Kubelik, the violinist, whom she met at Debreczin.

Mrs. Bryan, who was a widow, has lived in this city for several years. She is a young woman of a striking brunette type. She is well known socially in Portland, but has lived in the East since her husband died, leaving her his entire fortune.

RUNAWAYS KILL COACHMAN.

J. A. Swan of Newport in Coupe Which Is Upset, but Not Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 17.—Michael Fitzpatrick, for many years coachman for Mr. and Mrs. James Andrews Swan, died at the Newport Hospital this noon from internal injuries received during a runaway. Fitzpatrick was driving two horses to a coupe, and Mr. Swan, who was in the vehicle, narrowly escaped injury.

The carriage was coming toward Broadway, when an automobile issuing from a garage frightened the horses. The animals dashed across the street, and one of the wheels struck an electric light pole, upsetting the coupe and catching the coachman beneath it. Mr. Swan managed to get out with no hurt beyond a shaking up, and a dog he had with him jumped out unharmed.

The coachman was still conscious, but could not be released till help arrived. Miss Sadie Harvey, assistant clerk to the Superior Court, saw the accident from her office window and called by telephone an ambulance, which hurried the wounded man to the hospital. The horses, which had broken away, were soon stopped.

Fitzpatrick was 45 years old and had a wife and six children. A Coroner's inquest has been ordered.

COLLINS NOT MURDERED.

Post-Mortem Shows That Car Killed Former Tennis Champion.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Investigation by the Coroner into the death of Kreigh Collins, former Western tennis champion who was found dead in the street last night, dissipated rumors circulated to-day that he had been murdered, and his body placed on the track.

A post-mortem examination of the body established the fact he had been killed by a street car. No marks of bullets or knife wounds could be found.

MRS. STETSON HOME; SILENT ABOUT TRIAL

DISMISSAL IS EXPECTED

She Is Accused of Practicing Hypnotism Instead of the Precepts of Christian Science.

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, deposed head of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in this city, whose excommunication by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy from the Mother Church is believed to be near at hand, arrived here from Boston last night. She was there for three days to answer in person the charges recently made against her. With her were her secretary and a woman stenographer who had accompanied her to Boston.

Mrs. Stetson would not make any statement but her secretary said that she would probably have something to say to-day. She hinted that the deposed leader had put in her time on the trip from Boston preparing a final statement of her side of the case.

The Stetson party arrived at the Grand Central Station on the 10 P. M. train. When Mrs. Stetson stepped off the train she was dressed in a mauve colored plush gown, and wore a handsome stole of gray fur. Her head was completely swathed in a large blue silk automobile veil, which covered her face and shoulders.

The moment she alighted she was seized by either arm by her secretary and a young man, who had been awaiting her, and they walked rapidly through the long train shed to the Lexington Avenue side of the station. Two automobiles, Mrs. Stetson's own machines, were awaiting her, and she was bundled into the first one before any one could ask her a question. Her secretary got into the other car.

Preparing a Statement.

"Is Mrs. Stetson satisfied with her trip to Boston?" the Secretary was asked.

"I cannot say anything about it," she replied. "Mrs. Stetson will probably speak for herself."

The first signs of harmony in the affairs of the First Church since the deposing of Mrs. Stetson and the admonition of sixteen of her favorite practitioners, more than a month ago, became apparent yesterday. One of these was the rescinding of an order of the Board of Trustees for a congregational meeting, which was to have been held next Tuesday, to vote on the question whether the Trustees should be compelled to resign and the $5,000 salary paid annually to Mrs. Stetson should be cut off immediately.

Another was a resolution adopted by the congregation last night thanking Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy for her intervention on Monday in sending a personal message to the First Church Trustees requesting them to follow the lead of those who were bowing to the will of the mother church. It was this intervention of Mrs. Eddy which changed the attitude of the Trustees, and led them to withdraw their charges against Virgil O. Strickler, the First Reader, just as the charges were to have been read to the congregation, and a vote taken on the question of ousting Strickler for the part he had played in the fight against Mrs. Stetson.

At the regular Wednesday evening meeting last night the congregation decided to send Mrs. Eddy a copy of their resolution in which the statement is made that Mrs. Eddy's intervention wiped away all feeling of dissension in the First Church, and paved the way for an amicable settlement of all differences. In the resolution the congregation assures Mrs. Eddy of undying devotion.

Meeting Called Off.

The withdrawal of the order on the trustees for the congregational meeting next Tuesday took place earlier in the day. This order, which was served on the trustees more than a week ago, was in the form of a petition signed by the Committee of Ten, representing the anti-Stetson faction, and accompanying a set of resolutions asking for the resignation of all the trustees who have championed the cause of Mrs. Stetson. The request on the trustees to call the meeting off was made by the same committee yesterday.

Up to the time this withdrawal notice was served there had been a general impression in the congregation that the meeting would be held as scheduled. Edwin F. Hatfield, Chairman of the board, said early in the afternoon that the congregational meeting would take place so far as he knew, and that any move to call it off would have to come from the Committee of Ten.

Members of this committee told reporters that they certainly would not withdraw the order for the meeting unless the Trustees voluntarily tendered their resignations. But late in the afternoon a sudden change took place and the withdrawal order was sent to the Trustees.

It was generally agreed among the members last night that discord had been done away with, for the time being at least, and that the future of the church was safe. Just what effect the excommunication of Mrs. Stetson would have on those in the Church who have so ardently supported her is a matter of conjecture. But for the present all eyes in the congregation are turned on Boston, awaiting the final word from the Mother Church, where for three days Mrs. Stetson was making her fight against excommunication.

Those in First Church who still oppose her said yesterday that her statement appearing in Boston dispatches yesterday, in which she admitted having made mistakes in her conception of Christian Science, was only another evidence that she is a good politician; that she recognizes the psychological moment when it arrives, and that by an appearance of contrition she may now escape excommunication.

RECANTATION CAN'T SAVE HER.

Christian Scientists Say Mrs. Stetson Will Surely Be Punished.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Stetson's examination before the Directors of the Mother Church ended late this afternoon, her eleventh-hour statement of willingness to obey orders having failed to put an end to her trial on charges of mental malpractice. If her statement has changed the attitude of the Directors toward her they have given no indication of it. It came, by the way, as a surprise to them. This much Mr. McLellan admits.

Ira O. Knapp, one of the Directors, said to-day that the statement would have no effect on the trial, which, Secretary Dittemore told a reporter, was not a trial at all, but merely a conference.

Christian Scientists here to-day are certain that Mrs. Stetson will be punished, in spite of her affirmation of loyalty to the Mother Church. Her failure to heed repeated warnings and two admonitions from the Mother Church, they say, make it impossible for the Directors to overlook her contumacy. To do so would establish a precedent in cases of less prominent members of the Church.

At one time during the afternoon the age of Mrs. Stetson, or the ordeal to which she was being subjected, or both, so told upon her that a recess of fifteen minutes was necessary so that she could recover her self-possession. During this time she stood or sat near an open window in the church, with Secretary Dittemore apparently administering "treatment."

The evening papers publish what purports to be the substance of the charges against Mrs. Stetson given by one of the most prominent Christian Scientists in the country, who enjoys close personal and official relations with Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, the head of the Church. He made it a condition of furnishing the statement that his name should not be used. Here it is:

"The conditions surrounding the work of Mrs. Stetson, formerly First Reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in New York, have long been regretted by the leaders of the church, but the matter was overlooked until circumstances forced our hand. I refer to the revolt among that element of her own congregation, who have contended that they have been made victims of a practice which the Church never has and never can recognize.

"Mrs. Stetson, regardless of what she herself and her handful of faithful adherents say, has been practicing hypnotism. In her practice she has degenerated into what might be termed the purely physical. Whatever her private belief may be, she has ignored in her practice the fundamentals of Christian Science.

"She has set herself forth, in as far as she dared, as the real head of the Christian Science Church. She has unquestionably aspired to succeed Mrs. Eddy as head of the Church. Mrs. Stetson's complete surrender means that her power is broken.

"The public seems not to have clearly understood that the measures taken by the Trustees have been purely in the public interest. Our leaders have felt that, in justice to the public, the tenets of the Christian Science religion should be protected from insidious assault.

"There is no real relation between the practice of Christian Science and the practice of hypnotism, and we have felt that when one of Mrs. Stetson's prominence in the church chooses to practice the latter under the guise of the former it is time to call a halt.

"If the public wishes to follow the leadership of a woman whose basis of practice is mental suggestion or hypnotism, that is one thing. But that is not Christian Science; and if, on the contrary, the public wishes to embrace the truths of Christian Science, our people should insist that no false doctrines or practices be set forth under the name and reputation.

"The facts against Mrs. Stetson have been proved. The evidence that she has been practicing hypnotism is overwhelming. A woman of impressive personality and remarkable brain force, she has attracted to herself a considerable following, which, however, has greatly fallen off since the present inquiry began."

DOWN IN BURNING MINE.

See None of the 300 Bodies—Much Steam, Less Smoke.

CHERRY, Ill., Nov. 17.—For the first time since Sunday two men to-night took their lives in their hands and descended the ventilating shaft of the St. Paul Mine in the blocked and fiery galleries of which, after four days, the bodies of more than 300 men and boys are still entombed. The men were Thomas Morris and R. Y. Williams, both of the United States Geological Survey. They were nearly exhausted when hauled to the top, but were quickly revived by the administration of stimulants. From what they discovered it is thought the fire has moved back from the main shaft and that it may be possible to enter the mine soon.

Williams, much the lighter man of the two, descended to the second gallery, where the fire started. The shaft was comparatively cool. There was steam in some volume, but much less smoke than on Sunday. The buckets in which the descent was made were only large enough to stand in, and the effort of holding to the rope, carrying their oxygen apparatus on their backs at the same time, wore both men out and impeded exploration.

"We're all in," said Morris, when his head, hidden in a metallic cap like that of a diver, appeared above the pit.

The two men were lowered after several hours of preparation, while the mouth of the shaft was surrounded by firemen, reporters, miners, and officers.

First a test was made for black damp, which was discovered at a depth of 100 feet. There were those who argued against the risk of any more lives, but the importunities of surviving miners that a last desperate chance be taken prevailed. The buckets were carefully lowered and rehoisted before the two men started.

J. W. Paul of Pittsburg, of the Government mine rescue service, stood at the mouth of the shaft to manage the descent.

A few feet down Williams signaled with an automobile horn for a stop. Then the men descended a little further, halting half a dozen times. Finally the signal to hoist was given and the men were hauled to the surface.

It was declared that no other attempt would be made to-night to descend to the fatal drift.

Morris and Williams said that the scene in the pit was weird.

"All about us," said Williams, "the steam seemed to whirl and toss. There was little smoke and much less heat than during the descent I made Sunday. For the first ninety feet down I noticed that the timber supports were considerably scorched, but lower down this was less noticeable. As we slowly descended I gave the signal frequently to stop, hoping when I reached certain depths to look into the galleries. But the steam was too dense. I did not see any bodies.

"When I reached the lowest level at 300 feet my hands and feet began to be so numb I seemed to have lost the sense of feeling. I quickly gave the signal to ascend. Before I got to the top I felt rather queer, but the fresh air soon revived me."

F. H. Wilmot and W. R. Harris, representatives of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, reached here to-day. They will investigate acts of bravery in connection with attempts at rescue, and will assist in relief work.

VERDICT FOR "NELLIE BLY."

$1,237 Claim for Soda Fountains Awarded to Her Manufacturing Co.

Justice McAvoy ordered a jury in the City Court yesterday to give a verdict of $1,237 to the Iron Clad Manufacturing Company of 206 Varet Street, Brooklyn, which has been suing Paul Quandt, a soda water manufacturer of 939 East 132d Street, for seventy soda fountains which they built for him and for which they say he refused to pay.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman, once known as Nellie Bly, who is President and Treasurer of the company, testified that she received the order for the fountains; that they were built and are now in the factory ready for delivery.

The defense contended that the company in July, 1907, canceled a contract which called for the delivery of the fountains in February, 1908, when Herman Brandt, a brother of the defendant, in an affadavit said that when he went to Mrs. Seaman's home at Sheepshead Bay on Nov 10, to serve a summons on her he laid the paper and $1 on the handle of her automobile in which she was about to depart. She called to her chauffeur, said Brandt: "Harry, throw him out; don't touch that paper; if he don't go, use force; he is a trespasser."

He then charges that the colored man forcibly ejected him from the grounds.

DOWAGER DUCHESS VERY ILL.

Consuelo of Manchester, Formerly Miss Yznaga, in a Critical State.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Dowager Duchess Consuelo of Manchester, formerly Miss Consuelo Yznaga of New York, who has been seriously ill for some time, is to-day in a critical state.

The Dowager Duchess of Manchester was the eldest daughter of Senor Antonio Yznaga of Cuba and New York. She met Lord Mandeville, afterward the eighth Duke of Manchester, at her father's country home in Orange, N. J., in the Summer of 1878, and they were married the following Fall at Grace Church, in this city. She soon became popular in British society, being hostess on several occasions for King Edward. She recently entertained King Edward and the Czar of Russia while the latter was on a visit in England.

The Duchess has been a widow for several years. She had three children, the eldest of whom, the Duke of Manchester, married Miss Helen Zimmerman of Cincinnati a few years ago. Her twin daughters, Alea and Alice, died in 1895 and 1900, respectively. By the death of the latter the Duchess inherited her fortune, estimated at $3,000,000.

Col. Delancy Kane Improving.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Col. Delancy Astor Kane, who has been ill for sometime with an acute nervous trouble, is rapidly improving. Ex-Judge Edgar M. Phelps, a nephew of Col. Kane, said to-night that the latter was able to dispense with his man attendant, and goes out daily for automobile rides and walks about his Davenport Neck estate.

Democratic State Chairman Smiles Over the Saratoga Reorganizers.

WILL BE RE-ELECTED SURE

Coming to Next Convention with 55 Out of 61 Counties Behind Him—He Works, He Says, but Is No Boss.

The Democratic League began yesterday its work of rejuvenating the Democratic Party in New York County on the lines laid down at the Saratoga conference. Most of the delegates from Manhattan and the Bronx to the harmony meeting at the Spa and some others met at the Manhattan Club and selected a committee of ten with power to add to its membership until this shall have reached 105. The committee, when completed is to act as the Executive Committee of the Democratic League County organization.

Ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien presided, and appointed the Committee of Ten, which is composed of Alton B. Parker, William Temple Emmet, Herman Ridder, Ashbel P. Fitch, S. Stanwood Menken, Robert Grier Monroe, William S. Rodie, Lee Kohns, William L. Curtis, Edward Whittaker, and ex-Justice O'Brien ex officio. The meeting was held in response to a call issued a week ago and signed by ex-Justice O'Brien, Mr. Menken, Col. Monroe, and William S. Rodie.

League an Anti-Boss Movement.

While the organizers of the Democratic League have disavowed any intention to start an immediate fight on the present leadership of the Democratic organization in this State, the tenor of the resolutions adopted as well as the selections for the Committee of Ten would be inconsistent with any intentions save such as have that for their ultimate purpose. The ten members selected to form the nucleus of the local council of the Democratic League are all "old line" Democrats not friendly to the present leadership.

The resolutions providing for the appointment of the committee said that it should be selected "with the view to uniting Democrats generally by bringing into political activity men whose character, ability, and known sympathy with the public needs will assure the strengthening of the party in State and Nation."

The resolutions were offered by Mr. Menken after ex-Justice O'Brien had briefly explained the purpose of the meeting. They were adopted without a dissenting vote. Then Public Service Commissioner Thomas M. Osborne, who is Chairman of the Provisional Committee, which, until organization shall have been perfected, has charge of the management of the league, told about the progress it had made up State. Mr. Osborne said the prospects were particularly bright, and that the influence of the league had had a great deal to do with the Democratic victories won up State in the last election.

There were a few Tammany men present, but most of those who attended were men who have held aloof from Tammany Hall. Conspicuous among the former were President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, John F. Galvin, the defeated candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen; John B. McDonald, the Subway contractor, and William H. Black, former Commissioner of Accounts. Some of the others in attendance were Frederic R. Coudert, ex-Assistant District Attorney James R. Ely, Assistant Corporation Counsel William D. Crowell, who is the legal adviser of Mayor McClellan; Assistant District Attorney Francis P. Garvan, Frederick M. Patterson, Littleton Fox, John Hone, John Brooks Leavitt, Aspinall Hodge, Henry De Forest Baldwin, and Leo Schlesinger.

Conners at Work.

While the party reorganizers were in session at the Manhattan Club a little gathering of Democrats met in seclusion at the Hoffman House. The central figure of this gathering was Democratic State Chairman William James Conners. With him were some members of the Democratic State Committee from up-State. Among the up-State Democrats were ex-Judge Samuel S. Beardsley of Utica and County Chairman Johnson of Oneida.

There has been a frost between Mr. Conners and Judge Beardsley for years. Last night Mr. Conners said they were the best friends in the world. The Democratic State Chairman took the precaution of adding that it was not politics that had brought him and the little group of up-State Democrats together last night.

Mr. Conners displayed a pardonable curiosity regarding the result of the Manhattan Club meeting. When the resolutions had been read to him, he looked up and smiled.

"While these fellows are passing resolutions, I work," he said. "As a result I deliver the goods. I have made good. The elections throughout the State show it. I come down here with the goods. But what have these men ever done for the party?"

Predicts His Re-election.

"Now, mark my words," Mr. Conners added, with much emphasis, after a short pause. "If they are after me they'll have to fight me. They have got to beat me. And they won't be able to do it. I will come down to the next Democratic State Convention with the delegates from 55 of the 61 counties in the State solidly behind me. And in that number I am not including a single one of the four counties in this city. I will be re-elected State Chairman, and that isn't guesswork, either. I know."

"You don't think reorganization of the Democratic Party in this State is needed or desirable?" Mr. Conners was asked.

"They can no more reorganize the Democratic Party in this State than they can turn water into wine or wine into water," said Mr. Conners. "I will offer a reward of $100 right here and now for each member of the Democratic State Committee they can put out to make room for one of their men."

"To what do you ascribe your great strength up-State, Mr. Conners?" was asked.

But He Is Against Bosses.

"To the fact that they realize that I've made good," came the quick reply. "Why, they talk about bosses and think they are attacking me. There isn't a Democrat in this State who is more strongly opposed to bosses than I am. The reason the State Committeemen will stick to me is that while I have been State Chairman they have been consulted about party affairs. I want to have no boss over me, and I don't want to be the boss of anybody. I am just doing what my party has commissioned me to do."

"Do you look for a Democratic victory next year?"

"Just as sure as you are sitting here," said Mr. Conners.

"What are your relations with Mr. Murphy?" There have been rumors of a great coldness between Murphy and Conners.

"You can't get me to say a word about that," said the State Chairman. "You will have to find that out elsewhere. But I will be elected State Chairman again, that's certain."

Mr. Conners will be in town for some days. He is nursing a Gubernatorial boom for Mayor McClellan, who is very popular in some sections up State. After New Year's Mr. Conners will start for Florida to be gone for some time.

SAVES MACFADDEN FROM JAIL.

President Commutes Sentence of Man Who Ran Brawn and Beauty Shows.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—President Taft to-day remitted the prison sentence of Bernarr Macfadden of New Jersey, who was convicted of mailing non-mailable matter and sentenced to the New Jersey Penitentiary for two years and fined $2,000 and costs. Macfadden will be released on payment of the fine and costs.

Bernarr Macfadden has been in trouble several times in recent years with the New York and New Jersey authorities over the publication and dissemination of his physical culture literature. In October, 1905, Anthony Comstock caused his arrest with two of his assistants on the charge of exhibiting and having in their possession objectionable posters which were being distributed about the city to advertise Macfadden's Mammoth Physical Culture Show in Madison Square Garden, or, as he styled it, a Carnival of Beauty and Brawn.

Warrants were secured for Macfadden, Gomer Reese, manager of the show, and a man who had charge of putting up the posters, and Macfadden was held in $1,000 bail, but after the show he was discharged. The objectionable features of the posters consisted of pictures of a dozen women posing in scant attire. Anthony Comstock succeeded in capturing and destroying 500 pounds of these posters, but did not entirely prevent their exhibition in the city.

The publicity given to the show and Macfadden's arrest naturally enhanced the popularity of the exhibition, and on the opening night, Oct. 9, 1905, the crowd was so large and boisterous around the Garden that the police reserves had to be called out, and after 15,000 persons, as was said, had crowded into the building Fire Inspector Carr ordered the doors closed. This was the third and last show of the kind held in the city by Macfadden.

Macfadden established a physical culture colony near Spotswood, N. J., which he called Physical Culture City. In 1907 he was arrested there on the charge of violating the postal laws of the United States in sending objectionable literature through the mails through the medium of his Physical Culture Magazine. He was finally convicted and on Nov. 11, 1907, in the United States District Court at Trenton, was sentenced by Justice William M. Lanning to two years' imprisonment at hard labor and fined $2,000.

Besides continuing the publication of his magazine, Macfadden has organized a chain of physical culture restaurants in this and other cities.

JEWELERS CHEER LOEB.

Gem Importers Pleased by His Determination to Stop Smuggling.

Collector Loeb was cheered on Tuesday night at the Hotel Astor, when, as a guest of the New York precious stone importers, he expressed his determination to continue his fight for honesty in the Customs Service and fair dealing as between importers and the Government. He said that all he was trying to do was to bring into prominence the fact that the law was being enforced, and that any one caught in fraudulent work would be prosecuted without regard to who he might be. Mr. Loeb said that if smuggling was not suppressed he did not believe it fair to ask honest merchants to pay any duty at all. He said that the law should apply to all alike, and that fraud, whenever practiced, should be punished.

The dinner was given by the precious stone merchants to the committee on the tariff schedule which represented the gem trade before Congrss in obtaining satisfactory tariff laws, as applying to the gem trade. Ludwig Nissen, on behalf of the importers, presented Alfred Krower, Chairman of the committee, with a silver loving cup, and silver testimonials were also presented to Ludwig Nissen, M. D. Rothschild, and Jacob Goodfriend, the other active members of the committee.

In the evening it was announced that an organization had been formed in the gem trade to be known as the Precious Stone Importers' Protective Association, having for its object the protection of American importers against the smugglers.

JEROME SPENT $4,000.

Statement of Campaign Expenses Shows He Received $6,930.

ALBANY, Nov. 17.—District Attorney Jerome of New York, who was nominated by petition to succeed himself, but withdrew from the contest, filed a statement of expenses to-day with Secretary of State Koenig which showed that $6,930 was contributed to his cause in amounts ranging from $5 to $2,000. Among those who contributed were Sigmund Heckstadter $2,000, Moses Grossman $1,000, Sarah E. Bruce $500. The expenditures were $4,000, and the balance was returned pro rata to the contributors.

The John J. Delany Campaign Club, which unsuccessfully advocated the election of John J. Delany for Supreme Court Justice in the First District, certified that it received and spent $11,011.

QUIT CARNEGIE FOUNDATION.

Dr. Eliot and E. H. Hughes Resign from Trustees—Their Successors.

At the annual meeting yesterday of the Trustees of the Carnegie Foundation at 576 Fifth Avenue two Trustees were elected to succeed Charles W. Eliot, former President of Harvard University, and Edwin Holt Hughes, both of whom resigned. The new Trustees are Dr. Charles R. Van Hise, President of the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. Ira Remsen, President of Johns Hopkins University. This leaves Harvard without representation on the board, the only large Eastern university not represented.

Andrew Carnegie called while the meeting was in session and waited until its conclusion, when he invited the members of the board to luncheon at Delmonico's.

HAILS GOV. HUGHES AS STANDARD BEARER

TAMMANY HEADS TO FALL

Prendergast and McAneny Say There Will be Wholesale Dismissals After They Get Into Office.

The successful fusion candidates of the city and county ticket gathered at a dinner given to them last night by the Republican Club, at its clubhouse in Fortieth Street, and listened to an address more eulogistic of Gov. Hughes than any that has fallen from the lips of a man active in the Republican organization for many months.

This eulogy of the Governor came from Congressman William S. Bennet, who, besides having been campaign manager for Otto T. Bannard, is close enough to Herbert Parsons, the Republican County Chairman, to be regarded by many as in a position to voice Mr. Parsons's opinions. For that reason his utterances caused some stir among the two hundred or more Republicans present, for they seemed to indicate the future course of Mr. Parsons.

Congressman Bennet referred to Gov. Hughes as a man to be followed, and he added that he thought the menace of party strife would be overcome. He told the guests that he believed in the continuation of the convention system, and that he did not believe in any system of nomination which would make impossible fusion in 1913.

Tammany Heads to Drop.

There were other thrills for the Republicans who gathered last night to do honor to the successful candidates. One of these other thrills came from two of the elected candidates themselves—William R. Prendergast, the Controller-elect, and George McAneny, President-elect of the Board of Aldermen. Both Mr. Prendergast and Mr. McAneny indicated that there would be a wholesale lopping off of heads when they took over the offices to which they have been elected.

Both announced that the civil service rules would not be strong enough to keep in office those of their subordinates who were found to be not the kind of men who would insure the best administration of the office in which they were employed.

Otto T. Bannard, the unsuccessful candidate for Mayor, had been expected, but Mr. Bannard was at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., and could not attend. He sent a telegram saying how sorry he was to be absent. County Chairman Parsons was also absent, and he, too, sent a telegram saying that he was detained in Washington by a committee meeting and could not get away.

Robert C. Morris, President of the club, presided and introduced the various officials and others who were down as speakers. Mr. Morris explained that the club members had gathered the successful candidates together in order to rejoice with them over the "great event," and, as he expressed it, "the disablement of Tammany Hall."

Tammany's Overthrow Predicted.

"This time we hold a check and a balance on the City Government which will allow these gentlemen who have been elected on the fusion ticket to bring about a condition in which the good work can be perpetuated," said Mr. Morris. "Four years from now we can bring about the complete overthrow of Tammany Hall."

Mr. Morris said he regretted that Mr. Bannard was not present as much of the credit for the fusion victory belonged to him. "I offer as a toast—long life, health and prosperity to Otto T. Bannard," he said, raising his glass aloft.

Every one in the room was on his feet at the word, and the band struck up, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The clubmen sang it with a will. When Mr. Morris announced that a telegram had been received from Chairman Parsons a ripple of applause burst forth. Mr. Parsons is very popular in the Republican Club. Then Congressman Bennet was introduced.

Hughes the Workingman's Friend.

Mr. Bennet said that to the men who have been the party's chief support, the farmers, mechanics, and working men, Gov. Hughes has been and is a man to be followed. "Who is there in this State who dares question the Republicanism of the man who made the Youngstown speech?" he asked. And then the Congressman passed on to the question of direct nominations. He said it had never been a part of the Republican Party creed to deprive any one of place in the party.

"None should be driven from within our party councils who has the right to be there," he said. "I believe in the continuation of the convention system. I do not believe in any system which will make impossible fusion in 1913. If the Republican Party had been bound by rigorous rules we all would not have been here to-night. The Republicans alone do not defeat Tammany Hall, an independent party does not, Mr. Hearst does not, but fusion does. Now we have a chance in four years to show what we can do."

Mr. Prendergast said that he was not there as Judge Gaynor's representative, but that he believed that Judge Gaynor could say with him, "We are glad we were elected." He said that in four years, if the candidates-elect give to the city that brand of good government they are pledged to give, the spectre of Tammany will be buried forever. And then Mr. Prendergast talked about the Civil Service rules. He said that when a man is elected to office he must select his tools, he must surround himself with men who have to help make the administration of the office a successful one.

"Gentlemen, I am not a spoilsman," said Mr. Prendergast. "I am a believer in the civil service idea. I believe that the idea of not disturbing those in civil service places is good, but the kind of an official that is afraid to remove some of hus subordinates never makes a success. It is necessary for the taxpayers of this city for the civil service bugaboo to be gotten rid of, but you know it will never be gotten rid of.

Civil Service No Cloak for Laziness.

"The civil service law was never intended to be the cloak for laziness and inefficiency. As a law it is all right, but it has been abused. I believe men in office should surround themselves with men in sympathy with them, and that is just what I am going to do in the Controller's office. I am going to give a business administration."

Mr. McAneny, in speaking of the civil service rule as it will apply to his department, said that he fought for ten years for the establishment of the law. "But I never failed to see its weak points," he said. "Next to the test for appointment is the test for retention. If there is any prevailing idea that civil service reform means the keeping in office of the organization I shall find there, I will give the community a new idea of civil service reform.

"The unnecessary men in the department shall go and the unfit shall go. There is some talk of the intricacies of the removal rule. The real meaning and significance of the removal rule has never been sounded out by the heads of departments here. If I don't use this removal rule to give new color to the civil service reform I will leave it to your judgment. If I find the civil service lists have been padded, and I find there men who are unfit I shall announce the fact publicly. It is right that efficient men be appointed. I have already 1,400 applications for places in the department. Perhaps there are six or seven major appointments I shall give my attention to before Jan. 1, but only business ability will allow them to qualify. I shall leave the reorganization until Feb. 1, or perhaps March. I will feel my way along."

the bribery to Wilbur F. Wakeman, then Appraiser of the Port, who immediately caused an investigation to be made. It was upon Corsa's evidence that Mr. Wakeman made his report to ex-Secretary of the Treasury Gage, who, so Mr. Wakeman says, declared that he could not believe that his friend, Henry O. Havemeyer of the Sugar Trust, knew of any such thing. Mr. Wakeman, on Secretary Gage's suggestion, saw Mr. Havemeyer about it, and Mr. Havemeyer, denying knowledge of the bribery, became irate and showed Mr. Wakeman out of his office without giving him any satisfaction.

Although Corsa was backed by Mr. Wakeman in his efforts at reinstatement, and Leslie M. Shaw, who succeeded Mr. Gage as Secretary of the Treasury, promised, so he says, to give him his old job back, Corsa has been waiting ever since, with little work to do. The stumbling block to his reinstatement, says Corsa, seemed all along to be George W. Whitehead, who was chief of the special Treasury agents in Washington at the time Corsa was dismissed from the Government's service.

Corsa's Story of Bribery.

Corsa, a veteran of the civil war, entered the Government service in 1895, having been appointed through the influence of Charles H. Treat, a former Collector of Internal Revenue. Although Mr. Treat was able to have Corsa appointed, he found himself powerless, when Corsa went to him later on, to have him reinstated. Corsa was assigned to work on the Jersey City pier as an assistant sampler. His story of his work and of the bribery which the trust indulged in is told by him in this way:

"When a boat would come in there would be a sampler stationed at every hatchway to dip samples out of the sugar as it was landed. Sometimes, when more ships came in than the samplers could handle, we assistants to the samplers would be put at this work, but ordinarily our duties were to carry trays of samples to the locked sheds in which they were put until collected by the Appraiser's wagon.

"When I first went to work, I would see the assistants taking their trays through the trust agent's cellar, which was alongside the pier. It was in this cellar that the trays were left. About the first day I was there, taking a tray into the cellar, some one said to me: 'You're in on this, old man; mum's the word. There's money enough to go around. Don't be a squealer. Take your bit and shut up.' One of the assistant samplers said that to me.

"I saw the samples dumped into other trays in the cellar and dampened sugar put in its place from bags that lay there. I didn't understand at first what that meant, but later it was all clear to me. One day as I was coming out of the washroom one of the Government assistant samplers said to me: 'You've got your money, old man; it's in your coat pocket. I got mine, too, see?' I felt in my pocket and sure enough, there was a roll of bills. I knew very soon the name of the Sugar Trust's agent who had provided the money. I also found out that there were others who were doing the same thing over at the Williamsburg pier.

"After I had got so that I took samples regularly, one day a Trust agent came to me and said, 'Now, don't give us the worst of it. Knock her down a point or two, and we'll see you fixed all right.' I was one of four men at the hatchways, a head sampler being in charge. I got to figuring what 'knocking down a point or two' meant, and found that if we took sugar from the bottom of a sack in the ship, it would be damp and of lower grade, so that a lower duty would be fixed. The Government regulation provided that, to get a fair sample, a sugar sack should be cut diagonally across, and the sugar scooped out. 'Knocking down a point' only meant to get as far toward the bottom as possible. That's where our power to help the trust came in.

$2,000 Saved on Each Cargo.

"The work we could do for the trust would save it at least $2,000 on every cargo, and for our 'knocking down' we got from $12 to $25 each, according to the importance of the work done. Not only were the samples taken from the bags in this way, but when the higher grade of sugar was taken out it would be changed by the trust's agents in the cellar, and for allowing this to be done we were paid, too.

"I got as much as $80 from the trust, and then my conscience began to work. I told Mr. Treat about it, and he told me to lay the whole matter before Mr. Wakeman, which I did."

Wakeman Couldn't Stop Bribery.

Corsa says that Mr. Wakeman told of the bribery to Secretary Gage, but that it went along at the pier just the same, although the trust agents, apparently suspicious of Corsa, now avoided him. One day, in 1902, about a year after Corsa had made his revelations, he was dismissed. He called on Mr. Treat at the Custom House and Mr. Treat gave him a letter to Mr. Whitehead, Chief of the Special Agents. Mr. Treat expressed confidence that Corsa would get his job back, but when he handed the letter to Whitehead that official, he says, exclaimed:

"I won't do it." Mr. Whitehead refused to have him reinstated.

For months Corsa sent letters to the President, Secretary of the Treasury, and to the Congressman in his district setting forth the facts and asking for reinstatement. Always there would come a reply that the matter had been referred to Mr. Whitehead, who, Corsa was informed, was the only one with power to nominate men for his department.

Finally Corsa had a talk with Secretary Shaw, who had in the meantime succeeded Mr. Gage. Mr. Shaw, he says, promised to have him reinstated, declaring it was a shame that he had been dismissed when he had merely done his duty. It ended some time later, however, in Mr. Shaw informing Corsa that he had put the matter in the hands of Mr. Whitehead, who had such things in charge. He never heard from Mr. Whitehead, and is still patiently waiting for reappointment.

Edwin Anderson, the former Pier Superintendent of the Sugar Trust's pier at Williamsburg, who declared in an interview on Tuesday night that it was he, and not Richard Parr, who had brought out the first real evidence of fraud on the part of the trust, told a reporter of THE TIMES yesterday that he had positive evidence that employes of the office of the Surveyor of the Port had been taking bribes. He said that one man, whose name he knew, used to go over to the Williamsburg pier every week for money, and that it was handed to him by a trust employe.

Parr had nothing to say of Anderson's challenge to his assertion that he (Anderson) was the real discoverer of the Williamsburg frauds, excepting to remark that he had letters from Washington authorities that showed what work he had done.

WON'T BLOCK CONGRESS PROBE.

MacVeagh to Let It Take Its Course—New Exposure Claimant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Treasury Department to-day preserved its silence in regard to the claims and counterclaims of persons purporting to be the originators of the fraud investigation directed against the Sugar Trust. No one would deny the statement issued yesterday by Edwin I. Anderson, who was the unnamed man referred to in Mr. Reynolds's first statement as the real discoverer of the frauds.

Mr. MacVeagh has made no statement yet, and is not expected to make one. Should there be an investigation by Congress, the possibility of which has been mentioned of late, Mr. MacVeagh is said to be ready to let Congress take its course without attempting to obstruct. Meanwhile the cases will be prosecuted.

Wilbur F. Wakeman, former Appraiser of the Port of New York and now Treasurer and General Secretary of the American Protective Tariff League, arrived in Washington to-day and had a conference with Secretary MacVeagh. He declined to say what was discussed, and declared that he had come up from Norfolk and had stopped at Washington of his own initiative. In conversation afterward, however, he took the credit for the first revelation of alleged frauds by the Sugar Trust away from both Parr and Anderson and gave it to George F. Cross, ex-Supervising Special Agent of the Treasury Department at New York. The impression derived from his statements was that Cross was removed to Buffalo at the instance of the Sugar Trust. Mr. Wakeman would not answer questions as to what he thought of the charges against ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds, and said he thought ex-Secretary Shaw did the best he could under the conditions. He did not think there was any reason for a Congressional investigation, as the alleged frauds could be thoroughly sifted by the Department of Justice. Mr. Wakeman intimated that he had documentary evidence of his talk with H. O. Havemeyer, and that he was in the company of a special agent when the conference took place.

Secretary MacVeagh called at the White House to-day and formally presented to the President the members of the new Tariff Commission, or Foreign Tariff Board, as it is sometimes called. These are James B. Reynolds, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Prof. H. C. Emery of Yale, who is Chairman of the board, and Alvin H. Sanders of Chicago.

Before leaving the conference Mr. Reynolds took up with the President some details of the Sugar Trust frauds in New York in so far as the charges against him by Assistant Surveyor Parr were concerned. Mr. Reynolds explained briefly his connection with the case as he has already outlined it in a formal statement given out several days ago. It was the first opportunity he had, however, to say a personal word to the President on the subject.

E. L. Young Has Pneumonia.

Edward L. Young, son of the late financier, E. F. C. Young, it was learned yesterday, has pneumonia and is a patient in Dr. William T. Bull's private hospital, in East Thirty-third Street. Mr. Young recently moved to Manhattan from Jersey City. He is President of the First National Bank of Jersey City and President of a coal company bearing his name. His condition is not serious, it is said.

FAST FREIGHTS HIT ON JERSEY TRESTLE

Dead Engineer, Pipe in Mouth, Seen Under His Locomotive, but Can't Be Reached.

CREW HURLED 30 FEET AWAY

Landed in Soft Newark Meadows Unhurt—Debris Threatens Passenger Traffic—Lehigh's Worst in Years.

Charles Anderson of Naple Street, Jersey City, engineer of Lehigh Valley Railroad Locomotive No. 1,655, of the big camel type, was instantly killed beneath his engine last night in a collision on an elevated structure used for double freight tracks through Newark.

The accident occurred in the Jersey meadows about a quarter of a mile southwest of Frelinghuysen Avenue. The locomotive was overturned and lay in such a position that despite efforts of a wrecking crew from Amboy the body of the engineer could not be taken out without danger of a further accident and possible loss of life.

It was, therefore, decided at midnight to wait for day, and, meantime, to devote all effort to preventing the locomotive and a big pile of wreckage from sliding down a soft dirt embankment, about twenty feet high, to the passenger tracks adjoining the elevation, which are at grade and are used by both the Lehigh Valley and the West Newark branch of the main line of the Pennsylvania. The eastbound passenger track had already become impassable before midnight through the slipping of the freight wreckage down the sides of the elevation, and passenger traffic on both tracks had to be finally abandoned.

The smash was the worst freight wreck in a long time in the vicinity of Newark. Anderson was to have handed his engine over to another crew at Packerton, Penn. His train reached the elevated tracks on the outskirts of Newark shortly before 8 o'clock. It was made up of thirty box cars of the largest type, filled with high-class perishable freight, and he was running west at about twenty miles an hour.

An eastbound coal train, drawn by camel back engine 1,615, in charge of Engineer Louis Schmidt of Lehighton, Penn., was passing at about fifteen miles an hour. It was made up of thirty-five steel gondola cars, each of forty tons weight, and each loaded to its capacity of 100 tons.

Without a second of warning there was a collision. So far as could be determined by investigation after the wreck a flange on a wheel of one of the gondolas broke, causing the car to jump the rails and swerve sharply toward the westbound track. The gondola crashed into the locomotive of the fast freight, overturning the latter and pinning Engineer Anderson in the wreckage.

The impact of the collision was terrific. Behind the locomotive the momentum of the cars of the fast freight was so great that four of them piled up on top of the locomotive, and before it came to a stop the whole mass was sent plunging along the tracks for a hundred feet or more, digging up the roadbed, tearing up rails and ties, and raising them high in the air. On the other track eight of the coal cars piled in much the same way, tearing the tracks and the roadbed.

That no one but Anderson was killed is beyond explanation. An instant before the collision his fireman, William Rhodey of Jersey City, left the cab to stir up his fires in readiness for a fast run west of Newark. W. T. Gommery, also of Jersey City, the head brakeman, took the seat of the fireman in the cab.

When the crash came both were hurled through the air and landed thirty feet away in soft earth on the side of the embankment. Neither was able to explain later how he escaped injury, and neither seemed to be suffering from anything but shock and severe bruises. Conductor George Knerr of Jersey City, also of the fast freight, was thrown from one of the forward cars of his train, but was not hurt, and could not tell how he escaped.

When the wreckage had stopped piling up it was found that every one was safe but Anderson. His engine was a mass of twisted metal, almost buried in the wreckage of the freight cars, and he was fast beneath it at the place where the cab had been. The locomotive was on its right side and hanging half over the embankment.

Those who risked going near it by climbing up the embankment in the soft earth, which it was feared would let the wrecked train slide down to the passenger tracks, could see Anderson plainly by poking their lanterns through an aperture in the wreckage. The upper part of his body seemed uninjured, and a pipe which he had been smoking was still fast between his teeth. His body had been pierced, and was apparently being held down by one of the piston rods of his engine. It was believed that he was killed instantly.

Two hours after the wreck occurred a slight fire broke out in the freight train pile, but was quickly extinguished. The first wrecking crew arrived from Amboy about 10 o'clock, but could do nothing toward immediate clearing away of the wreck owing to the torn-up condition of the tracks and roadbed on the elevated structure.

A second wrecking crew was summoned from Mauch Chunk. Pending its arrival a large force of men was put to work repairing the roadbed near the wreck and relaying the tracks. It was found that until this had been done the wreckers could not get near enough to the piled-up cars to pull them back on the crest of the embankment, or even to keep them from gradually sliding down toward the passenger tracks on the narrow grade.

It was one of the most difficult wrecks to handle that the special crews had encountered. The property damage will amount to many thousands of dollars. It was decided not to follow the practice of burning the wreckage, owing to the unusual value of the contents of the cars.

LUPO, THE GROCER, JAILED.

Alleged Black Hand Operator Who Came Back Accused of Extortion.

Ignazio Lupo, the wholesale grocer of 210 Mott Street and the supposed leader of the "Black Hand," who disappeared a year ago, and returned recently to face his creditors, who had forced him into bankruptcy, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives McConville, Nelson, and Lagrue of the Central Office, in the office of William Henkel, Jr., the receiver appointed for his property. Lupo was taken before Magistrate Barlow in the Jefferson Market Court and held on a short affidavit by McConville for examination on Nov. 22.

The charge against Lupo is that about Dec. 5 last he robbed Salvatore Manzella of $4,000 by threatening him with a pistol. Manzella, who was in the grocery business also, was forced into bankruptcy some time after Lupo's disappearance. At that time he charged that for years Lupo had been forcing him to sign notes in blank, which Lupo filled out and discounted. He said he had lost thousands of dollars in this way, and that Lupo had had other victims.

Lupo yesterday had just completed a denial of these charges when he was arrested. The grocer was submitted to a severe cross-examination by William Lesser, attorney for his creditors. In the course of this, three checks were brought to light made out by Lupo to Manzella and aggregating $1,728. Lupo explained that as nearly as he could remember they were given to Manzella to meet notes which Lupo had indorsed. The grocer said his indorsement had been sought by every one when he was doing a big business in Mott Street.

He asserted that the evidence of payments made by him to Manzella rather refuted the charge that he had robbed Manzella. It was just as he had completed his testimony that the detectives, who had been waiting in the hall, stepped in and arrested him.

SAVE MRS. GRANT AT FIRE.

General and Firemen Help Her Down Ladder When House Is Ablaze.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., Commander of the Department of the Lakes, and Mrs. Grant were assisted down ladders by firemen when flames attacked their home at 1,406 Dearborn Avenue early to-day. Mrs. Grant was burned slightly about the hands. The household was sleeping when smoke was first discovered at 6:30 A. M. When the fire companies arrived the General and his wife appeared, scantily clad, on a second-story balcony. Smoke was pouring from the windows, and crowds were collecting.

A ladder was hastily erected, firemen mounted half way, Gen. Grant helped Mrs. Grant to find a footing on the rungs, and the firemen assisted her to the street. The General followed, refusing assistance, while the crowd cheered. Servants also were carried to safety, half-fainting, by firemen.

Excitement was redoubled when Gen. Grant, upon reaching the street, remembered that he had left his pocketbook and watch behind him.

"It's all right," he called to Mrs. Grant. "Ill go back and get them."

He started to step across the coiling lengths of hose, but Policeman John Nape of the Hudson Avenue Station caught him by the arm.

"Excuse me, General," he said, "where are you going?"

"I left my watch and pocketbook upstairs under my pillow. I'm going to slip up and get them."

The policeman protested, and offered to go in the General's stead. To this arrangement Gen. Grant reluctantly consented, his attention having been called to the meagreness of his attire. Nape made his way upstairs through the smoke and the dripping water, found the watch and pocketbook, and delivered them to the General, whose thanks and praise he received. Then Mrs. Grant and her husband went to the home of Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Grant's sister.

The furniture in the house is valued at $5,000, and much of it was damaged. In the house, also, were a number of prized relics of his father, Gen. U. S. Grant, among them being a sword presented to the famous soldier at the siege of Vicksburg, a portrait of his father, and the field desk used by the Commanding General in active service.

Most of the relics were saved, though some minor mementoes were lost and certain paintings damaged.

QUIZ ELECTION INSPECTORS.

Board of Canvassers Want to Know Why Tally Sheets Are Confused.

The Board of Canvassers for the vote cast in the recent election in Manhattan and the Bronx examined the Inspectors and poll clerks from some fifty election districts last night in an attempt to straighten out the confusion in many of the tally sheets.

The only change of note recorded during the session was the crossing off of one vote in the Twenty-first Election District of the Twenty-sixth Assembly District for John J. Dwyer, the Tammany candidate for the Municipal Court bench in the Eighth District. This leaves his plurality at 23. The original returns gave the election to Judge Joseph P. Fallon, whom Tammany refused to renominate, by 15 votes. The matter has been taken to the courts for a recount.

A great deal of confusion was found in the tally of the vote on the proposed constitutional amendments. In many cases the blanks had been counted as negative votes, and in others as positive. In the Fourteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District it was found that 109 more votes were recorded for the Supreme Court Judges than there were ballots cast in the district. This, as well as the greater part of the mix-ups, were explained by clerical errors.

PUZZLE OF HOPE DIAMOND.

Sultan Supposed to Have Had It—Stolen When He Fell.

New York jewelers are puzzled over the whereabouts of the Hope diamond, the huge gem once among the crown jewels of France.

A dispatch to The London Express, repeated by cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, said that Selim Habib, a wealthy Turkish diamond collector and merchant, had been lost in the wreck of the French mail steamer Seyne, near Singapore, and that he probably had with him at the time the famous jewel.

It was reliably reported in Constantinople last year, however, that the Hope diamond had been bought for the Sultan by Selim Habib, and that it was worn by a seraglio favorite. A report received in New York yesterday said it was among the $9,000,000 plunder taken from the Yildiz Kiosk after the rise of the Young Turks and the retirement of Abdul Hamid. Jehver Agha, one of the eunuchs, was hanged for having the Hope diamond in his possession after the fall of the Sultan, according to this report.

If the Hope diamond was among the loot taken from the Yildiz Kiosk, and if Selim Habib did get possession of it again, interested persons would like to know how he did so. A committee has been investigating the looting of the Yildiz Kiosk for some time.

Gov. Hughes, Following the President, Formally Appoints the Day.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Gov. Hughes, who returned to-day from New Haven, Conn., has issued his proclamation appointing Thursday, Nov. 25, as a day of general thanksgiving.

"In order," says the proclamation, "that endeavor may be crowned with gratitude; that we may appropriately express our appreciation of the opportunities of liberty and peace, of our freedom from disorder, of abundant harvests, of the manifold benefits of industry, of the gains of science, and of the widening efforts of philanthropy;

"That we may cultivate the joys of fellowship and that amid good cheer and the manifestations of brotherly kindness we may be drawn more closely together in mutual sympathy and enhanced desire to promote the common weal;

"And that with reverent spirit we may lift up our hearts in thanks to Almighty God for his goodness and in the united utterance of praise and hope find inspiration for public and private task."

Eleventh Avenue Track Hearings On.

The hearings before D. Cady Herrick, referee in the city's suit to compel the New York Central to vacate Eleventh Avenue, began yesterday. Copies of the original franchise granted to the Hudson River Railroad Company in 1847 and succeeding agreements between the city, the old road, and the Central were submitted, against the protests of Corporation Counsel Pendleton, who contended that the sole question at issue is whether or not the permission to occupy the avenue granted by the city to the Hudson River Company for fifty years passed automatically to the Central for the entire length of its franchise upon its consolidation with the old road.

HUSBAND AND WIFE FINED FOR SMUGGLING

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Tubbs Forced to Pay $2,200 for Not Declaring Finery.

BLAME A POLITICAL FRIEND

Water Department Official Explains He Only Meant to Expedite the Passage of the Tubbs Baggage.

In the case of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Tubbs, who yesterday paid into the Treasury $2,200 as a result of attempting to bring in goods from abroad without the payment of duty. Customs officials say there is an echo of the days when a handshake and a smile meant a good deal on the steamship piers.

Mr. Tubbs is President of the Tubbs Portage Company of San Francisco. He and his wife arrived from abroad a few days ago on the Lusitania. They brought with them a number of trunks and declared that they had purchased $400 worth of goods abroad. The Inspector, who was examining the finery in Mrs. Tubbs's trunks, became convinced that some of the goods said to have been bought in this country were of foreign make and new. Deputy Surveyor John J. Raczkiewicz was called, and after he had questioned her Mrs. Tubbs admitted that some of the things examined were purchased on the other side.

"Why didn't you declare them?" the Deputy Surveyor asked.

Mrs. Tubbs finally admitted, according to the customs men, that she had been told not to. The official wanted to know who her adviser was, but the woman would not answer. He persisted, and the passenger finally admitted it was a "powerful politician."

There was a threat of a Federal Grand Jury investigation, and then it was admitted that the "powerful politician" was a Mr. Smith, an official in the Department of Water Supply. The trunks were seized and sent to the Public Stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs went to the Belmont. Later there was an investigation. Mr. Smith appeared. He said that he was an old friend of the Tubbses. He denied that he had intended to advise smuggling, and explained that he simply intended to meet his friends and see that they got through the customs lines.

Mr. Tubbs denied wrong intent. So did his wife. Mr. Smith explained that in the past he had met his friends when they returned from abroad. He had always met those in charge, and had the baggage of those arriving expedited, he said.

The three were told by the Collector that there was a new order of things now, and that vigilance was never relaxed.

The Tubbses' baggage was found upon examination by the Appraiser to contain $1,600 worth of undeclared goods. This figure was the foreign value. The duty would have been about $700. Instead they had to pay duty and a fine for concealment amounting to $2,200.

The customs officials say that there have been but few of these cases since the present agitation against smuggling by incoming passengers got under way.

INSPECTORS TOOK TIPS.

Customs Agents Said to Have Accepted $5 Each from Travelers.

Two customs Inspectors are under investigation on charges of having each accepted a $5 tip from an incoming passenger yesterday in the Surveyor's room at the Custom House. In addition to three Inspectors, assigned to special duty, two Deputy Surveyors and several special agents and employes, there were present two young women who are said to have given the tip.

One of the accused Inspectors was before the Surveyor and denied the charge. The other has not yet appeared to plead. Surveyor Clarkson was not disposed to discuss the case. The two women arrived last week from abroad on a North German Lloyd line steamship. The $10 she gave was not a bribe, but a tip, it is said, but in spite of that a party of inspectors left the Custom House with the two women to examine their baggage, which is in an uptown hotel, and see whether it should be seized as containing smuggled goods.

"It has been charged that two Inspectors received a tip of $5 each," said Gen. Clarkson. "It is not the amount involved, but the violation of the rule against accepting tips that is being investigated. We will try to recover the trunks, which are in an uptown hotel, and determine whether they were properly passed. The men have not been found guilty, and for that reason I will not make public their names."

According to the Surveyor, the charge against the men was made by Deputy Surveyor John J. Racziewicz, in charge of the baggage examiners.

Woman Fined for Smuggling.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Franciska Freidman of New York City was fined $150 by Judge Cross in the United States District Court here to-day on a charge of smuggling. She had pleaded not guilty, but to-day she retracted that and pleaded non vult. She was charged with bringing from Europe fancy goods worth $700 without paying duty. In her defense, Mrs. Freidman said the goods were made by relatives.

Five Points House of Industry.

One of the oldest charitable institutions for the care and education of homeless children. Four hundred and fifty-six different children cared for during the year; sixty-one placed in permanent homes with private families; and nearly forty thousand since organization.

During the year we have moved our children from the old building in Worth Street to Westchester County, where, in small groups, our children are given the advantages of an outdoor life, with the same educational and industrial training as before.

We are planning greatly to extend the work in the country on the cottage system. Funds are solicited for this, and for the usual

TELEGRAPH MERGER IS DENIED BY VAIL

President of Bell Company Says Western Union Deal Is Merely to Better the Service.

AID TO TELEPHONE USERS

Postal Not Affected, Its Officials Assert—Government May Begin Investigation of the Transaction.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—The deal between the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, known as the Bell Company, and the Western Union Telegraph Company is not a merger, said President Theodore E. Vail of the telephone company to-day. The purchase by the Bell Company of the Gould holdings of Western Union stock, carrying control of the company, is designed chiefly to improve service, Mr. Vail said, through an arrangement by which the companies will help each other.

The chief benefit to the general public of the arrangement is that every man who has a telephone in his house or office has also what amounts to a telegraph wire. The man who wishes to send a telegram may call up the telegraph office by telephone, give his message, which will be sent by telegraph and delivered by telephone, thus eliminating the waste of time for messenger service at both ends.

While this in a measure can be done to-day, Mr. Vail says, all the time that is now saved in one way is lost in another, such as in making arrangement for charges, &c. Under the new arrangement all this is taken care of in advance through the mutual understanding of the companies.

In the second place, Mr. Vail says, the public will be benefited through economy. A telephone message and a telegram may be passed over one wire at the same time, as the two systems do not conflict with each other. At the present time, Mr. Vail says, 50 per cent. of the wires in use are not giving the amount of service that they should.

To show how there might be a saving in this respect, Mr. Vail said that there are ten wires now in use in the trunk system between Boston and New York, and that this number could possibly be reduced to seven, through an understanding.

Mr. Vail denied that a merger of the Postal Telegraph Company with the telephone company might follow.

The report spread yesterday that the control of the Western Union obtained by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company would lead to a closer community of interest between those companies and the Postal Telegraph Company, and possibly an ultimate merger of the three companies. Officials of the telephone company frankly said that the Postal Company was the largest single stockholder in their company.

Officials of the Postal Company again said that their company was not affected by the transfer of the Gould Western Union interests to the telephone company, and would conduct its business on an independent basis as heretofore. It is believed by some men in New York financial circles, however, that the announced merger is but a first step toward the final consolidation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Postal Telegraph, the Commercial Cable, and the Western Union, resulting in a gigantic merger.

Bankers in touch with the affairs of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said yesterday that no new financing in connection with the deal is being formulated at present. Later on it is expected steps will be taken to cover the heavy capital expenditures involved in taking over so large a volume of Western Union stock. While no details are yet obtainable as to the form this financing will take it was said yesterday on good authority that the advisers of the company favor a plan radically different from the policy under which the company's recent large increases in capital obligations have been put out. The last considerable financing done by the company was in the form of gold coupon 5 per cent. notes put out in January, 1907, and due Jan. 1, 1911. Of these $25,000,000 were issued. In 1906 the company issued $136,000,000 4 per cent. convertible bonds.

GOVERNMENT MAY ACT.

Investigation of Western Union Deal by Deputy Attorneys General Reported.

A report became current yesterday that Deputy Attorneys General Wade Ellis and Harrison had come to this city from Washington to investigate the American Telephone-Western Union deal. United States Attorney Wise said that he had not heard of any such intention on the part of Messrs. Ellis and Harrison, and they did not appear at the Federal Building during the day. Dispatches from Washington last night showed that both men were in that city. They said they had not been in New York.

The Government has been investigating the telephone and telegraph situation since June, 1908, in accordance with a resolution which the Senate adopted on May 29 of that year. There have been several cases of civil litigation involving the methods of the Bell Telephone in eliminating independents from the field in which the Government investigators have been interested.

Presumably the acquisition of the Western Union interest to the American Telephone will be inquired into like the other activities of the trust, but no definite results have become apparent thus far.

LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY BEGUN.

Committee Considers Placing of Wire Companies Under Public Supervision.

BUFFALO, Nov. 17.—An investigation of telegraph and telephone companies to determine whether the public will get a better service if the companies are placed under the supervision of the Public Service Commission was begun here to-day by the joint legislative committee appointed at the last session. A number of individual complaints of inefficient service and alleged breaches of requirements of franchise in regard to rates were heard to-day, after which an adjournment was taken until to-morrow.

The committee is composed of Senator George A. Davis of Buffalo, Chairman; Senators John Kinsel and James J. Frawley, Assemblymen E. A. Merritt, Jr., Artemus Ward, Jr., J. H. Walters, John R. Yale, and Thomas B. Coughlan.

MUSK OX AT BRONX ZOO.

The Only Specimen in This Country Arrived Yesterday.

A musk ox from Melville's Island, in the arctic, arrived yesterday at the Bronx Park Zoo. It is said to be the only one of its kind in this country, the last in captivity having died in the Bronx Zoo five years ago.

The new arrival was captured last Summer by Capt. Joseph Bernier, a Canadian explorer, and was purchased for the Zoo by Dr. Cecil French of Washington, D. C. Dr. French went into the arctic regions after the ox, and accompanied it to New York. Special quarters are being prepared for the Northern specimen.

Dr. Hornaday, Director of the Zoo, is very proud of his latest acquisition, and showed him to many visitors yesterday. The musk ox is of the white-fronted species, and has a tuft of gray hair on the forehead and another on the chest. The rest of the body is covered with heavy brown hair of a dark hue. The Zoo officials have not quite decided on the diet for the new arrival, but for a while hay will be his chief food. It is not known what the musk oxen really find to keep life in their bodies in the Far North, where in the Winter months the ground is covered many feet deep with snow. There is also some uncertainty as to where and how the name "musk ox" originated, for there is no odor of musk about the animals, nor is their flesh tainted with musk.

SUES HIS WIFE'S LAWYER.

Thomas Towne Seeks $100,000 Damages for Alienation.

Thomas Towne, Eastern representative of the Union Drawn Steel Company of Beaver Falls, Penn., is suing his wife for divorce and has also begun action against George D. Zahm, the co-respondent, a lawyer, of 261 Broadway, for $100,000 damages for alienating her affections. Mr. Zahm denies the charges and declares that his relations with Mrs. Towne were merely those of an attorney to his client. He also asserts that the suits were brought to injure him professionally, because Mrs. Towne wants to place out of her husband's reach $40,000 that has been left to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Towne separated about six months ago, and Mrs. Towne passed the Summer at a cottage at Beachhaven, N. J., where Mr. and Mrs. Zahm, with Mrs. Zahm's father and mother, occupied another cottage. Mrs. Towne came into a $40,000 legacy from an uncle and went to Mr. Zahm, whom she had known for years, and who was the attorney for several corporations with which her husband was connected, for his advice with regard to it. Mr. Zahm concurred with a Philadelphia lawyer, who was managing the testator's estate, that the best thing Mrs. Towne could do was to have the money placed in trust for her benefit, so that she could not be induced to part with it.

In the alienation suit it is alleged that it was Mr. Zahm who induced Mrs Towne to refuse to return to her husband, and who had advised her to place Mr. Zahm in a position to control the $40,000 legacy.

SUES A. T. KEMP FOR $51,000.

Engineer of the Yacht Roxana Wants Damages for Imprisonment.

Arthur T. Kemp, President of the George Kemp Realty Company at 615 Fifth Avenue, is being sued in the Supreme Court by Michael McNamara, chief engineer in 1906 of the steam yatch Roxana, owned by John W. Gates, but under charter at the time to Mr. Kemp. McNamara seeks to recover $51,000 damages he alleges he suffered by reason of his arrest and imprisonment for two days at New Bern, S. C., following Mr. Kemp's accusation of mutiny against him.

McNamara asserts that Kemp was not the Captain or officer in command and not competent to have made the charges against him. A jury trial of McNamara on the charge of resisting arrest resulted in a disagreement, and the United States District Attorney refused to try him on the indictment count by the Federal Grand Jury of disobeying commands. McNamara asserts that subsequently both indictments were dismissed.

Testifying yesterday, McNamara said he was forced to spend the night in a cell with an earthen floor without fire, which necessitated him burning small pieces of wood to keep warm.

SUICIDE ON WOMAN'S GRAVE.

Stauko Shoots Himself for Grief Over Mrs. Sinski's Death.

Anton Stauko of 224 York Street, New Brighton, S. I., shot himself in the left breast yesterday morning on the grave of Mrs. George Sinski in St. Peter's Cemetery. Mrs. Sinski who formerly lived in New Brighton, died last week.

It is believed that Stauko was in love with the woman and killed himself because of grief at her death. Mrs. Sinski was married. Two months ago her husband caused the arrest of the woman and Stauko, declaring that they had assaulted him in his own house.

The couple were each put under bond of $500 to keep the peace. No one stepped forward to go on Stauko's bond, Mrs. Sinski supplied the funds herself.

Stauko's body was found by Policeman Gilling of the New Brighton Station lying across the grave. Beside him lay a revolver.

SEIZES HORSE INSURANCE CO.

Supt. Hotchkiss Declares the Concern Is Insolvent—Officers Missing.

Supreme Court Justice Truax directed Supt. of Insurance Hotchkiss yesterday to take over the United States Horse Insurance Company of 115 Broadway, on the ground that the concern is insolvent and has refused to submit its books and papers to the court. The Insurance Department has tried many times to cite the officers of the company to appear in court, but they could never be located.

J. N. Johns is said to be President of the company, but he could never be found at his offices, at 115 Broadway, and neighbors say that he has never lived at 325 West Ninety-third Street, which is given as his residence.

The company insured the lives of animals on the mutual assessment basis. Its last report showed that there was a deficit of $159.

Daughter Executrix of Havemeyer Will

Surrogate Thomas granted yesterday the application made by Miss Electra Havemeyer, daughter of the late Henry O. Havemeyer, President of the American Sugar Refining Company, that she be made an executrix of her father's will, together with her mother, Mrs. Louisine W. Havemeyer; her sister, Mrs. Adaline H. Frelinghuysen, and her brother, Horace H. Havemeyer. Mr. Havemeyer's will provided that his daughter should be made an executrix when she became 21 years old, and she states in her petition that she arrived at that age on Aug. 16.

POLICE PROMOTION UNFAIR, SAYS WOODS

Ex-Deputy Commissioner Thinks Many Patrolmen Are More Fit Than Some Captains.

FAVORS RADICAL REFORMS

Advocates Separation of Police from Control of Vice—Civic Association and Municipal League Elect Officers.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—Many patrolmen walking the streets of New York are far better qualified to command that some of the Captains, in the opinion of Arthur Woods, ex-Deputy Police Commissioner of New York. Mr. Woods, in a paper read to-day at the National Municipal League Convention by Clinton Rogers Woodruff in the absence of the author, contended that the present system of police promotion fails to result in the advancement of the best men. Mr. Woods held that no effective reforms can be accomplished until the police organization is taken out of politics and is freed from the duty of enforcing corrupting laws.

The American Civic Association also continued its sessions here to-day, and both it and the National Municipal League elected officers. To-night the two organizations held a banquet together.

Mr. Woods's address was in part as follows:

"Although the civil service method of appointing new policemen to the force is undoubtedly successful, the method of promotion to higher office needs improvement. To train men especially to be officers, in other words, to establish a police West Point, seems to be impracticable. The officers must be taken from the ranks. To be successful, this method must operate so that promotion shall go to those men who have done the best police work, work that shows them fit to command. Nothing can be more important to the honesty and efficiency of any body of men than the conviction in the minds of the men in the ranks that preferment will go to those that deserve it. No favoritism must enter into the choice.

"How does the civil service test measure up in the light of these requirements?

"As far as ruling out favoritism goes it is clearly good. As a means of selecting the best men, however, it is almost a failure. The general theory of the test would indicate this, aside from its practical working. The three elements entering in are the man's record, his length of service, and his success at passing a written examination.

"The records are worthless. To a man's credit is placed nothing but extraordinary deeds of physical courage. These are usually accidental opportunities which would have been equally well met by most of the men on the force. There is no way, moreover, in which credit can be given to a man for simple devotion to duty. Against him count only the penalties inflicted on him in the police disciplinary court. Some of the best men have hard-looking records.

"Experience, too, agrees with the theory and example as shown above in indicating that the present system fails to choose the right man. Though some of the high officers on the New York force are able men, there is many a patrolman walking the streets who is far better qualified to command than some of the Captains. The last examination for promotion to the rank of Sergeant showed the inadequacy of the promotion test. It was entered into with enthusiasm by thousands of patrolmen. The civil service system would not have a chance to work under more favorable auspices. Yet, though some good men came out near the top, so many other men, whom the Commissioner and his deputies had found peculiarly qualified, were down toward the foot, that it seemed as if there must have been some mistake, as if the system must have worked wrong.

"The prohibited or regulated vices are the great sources of police corruption, and it is only in part the policeman's fault. A literal enforcement of the laws designed to suppress these evils is impossible; it is not expected by a large majority of citizens, and not desired by probably at least a majority. How, then, can you expect your policemen to do what you admit is impossible, and what he knows is not really meant? The question to be considered here is merely how this affects the police. The answer is that the connection must be broken. This can be done in two ways—by making laws based on reason and backed by the community, or by relieving the police of the duty of enforcing the present unreasonable laws. The latter expedient would be confessedly a makeshift, as whatever force should be intrusted with the duty of enforcing such laws would become corrupt, the guilt lying infinitely more with the laws than with the officers of the law. However, such a shift would rescue the police force from this debauching work, and it is to the police that we must look for the protection of life and property, the maintenance of law and order.

"The other point in which change is needed is in the matter of the Police Commissioner's tenure of office. In New York he is a mere bird of passage, usually flying so fast that the men under him hardly have time to determine his species. This is fundamental. The policeman feels that he must hedge all the time; he does not know how soon he may be called on to enforce a totally different policy."

President J. Horace McFarland and Secretary Richard Watrous, both of Harrisburg, Penn., were re-elected at the election of officers of the American Civic Association.

GETTYSBURG VETERANS DINE.

Gen. Sickles Tells How He Disobeyed Orders to Get in the Fight.

The sare of the Eleventh Army Corps and Gen. O. O. Howard in Gettysburg was discussed last night at the annual dinner of the Eleventh Army Corps' Association of the Army of the Potomac at the Cafe Martin. A silent toast was drunk to the memory of the General and taps were sounded on the bugle as the veterans took their seats.

Major Gen. Daniel E. Sickles defended the reputation of the corps. He was in command of the Third Army Corps, some miles from Gettysburg, when he was attacked, with orders from Gen. Meade to hold his position till he lost his last man. But as the sound of Gen. Howard's guns came to him and he received messages asking his help, he marched on the firing.

"That disobedience of Gen. Meade's orders," he said, "I consider to be one of the best things I ever did, and the General approved of it, too, when I reported it."

The General denied that the first day of Gettysburg went in favor of the Confederates.

"At any rate," said Gen. Sickles, "the Union Army secured that day the ridge which gave it the victory later. I ought to know something about it. I was there."

"There's a part of you there yet," called out some one, referring to the General's loss of his leg at the battle.

Of the 100 who sat down at the dinner a large number were the sons of former members of the Eleventh Corps, most of whom are now dead.

BALLINGER'S RECORD IS ATTACKED AGAIN

FAVORS GIVEN TO RAILWAYS

Pinchot Denies That He Threatened to Resign if Taft Retained Ballinger in the Cabinet.

Additional fuel is being added to the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy by John L. Mathews, who has been one of the leaders in the conservation movement. Mr. Mathews reiterates in an article in the December number of Hampton's Magazine that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger is friendly to the railroads and to the "coal land grabbers" of Alaska.

As for the railroads, Mr. Mathews says that the Des Chutes River, in Oregon, has long been sought after by the Hill interests and the Harriman interests, which wished the right of way along its banks. They were blocked, however, by President Roosevelt. Mr. Mathews says:

"At President Roosevelt's instigation, Secretary of the Interior Garfield made an investigation and discovered that the proposed railways would ruin the water power of the Des Chutes without any adequate return to the people. He therefore refused to grant the right of way until it should be so resurveyed that the railway tracks would be above the level of the necessary dams and reservoirs to develop the country.

"The railroads refused to spend the money necessary to put their roadbeds higher up, played 'possum during the last days of Roosevelt, and waited until his successor came into office. That happened on March 4, 1909. Their waiting was well rewarded. Within three weeks after he became Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Ballinger signed and approved the rights of way of the rival railway constructors. He approved them, notwithstanding the fact that the rights of way conflicted with each other, without ruling on which side of the river they should go, without requiring that their conflicting locations be resurveyed. Also he approved them without taking any measures whatever to preserve to the people of Oregon the enormous public resource contained in the running water. Mr. Ballinger was custodian of the banks of the river. He gave away this valuable property in such wise that its use will wreck the great heritage of the people of Oregon.

Power Rights Not Preserved.

"Before the invasion of the Des Chutes I called upon Secretary Ballinger in Washington and asked him if it were true that he had granted these permits. He was at first vexed that the matter was out, but quickly recovered himself.

"'The permits are not granted, but they will be at once,' he said.

"'Is any reservation made about water power?' I asked.

"'Only that at one point if the Government ever desires to put in a dam the railroads must raise their tracks 100 feet.'

"'What is your object in giving in to the railroads and letting them destroy this water power?'

"Mr. Ballinger is not a large man. He has been questioned and quizzed about his troubles over conservation until he is no longer able to control his temper. He stepped away from his desk and paced rapidly up and down his office.

"'See here, you don't understand this thing,' he said. 'You chaps who are in favor of this conservation programme are all wrong. You are hindering the development of the West. These railroads are necessary to the country. And, more than that, this whole big domain is a blanket—it is oppressing the people. The thing to do with it'—and here he stopped and faced me—'in my opinion, the proper course to take with regard to this domain is to divide it up among the big corporations and the people who know how to make money out of it—and let the people at large get the benefit of the circulation of the money.'"

Mr. Ballinger, in Washington last night, referring to Mr. Matthews's account of his talk with the Secretary, said: "The alleged interview is false in every particular, every word of it."

As for the Alaskan coal lands affair, Mr. Mathews says that Mr. Ballinger, before and after his occupancy of the office of Land Commissioner, was attorney for the Alaska Petroleum and Coal Company, and that the most serious charges made against Ballinger are in connection with various of these Alaskan coal claims.

Urged Passage of Act.

"He took no action on the claims of his clients," Mr. Mathews continues, "while he was Commissioner, but his appearance in Washington was immediately followed by the turning of Roosevelt's attention to the question of Alaska coal lands and a message to Congress asking that corporations be permitted to patent considerably larger areas. Ballinger appeared before the Committee on Public Lands for the House of Representatives and urged the passage of such an act. In referring to the Clark Davis situation, including the Alaska Petroleum and Coal Company claims, he stated that to his own knowledge the men concerned had been guilty of merely technical violation of the law.

"In the year 1907 a law was passed and presented to the President, but it was destined to get no further. While it was pending before President Roosevelt, however, Mr. Ballinger was actively at work for it.

"Meetings were held in Seattle, at which men prominent in Northwestern business and political circles were present. Mr. Ballinger was moved to leave his desk in the National capital and go to Seattle and there meet with the conferrees. These men used their influence in urging James Garfield, then Secretary of the Interior, to aid in securing the signing of the bill.

"Mr. Ballinger's friends in Seattle have assured me that they could see nothing improper in his thus pushing the claims of his former clients against the very department of the Government with which he was officially connected. Indeed, some of his friends explained his praticipation to me—and they could see no objection to the situation—by the statement that Mr. Ballinger is, or has been, financially interested in 155,000 shares of the stock of the Alaska Petroleum and Coal Company."

NO PINCHOT ULTIMATUM.

Forester Denies Report That He Carried Dispute to Taft.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—"The story that I have issued an ultimatum to the President, like the recent 'conspiracy' story, is merely a silly fabrication. Of course I have done nothing of the kind, nor anything that could be twisted into that meaning. The President was good enough to express his satisfaction with my work, and I am going ahead with it."

Gifford Pinchot, the Government's Chief Forester, in a statement issued to-day, thus disposed of the reports published this morning that he had sent a letter to the President threatening to resign if Secretary Ballinger remained in the Cabinet.

Secretary Ballinger, after a call at the White House, said that he had merely taken up routine departmental matters with the President. Mr. Ballinger is content with the situation and has made no recommendations to the President as to any action he should take regarding the controversy.

"SPIRITS" AT COLUMBIA.

Law Student Gives a Seance and Performs Some of Paladino's Tricks.

A controversy about Eusapia Paladino was waxing hot in the Law School locker room at Columbia University about 2 o'clock yesterday when C. Hershenstein of 241 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, came along. Being of an inquisitive disposition, Hershenstein listened for a while and then somebody was heard to say, "Eusapia is a fake." Hershenstein took umbrage at the remark, following it up with, "She's not a fake; I ought to know. And in proof of this if you'll come over to Earl Hall with me I'll do some of the stunts you say cannot be done." All adjourned to Earl Hall, where the party of ten was soon grouped around a table.

His listeners, a little astounded at this assertion, were inclined at first to treat the whole matter as a huge joke. But Hershenstein was serious and all adjourned to Earl Hall, where the party of ten was soon grouped around a table.

After making some mystic passes the student medium shouted, "Rise, table." And the table tilted to one side with two of its legs clearing the floor. Some of those present declared that strict watch was kept on Hershenstein all the time, and it was certain that he did not in any manner exert physical pressure either below or above board.

According to one of those present the table in reply to Hershenstein's query as to how many objects there were emitted three loud raps. All this was in daylight.

FACES THREE INDICTMENTS.

Woman Long Pursued by the County Medical Society Held in Heavy Bail.

As the result of the three Grand Jury indictments charging her with malpractice, Mrs. Louisa Wagner was arraigned before Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday and committed to the Tombs in default of $15,000 bail. This is only half the amount asked by Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who said that in the light of the woman's record $10,000 on each of the three indictments would be none too much to insure her appearance for trial.

Mrs. Wagner, better known of late as Mrs. Joerns, had a house which she called a hospital, at 247 East Fifty-seventh Street, until the place was raided on Oct. 13 by detecties in the service of the County Medical Society, for which District Attorney-elect Whitman is counsel. The woman furnished $5,000 bail in the Yorkville police court. Three women found in the house were taken to Bellevue Hospital until they could appear before the Grand Jury. Out of their testimony, given a few days ago, came the three indictments.

The woman's interrupted business has supported her for more than twenty years, during which time she has come into frequent collision with the authorities. Mr. Garvan, in urging the higher bail, pointed out that she had already forfeited one bond, and that four convictions stood against her together with two terms in the penitentiary and one trial for manslaughter.

FIVE YEARS FOR $162 THEFT.

Henry Kanne, a Casualty Adjuster, Guilty of Keeping Part of $250 Claim.

Henry Kanne of 110 West 143d Street was convicted of grand larceny before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday. As adjuster for the Maryland Casualty Company of 100 William Street, he received $250 on June 15, 1909, to settle a claim between one of its clients and Edward Rogan of 278 Humboldt Street, Brooklyn. He returned with a full release, purporting to have been signed by Rogan, who, as appeared later, had received only $88.

Kanne was charged with retaining the remainder, while the alleged forgery of Rogan's name was allowed to pass over. He made the mistake of telling the court that he had never been convicted before, whereas the records showed that he was released on suspended sentence in February, 1905, for attempted forgery. Judge Malone sentenced him immediately to five years in Sing Sing.

SENDS SWEETHEART TO JAIL.

Girl Says Broken Promise Over a Missing Diamond Has Boken Her Heart.

John F. Ledwith, a salesman, of 738 Seventh Avenue, was held in $1,000 bail for trial on a charge of grand larceny in Jefferson Market Court yesterday. His fiancee, Beatrice Jetel, of 531 East Seventy-second Street, was the complainant. She said that on Oct. 9 Ledwith took her diamond ring, worth $64, from her under pretext of having it reset with another diamond, and that she had never been able to get the ring back.

"But we are engaged," remonstrated the prisoner.

"You have broken your faith and also my heart," replied Miss Jetel. "I'll have nothing more to do with you."

CONSTIPATION

LABOR FEDERATION STANDS BY BOYCOTT

Convention Adopts Strong Resolutions Urging Its Use When Other Means Fail.

MITCHELL UPHOLDS THEM

Declares That Term in Jail Will Not Cause Him to Recede from Assertion of Constitutional Rights.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—Indorsing a report of the Committee on Boycott, John Mitchell, one of the three officers of the American Federation of Labor under sentence for contempt of court, in a dramatic speech to the convention of that organization at the close of its session to-day, declared that as far as he was concerned, regardless of consequences, he intended, while at liberty, to declare for the rights guaranteed him by the organic laws of his country. The report which drew forth Mitchell's speech and which was adopted by the convention, said:

> We say that when your cause is just and every other remedy has been employed without result, boycott; we say that when the employer has determined to exploit not only adult male labor, but our women and children, and our reasoning and appeal to his fairness and his conscience will not sway him, boycott; we say that when labor has been oppressed, browbeaten, and tyrannized, boycott; we say that when social and political conditions become so bad that ordinary remedial measures are fruitless, boycott; and finally, we say we have a right to boycott and we propose to exercise that right. In the application of this right of boycott, to paraphrase the President, (Gompers,) we propose to strive on and on.

"I want the people of the United States to know my position," said Mr. Mitchell. "I shall not speak defiantly, but be the consequences what they will. I shall not surrender any right guaranteed to me by the Constitution of our country. I am not sure how much mental and physical suffering will be necessary to make me submit, but if I know myself, not any amount of suffering will persuade me that I have not the right to spend my money where I please or that I have not the right to write and speak as I please, being responsible under the law for my acts.

"I understand that cognizance is being taken at Washington of the utterance of men on the floor of this convention, and I want clearly to state my position. I propose in the future, as I have in the past, to exercise the rights secured to me by the fathers of my country, and I propose if I am sent to jail to declare again when I come out that I shall not for myself purchase any product of the Bucks Stove and Range Company. I make this declaration not to tickle the ear of any man, but that I may publicly declare the conviction that is within me."

The convention broke into loud cheers for Mitchell when he had concluded, and there were cries of "Morrison!" but the Secretary did not respond. President Gompers was not present.

The Wrapper Doesn't Touch the Edge of Durham-Duplex Blades

That is why they are sharper than the interchangeable blades of other razors. Other blades may be given a sharp edge at the factory, but it is dulled by contact with the wrapper before you use the blades.

The edge of Durham-Duplex Blades cannot come in contact with the wrapper, because the blades are hung suspended in their patented protective folder, by means of little tabs passing through the slit in the center of each blade; and thus their keen edge is preserved. These blades are made of the highest grade Swedish steel.

Men's and Youth's Clothing

Fifth Floor.

Men's Suits	$14.75	to	$39.75
Youth's Suits	$14.75	to	$24.75
Men's Overcoats	$14.75	to	$44.75
Youth's Overcoats	$9.94	to	$22.75

A glance at the foregoing gives the range of our four great Clothing divisions. We are afraid to experiment with lower prices, and no practical reason exists for us to have them higher than the other extreme.

It's like this: If we handled Men's Suits and Overcoats that could be sold under $14.75 our claims would necessarily be too meagre and commonplace to carry conviction. There would be no justification for us to emphasize either quality or style. Such Clothing—possessing no special merit—would scarcely win your special preference.

Knowing the character of our Clothing as well as we do, we have no hesitation in urging you to buy it, and our guarantee of its excellence involves not the slightest risk at all. We refuse to sell Clothing that will not completely sustain all we say of it.

We have some values to-day that are exceptional.

Men's $18.00 Suits at $14.75

Men's Sack Suits, made of fancy cheviots and cassimeres—single-breasted styles—conservative and extreme effects—lined with worthy serge. We tell you they are worth $18.00. But that's stating it rather mildly—$20.00 would be nearer the truth.

The Suits we sell at $34.75 are the Suits others sell at $40.00. We don't just say they are—BUT WE STATE A FACT THAT HAS BEEN COMPLETELY PROVEN.

Men's $18.00 Overcoats at $14.75

These are real Winter Overcoats, made of all-wool cheviots and kerseys in black or Oxford gray and attractive stripes in lighter colorings. Some of the models are 52 inches long, finished with military collars; others—44 inches long—are Chesterfields—shoulders lined with satin, bodies with pure worsted or serge.

Men's $30.00 Overcoats at $24.75

Men's Dress Overcoats, made of high-grade black and dark gray kersey, lined with Farmer's satin; others of fine black cheviots—Chesterfield models—full chested—lined with rich silk.

Overcoats at $24.75—Cambridge Gray Cheviot—relieved by white hairline stripes faintly marking the surface two inches apart. They are 52 inches long—which is the popular length; sleeves lined with satin; body with serge.

The collars are a feature of these Coats. Convertible. May be turned up to form military effect—fitting closely around neck—or adjusted in regulation fashion with one or both lapels lying flat and buttoning. Similar qualities are sold elsewhere at $30.00; our price, $24.75.

Others on the same line, $16.75 and $19.75.

We'd like to hold up this Tourist Coat at $24.75. Made of fuzzy camel's hair plaids, with modest gray and subdued green predominating. Loose-fitting, double-breasted model, extra long, soft-roll collar that buttons close or lies flat.

The description doesn't give a real picture of this Coat. It is a smart affair—nobby—what the French call "chic"—has an air to it that is unmistakable. Sold elsewhere at $30.00; our price $24.75.

Fur-lined Overcoats at $49.75

Black Kersey, lined with natural muskrat—whole skins well matched, large Persian lamb collar.

It is the greatest value in Fur-lined Overcoats ever offered in New York. Sold elsewhere at $65.00; our price $49.75.

Others at higher prices—up to Mink-lined Overcoats at $289.50.

BALFOUR COMES OUT FOR TARIFF REFORM

Unionist Leader Admits Protection Is the Only Alternative to Lloyd-George's Budget.

UPHOLDS HOUSE OF LORDS

While Not Co-equal with Commons, It Should Have Power to Force an Appeal to the Country.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A striking point in Mr. Balfour's speech at a great meeting at Manchester to-night was the admission that tariff reform is the only practical alternative to Chancellor Lloyd-George's budget—an important admission, which seems to indicate that the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons has at last been won over to acceptance of tariff reform as a plank in the Unionist platform.

The rest of the speech was mainly a repetition of Mr. Balfour's previous denunciation of the budget and a special appeal to his audience, on the ground that protection would be especially beneficial to the cotton industry, which was seriously threatened by European, American, and Japanese competition and the growing difficulty of obtaining sufficient supplies of raw material. He contended that German and American prosperity had grown up contemporaneously with the imposition of high protective duties.

Mr. Balfour argued that while the House of Lords was no longer co-equal wth the House of Commons, it would be fatal to the country's institutions if it were deprived of the power to say that some matters were so grave as to necessitate an appeal to the country, and he asserted that the main function of the second chamber was to see that the Government of the country was a popular Government.

Mr. Balfour's speech satisfies his followers, inasmuch as it adopts tariff reform as the party cry, but it cannot be regarded as an election manifesto since it fails to define what he means by tariff reform. As to his exact views on the subject he was silent, except to say that he would not touch tariff reform "if it were to increase the ordinary cost of living of the working classes."

Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Education, speaking at Hull to-night, made the important announcement in behalf of the Government that it would refuse to entertain any negotiations for compromise with the peers on the budget.

Beyond this announcement, all is conjecture regarding the development of the political situation. Some promient Liberals are still of the opinion that Premier Asquith will resign on the rejection of the budget. Others believe that he will ask the King to create a large body of Liberal peers, recalling that the Irish Church Disestablishment bill was allowed to pass the Lords on Gladstone's threat to create new peers.

The Liberals in the election campaign will evidently concentrate their whole attack on the House of Lords, in which they will have the energetic assistance of the Irish Party. John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Party, speaking in Dublin to-night, declared that they refused to throw themselves into the arms of the tariff reformers or to back up the House of Lords, Ireland's deadly enemies. The Nationalists had long prayed, he said, to be able to strike a blow at the Lords.

HONDURAN NAVY STILL AFLOAT

Famous Tug Reported Safe at Anchor After Rumored Battle.

MOBILE, Nov. 17.—The Honduran navy did not sink, but is afloat and intact, according to Capt. Boe of the steamer Columbia, which arrived here to-day from Puerto Cortez. The Captain says he saw the ancient, but far-famed tug Ta Tumbla, which constitutes the navy, at anchor in Puerto Cortez harbor.

La Tumbla was reported sunk about a week ago.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17.—Gen. Manuel Bonilla, former President of Honduras, who was deposed in 1906, is fitting out an expedition to assist Gen. Estrada, leader of the revolutionary forces, according to reports in the Latin-American colony here.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Nicaraguan revolutionists have seized and impressed into their service the steamer Dictator, which belongs to the Bluefields Company, and has been in the fruit-carrying trade between New Orleans and Bluefields.

This information was received by the State Department to-day. The Dictator, which flies the Norwegian flag, is said to be owned by an American company. The vessel sailed from New Orleans Nov. 8 to Bluefields.

The new Nicaraguan Minister, Isidoro Hazera, representing the Zelaya Government, was formally presented to the Secretary of State to-day.

The State Department has been officially advised by the Nicaraguan Government that the insurgent blockade of Greytown has been broken, and that the port is now open to commerce.

Advices from President Zelaya to the Nicaraguan Minister here report that Gen. Romero was killed in the battle before Greytown, and Gen. Pedro Fornos Diaz, another revolutionary leader, was seriously wounded. The insurgents, according to these advices, are in retreat toward Bluefields, with the Government troops in close pursuit. The legation was also informed that Gen. Chamorro had gone to Costa Rica with Government prisoners who had been held at Bluefields.

LECTURES FOR SOCIETY.

Miss Anne Morgan Arranging a Series to Begin in January.

Under the patronage and direction of Miss Anne Morgan a series of ten weekly lectures will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria, beginning about Jan. 11. The subjects to be taken up, as well as the names of the lectures, will be announced shortly by Miss Elisabeth Marbury, who is assisting Miss Morgan in the preparation of the series.

The subscribers are said to be women prominent in society, who will assemble each week in one of the rooms at the hotel. The series will be given to an exclusive audience, as the subscription list is said to have been cut down to a limited number.

No information could be obtained at the Waldorf-Astoria regarding the series. Miss Morgan, however, confirmed the report that the lectures were to be given, but referred all inquiries to Miss Marbury. When Miss Marbury was seen she said that the preparations for the series were not far enough advanced to give out the subject matter of the lectures for each week consecutively, nor the lecturers.

On Tuesday morning Miss Morgan attended a lecture on parliamentary law and procedure at the Colony Club, with thirty other members, the lecturer being Mrs. Urquhart-Lee of London, who is recognized as an eminent woman parliamentarian. The series at the Waldorf-Astoria, however, it is believed, will include subjects along the trend of modern drama and literature.

JAPAN'S TREATY GAME.

Protocol of 1905 with China Estops Us from Objecting to New Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—While the acceptance on the part of this Government of the Japanese-Chinese agreement of Sept. 4 refers specifically only to Article 4 of that agreement, dealing with mining rights in South Manchuria, this Government, it can be stated, accepts the whole agreement, and contemplates neither protests nor inquiries as to its other articles. The most important of these articles, after that concerning the mining situation, is Article 1, which concedes to Japan the right of consultation and, logically, the right to veto concerning China's possible railway building plans between Hsinmintun and Fakumen.

This carries Japan's sphere of influence quite a number of miles further west than has heretofore been considered hers. It gives Japan the right to veto Chinese plans for railroad construction between those points on any pretext, and to direct in an inconspicuous way the extent to which foreign capital shall be allowed to participate in the proposed construction.

Japan laid the foundation for her present move as far back as 1905. In that year she induced China to enter into a secret protocol in which the Chinese Government pledged itself not to parallel or compete with the Japanese line known as the South Manchurian Railway. While the existence of this protocol was slow in becoming known to the public there is reason to believe that in the case of nations sure to learn of it eventually, and to be interested in it, Japan smoothed the way by making in advance confidential disclosures of the terms of the protocol.

The delicate situation treated of in the protocol at a time so close to the signing of the Portsmouth Treaty with its open door declarations was handled so well by Japan and so meekly by China that when the protocol finally became public property it had already run along for some time without protest. There has never been a protest against it, and though this Government has never formally recognized it, it has in a way become tacitly recognized by sheer lapse of time.

Whatever advantage this article will give Japan as opposed to other powers interested in Manchurian exploitation remains to be seen. It is considered possible, though this cannot be stated definitely, that it may jeopardize the proposed line running from the coast to Chinchufu up to the Trans-Siberian junction at Tsitsihar. That was originally a British project, though a rebuff experienced in the earlier negotiations induced the British financiers to admit some American capital into a sort of syndicate.

GIRLS TRADED FOR OPIUM.

One for an Ounce the Price in Portion of Philippines.

MANILA, Nov. 17.—The natives of Sarangani, a group of islands to the south of Mindanao Island, are offering in barter young girls each for one ounce of opium, according to W. S. Lyon, a horticulturalist, who returned to-day from a trip through the south coast of Mindanao. Mr. Lyon is engaged in securing specimens of tropical fruits for the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

He reports that there is a considerable traffic in opium in South Mindanao carried on by way of Palm Island. The Government cutters visit that district occasionally, but they are few and lacking in facilities to suppress the traffic. Mr. Lyon secured a new fruit called balun, which he asserts is superior to the mango and the mangosteen.

The United States Pacific fleet, under Rear Admiral Sebree, has begun target practice in Manila Bay. This practice and manoeuvres will occupy the rest of the month.

Judge Powell has completed at Jolo the trials of the remaining members of Bandit Jikiri's band who participated in the fight at Patian in which the leader was killed and his followers were killed or made captives by United States cavalry. Five of the bandits were sentenced to life imprisonment, five to twenty-five years' imprisonment, twenty-five to twenty years, and five to six years each.

NO RIVAL ISTHMIAN CANAL.

Chilean Engineer Abandons Project to Compete with That at Panama.

FACATATIVA, Colombia, Nov. 17.—Luis Arturo Undurraga, the Chilean engineer, has definitely determined to abandon his efforts to obtain from the Colombian Government a concession for his canal project, owing to the fear entertained by Colombia of reprisals on the part of the United States. Undurraga had a notion to construct a rival to the Panama Canal.

President Valencia is making a desperate effort to have Congress adjourn sine die, but the Senate is determined to reconvene in February and may then elect a President.

Paxton P. Hibben, Secretary to the American Legation at Bogota, has left suddenly for Washington without making known here the reason for his departure.

LONGWORTH DENIES STORY ABOUT WIFE

Says Incidents in Korea Described in German Woman's Book Never Happened.

DOES NOT RECALL AUTHOR

Thinks She May Have Confused Members of Taft Party with Others—Former Alice Roosevelt Amused.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth denied to-day statements made in a book by Fraulein Emma Kroebel, just published in Berlin, as cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, regarding the actions of Mrs. Longworth, daughter of ex-President Roosevelt, during her visit to Korea before her marriage.

"The woman who wrote that stuff was either drunk or crazy, or both," he said. "I think that will convey to the public the impression I am under that she has falsified."

He denied that Mrs. Longworth had ever sat astride the sacred elephant of the Koreans, had ever refused to thank the Emperor of Korea for his hospitality, or had ridden through the streets of the capital arrayed in anything like the costume described by Fraulein Kroebel, with a cigar stuck in her mouth. His statement follows:

"In the first place, I can't remember very well just what sort of a thing that sacred elephant was, but I presume it was an idol, and as such ought to be held in respect by all visitors. We certainly treated it in that light. Neither Mrs. Longworth nor myself can remember the idol. I know she did not ride about the capital city in a 'scarlet riding habit, beneath the lower extremities of which peeped tight-fitting red riding breeches stuck in glittering boots.' Such talk is all rot.

"It is untrue that she brandished a riding whip in her hand. The same can be said of the statements that Mrs. Longworth then rode to the sacred elephant, jumped upon its back, and asked me to take her picture. I cannot conceive of anybody writing such trash. Even if it were true, what would be the good of it?

"I have tried hard to remember just who this Fraulein Kroebel is, but I can't for the life of me bring her to mind. If there is anybody else who can remember any such occurrences, I should like to have them tell of them.

"The party was a large one, including President Taft, who was then Secretary of War. We traveled quickly, and stayed not very long in any one place. It may be that Fraulein Kroebel got us confused with some other party of tourists, but I think it is at least very ungracious of her to say what she has about Mrs. Longworth."

The reporter tried to see Mrs. Longworth, but the Congressman told him of the rule which prevails at the residence and elsewhere—that Mrs. Longworth is never to be seen by interviewers under any conditions or at any time. He said that Mrs. Longworth had a good laugh at the statements made in the book.

Count de Beaufort of London, who recently arrived here, bringing with him a new breed of bull mastiff, which has attracted considerable attention among dog fanciers, said yesterday that next year he intended to open a kennel on Long Island. The Count and Countess will leave to-day for a short visit in Chicago, returning to the Hotel Netherland in December, where they will reside.

Lords Pass Irish Land Bill.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Irish Land bill was passed in the House of Lords to-night with some change in the amendments recently proposed by the Lords, to which the House of Commons refused to agree.

HIGGINS AND GUESTS SAFE.

All but One of the Varuna's Crew Also Accounted For.

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Nov. 17.—Eugene Higgins, his guests, and all but one of the crew of the yacht Varuna, which was wrecked on the northwest coast of the island at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, have been accounted for to-day.

When the Varuna struck boats were lowered, and Mr. Higgins and his guests were landed at Ponta Delgada Tuesday night. Other boats reached Puerto Moniz and San Vicente, on the north coast. Still another boat was picked up by a passing steamer and brought here this morning.

Nothing was saved from the yacht.

The Varuna was rendered helpless and driven ashore by the storm striking on the rockbound coast from which arise high cliffs, broken here and there by small bays.

wrecked persons found their way and reached the villages located on the several storm-protected inlets. A few of the crew remained on the shore in the vicinity of the wreck, but the others of the party retired to the villages, where they were housed and fed.

The sea was still running high to-day and the Varuna was pounding hard on the rocks. In spite of her steel structure the vessel appears to be doomed.

The Varuna was one of the most palatial steam yachts afloat. She was built in the shipyards of A. and J. Inglis on the Clyde and was designed by G. L. Watson. She was launched in the Fall of 1896. The yacht measured 260 feet in length at the water line and 300 feet over the figurehead. She was built of steel throughout and was equipped with twin screws and two sets of triple expansion engines. Part of the Varuna's after cabin was fitted up as bachelor quarters. It contained a parlor, clubroom, gymnasium, fencing room and library, which had an area of 187 square feet. The books in the library were valued at many thousands of dollars.

Since the boat was launched Mr. Higgins has spent most of his time cruising about the world in it. The boat spent nearly every Winter in the Mediterranean and the Summer around Newport and the Maine coast.

The Varuna, with Mr. Higgins and several guests on board, left this city on Nov. 2, and three days later arrived at Bermuda. She left Hamilton, Bermuda, on Nov. 7, bound for Maderia from where the party intended to proceed to Gibraltar and the Mediterranean. Mr. Higgins is fifty-one years old. He inherited most of his fortune from his father and has often been referred to as the wealthiest bachelor in America.

SIR THOMAS GOES HOME.

Reasserts His Intention to Challenge for a Yacht Race in 1911.

Sir Thomas Lipton sailed yesterday on the Lusitania. Just before sailing he said:

"I will challenge for a race in 1911. It will be impossible to get a boat ready before that time. I am to race on the English and Irish coasts next season.

"I am sure the New York Yacht Club will give the matter full consideration. I believe they are just as anxious as anybody else for a race. They are good sportsmen. I am fully aware they will do the right thing."

"What about the change of rules?" was asked the owner of the Shamrocks.

"If the New York yachtsmen will insist on a challenge under the present rules—they are so hard—I would stand no chance to win, and that would not be sport. I shall issue my challenge with the largest type of boat to conform so far as possible with their ideas."

Among those who went down to see Sir Thomas depart were Commodore Robert E. Todd of the Atlantic Yacht Club, Commodore Wilson Marshall of the Larchmont Yacht Club, Commodore J. H. Flagler of the American Yacht Club, ex-Commodore R. A. C. Smith of the Larchmont Yacht Club, and ex-Commodore F. G. Bourne of the New York Yacht Club.

A Heavy Price

Thousands of coffee-drinkers have voluntarily written us that they paid the heavy price of Sleeplessness—Heart Troubles—Shaky Nerves—Stomach Troubles—Headaches—Indigestion, Etc.—And that the change from coffee to

POSTUM

Has brought them Sound Sleep, Steady Nerves, Good Digestion, Clear Brains, Strong Hearts, Comfort and Health.

Why?

Coffee certainly does destroy the soft gray filling in the nerve centres and brain.

When that goes far enough you feel it—

Nervousness, heart trouble, sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, or some form of ailment caused by a shattered nervous system.

Keep at the coffee until you prove it.

Then if you value comfort from sturdy health on properly built nerve cells quit coffee and take on POSTUM.

Then you quickly begin the rebuilding and no one need tell you.

YOU KNOW IT.

The elements are in Postum that Nature demands.

COFFEE THE CAUSE Of Various Ailments.

It does not require a scientist to discover that coffee is harmful.

Plain common sense and the simple habit of looking for the cause of things, soon reveal coffee in its true light—that of a habit-forming drug.

"My family on both sides were confirmed coffee topers," writes a Penna. man, "and we suffered from nervousness, headache, sleeplessness, dizziness, and palpitation of the heart.

"Medical treatment never seemed to do any permanent good. I thought there must be some cause for these troubles, and yet did not find it was coffee until I was forty-one.

"Hearing of the benefit that many had derived from changing to Postum, I quit coffee and used Postum entirely. Now I am like a new man.

"I sleep well, can eat three good meals a day, have no headache nor palpitation, no nerve twitching in my face, and I don't have to pay out hard-earned money for medicines.

"That's my experience, anyway."

PAVLOWSKI LOST IN STOCKS.

Operated in the Market Besides Gambling at a Paris Club.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—I learn to-day that Herr Bothas Paulos Pavlowski, the former General Agent of the North German Lloyd in Paris, who committed suicide in Bremen on Nov. 2, had not only lost large sums at a gambling club but had also speculated heavily and unsuccessfully in the stock market.

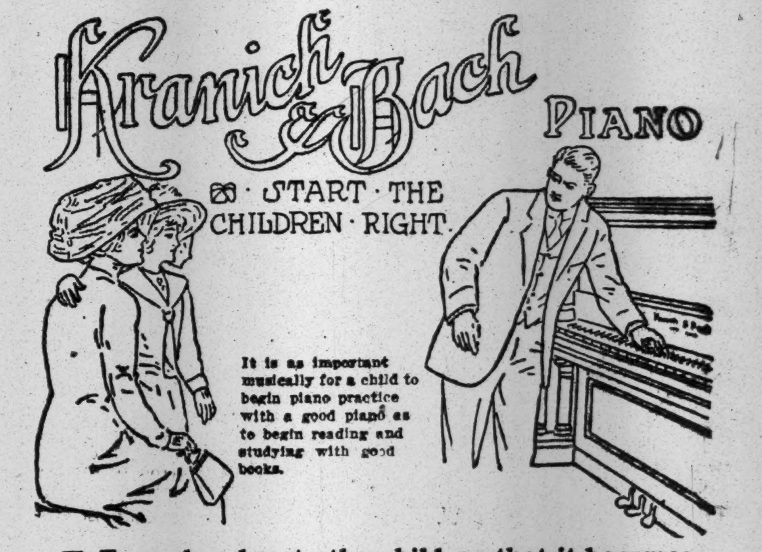
The North German Lloyd has issued an official statement that the deficit of $20,000 in its Paris office was fully covered by insurance.

GUBATA EXONERATES WIFE.

Admits Swindling, but Says She Believed Him Son of Archduke.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The man Gubata, who with his wife, was arrested here on Oct. 28 charged with having fraudulently obtained $40,000 worth of jewels while they were masquerading as the "Count" and "Countess" Gubata, admitted before a Magistrate to-day that he had been convicted of swindling in San Francisco, Switzerland, and Austria.

He insisted, however, that his wife who was formerly a Mrs. Beck of New York City, had married him in good faith, believing him to be the son of Archduke Othon of Austria.



Kranich & Bach
PIANO

It is as important musically for a child to begin piano practice with a good piano as to begin reading and studying with good books.

¶ To early educate the child so that it becomes familiar with the refinements of perfect tonal quality is the first element of musical culture.

TO accustom the delicate and maturing hand of a child to the great possibilities of a properly constructed piano action not only facilitates correct technique but avoids the necessity of subsequently unlearning faults that retard correct advancement.

The Kranich & Bach Upright Pianos possess structural features that place them in a class of their own in the small group of Strictly High Grade instruments, and it is extremely important to intending piano purchasers that these exclusive improvements be investigated in the comparison of relative advantages.

SUFFRAGISTS HEAR HARVARD CRITICISED

The Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw Raps the University for Barring a Woman Law Student.

A RELIC OF PAST AGES

She Consigns to a Museum the Professors Who Opposed the Applicant's Admission.

The National Woman Suffrage Association held a mass meeting last night in Carnegie Hall. This is the third suffrage meeting to be held in the same place inside of a month, and notwithstanding the fact that all the seats were 50 cents and $1 each, only the balcony and gallery being free, the house was filled. The boxes were occupied by different associations, comparatively few being taken by individuals, and the various college club and association banners which were used for decorations made it the gayest of the three big meetings.

Among the colleges represented were Cornell and New York University, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the Jeanne d'Arc Suffrage League were among the older organizations floating their banners with the Stars and Stripes, and Robert G. Friedman, to show that he believes the woman suffrage cause to be one of peace, lent the big peace flags and pennants.

There were the "Votes for Women" flags in conspicuous places, and the four lone stars which represent the lone States where women have full suffrage were everywhere.

There was a note of menace in the speech of the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National Association and Chairman of the evening, in her address, which did not seem to agree altogether with peace flags, but Mrs. Helen Loring Grenfell of Colorado spoke so convincingly of the good done by the enfranchisement of women in her State that the Eastern women decided to wait their turn patiently and peacefully.

There were many men who came out for woman suffrage last night, giving their names as platform guests. They may not all have been present, but the platform was filled to its capacity. The large number of names of ministers, professors, and editors among the platform guests was impressive.

Fourteen Magazine Editors.

Fourteen magazine editors were there, but only three gave their names. They were John S. Phillips for the American Magazine, Roland Phillips, associate editor of the Cosmopolitan, and Norman Hapgood of Collier's.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was the honorary Chairman. She opened the meeting by saying:

"I take great pleasure in introducing to this distinguished audience—poof! there was a flashlight and a photograph was taken—the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw as Chairman of the evening."

Dr. Shaw called the audience to its feet to sing "America," the men because they were citizens and the women because they hoped to be, and Prof. Frances Squire Potter made the opening address, in which she advocated coeducational institutions, and criticised Harvard for not admitting Miss Inez Milholland to its law classes.

"That element among the Trustees and Faculty of Harvard which shut Miss Milholland out of the Law School is a relic of the Middle Ages," she said. "Some kindergartner ought to lead those gentlemen into the nearest geological museum and show them, pityingly but firmly, the fossilized remains of their Silurian ancestors. These remotely defunct mollusks, after the Silurian age was gone, could not climb up into the Devonian age, and so, squirming themselves into strange shapes, they died, and, turning to stone, became their own monuments. If these sermons in stone cannot teach these gentlemen anything, nature has decreed that they are to stay in the museum to enrich the collection."

A Maud Muller Parody.

Following this she recited a woman suffrage travesty on "Maud Muller," written by Prof. Mary Grey Peck of the National Association, which was gleefully received:

Maud Muller on a Summer's day,
Raked the meadows sweet with hay;
The Judge approved, no man said nay,
Nor how unwomanly it was
For her to stir that dried up grass.

When she had done her ten-hour stunt
She homeward went as she was wont,
And nimbly chopped the family wood,
And nimbly cooked the family food,
And fed the pigs and milked the cows,
And then repaired to bed.

We all know Maud's place was the home,
And that it's only in a pome
Such goings on as raking hay
Could be condoned in this mad way.

You brave and noble masculines
Do all the work outside the home;
And you bewitching feminines
Let none entice you thence to roam,
Stay in the house and sweep and dust,
And wash the dishes if you must.

Refuse to preach, refuse to teach,
Refuse to be a doctor peach;
Refuse to do a living thing,
Except to wear a wedding ring,
And mend and mend with all your might.

Then should we see the noble men
Of chivalry return again,
That blessed age when might and right
And all the strong men did was fight,
And all the small men did was work,
And all the great men did was shirk,
And nobody had learned to vote.

Suffrage in Colorado.

Dr. Burton Aylesworth of Denver told of the result of women voting there.

"Voting has not been a consumer of time needed in the home," he said. "To be a good mother in these days a woman is required to know enough to vote intelligently, and going twice a year to the polls exacts but four hours at most.

"Much to the surprise of the male politician, the Colorado woman has not become frenzied for office. Our women don't care to boss, they merely want to say who shall boss and how."

George Foster Peabody of the Voters' League for Woman Suffrage told the meeting that the men were going to help them get "votes for women" at the earliest possible moment and he thought it would be done quickly.

Dr. Shaw, in closing her address, which was an answer to Felix Adler's recent speech, in which he said that women should wait until the Government was cleaner and better before taking part in it, said:

"Women have waited for sixty years in this country since their first demand for the ballot. The political situation, instead of being improved, has continually grown worse, and wherever improvements have been made women have always stood by the side of men to help bring them about, and have worked at a great disadvantage.

"We feel we have waited long enough. The patience of women will not hold out forever. England has driven its women to extreme measures. Do the men of the United States seek the same result in this country? More than twenty years ago Elizabeth Cady Stanton warned the men that women would not forever endure injustice patiently. She did not threaten; she prophesied, and the prophecy is being fulfilled in England. May we hope that there shall be no necessity for it in this country."

There was a slight momentary excitement during the evening when Mrs. Stanton Blatch was telling how she and a companion watcher at the polls in the recent election were the only ones who stayed through the entire count of the votes.

"I beg your pardon, I stayed and counted votes to the very last," said Mrs. Lydia E. Oppenheimer from one of the boxes where her friends tried to pull her down into her seat.

"I am glad you did," retorted Mrs. Blatch. "Hurrah for the woman who stayed to the end!"

REIDS' FAREWELL TO CARTER.

Gives Dinner for Him—Carters Go to Windsor Castle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, assisted by his daughter, the Hon. Mrs. John Ward, gave a farewell dinner to-night at Dorchester House to J. Ridgely Carter, late Secretary of the Embassy, who will leave London shortly to take up his appointment as Minister to Servia, Roumania, and Bulgaria. Among those present were the French, Austro-Hungarian, and German Ambassadors; Sir Edward Grey, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; Lord and Lady Charles Beresford; Mrs. and Miss Carter, and the Roumanian Minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter, accompanied by their daughter, afterward left for Windsor Castle to attend a command performance of "Trilby" by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and his Majesty's company, given in honor of the King of Portugal.

Best Music Ride of the Season.

The best music ride which the Central Park Riding Academy has held this season took place last night. Not only were there a large number of riders in the opening event, but there were games and a polo match which brought interest to a large gathering of spectators. There were forty couples in the music ride, which was led by George V. Karlowski and Miss Florence Levi, and E. H. de Kieppe and Mrs. R. M. Le Cour. The evolutions were intricate, and the riders handled their mounts with skill. A novelty race was one of the features of the programme. It involved a number of "stunts," such as opening a dress suit case, riding with an umbrella, drinking a bottle of liquid, lighting a cigar, with a final lively brush to the goal. J. E. Maher took first place in the event in easy fashion, the handicaps not offering any serious obstacles to him. The polo match was between the Durland team, made up of Jack Breen, Archie Kenner, and Eddie Cohn, and the Central Park trio, composed of O. W. Coleman, N. Wilder, and J. Schweigh.

Among those present were Miss G. Sullivan, Miss R. Weiber, Mrs. T. Rapeport, Miss Baumann, Mr. and Mrs. O. Herrmann, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kloh, Mrs. N. Coone, Miss S. Docter, Miss Isabel Kahn, Miss H. M. Frank, Miss E. B. Winter, Miss B. Leffler, Miss A. Vellier, O. E. Bollin, C. M. Bowes, J. S. Casey, Dr. E. Griffith, H. Landeker, J. R. Watson, J. H. Sandford, S. Baumann, Dr. L. Kaufman, L. B. Weisl, and F. W. Smith.

Bentley Herbert Pope and Miss Madeline Teresa Kuser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kuser of this city, were married yesterday afternoon in the Waldorf-Astoria by the Rev. P. J. Duffy, assisted by the Rev. John Murphy. Mr. Kuser gave his daughter in marriage. The Misses Teresa Kuser, Juliette Lippe, Inez Barrios, Olga Rohe, Eleanor Connor, Charlotte Pope, and Loretta Kuser attended the bride. Joseph F. Lockwood was best man, and the ushers were Roy Heath, Harry Wilson, Frank Doelger, James Messier, and Stanley Pope.

WALKER—SARGENT.

Miss Elizabeth Prescott Sargent was married to William Greig Walker of Honolulu yesterday afternoon at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Sargent of 29 East Seventy-third Street, relatives and intimate friends only attending. There were no attendants. Mr. Sargent gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of white satin and point lace and the veil was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Walker, on their return from their wedding trip, will live at 780 Park Avenue.

HAMILL—M'CLARY.

Miss Ethel McClary and Alexander S. Hamill were married yesterday morning in All Saints Church, Pacific Avenue, Jersey City. The bridegroom is the head of the Hamill Iron Works in Montgomery Street and is a brother of Congressman James A. Hamill. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jennie McClary of 269 Pacific Avenue and was recently a teacher in Public School No. 13. Assemblyman James Baker and Alderman Edward Power were the ushers. The nuptial mass was performed by the Rev. Edward J. McClary, rector of St. Joseph's Church, at Milton, Penn., a brother of the bride. Another brother and student for the Roman Catholic priesthood, John C. McClary was the best man. Miss Margaret C. Hamill, a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Benjamin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Evarts Benjamin, and Alexander Dallas Bache Pratt, which was held yesterday in St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, was the occasion for the largest gathering at any wedding of the present season.

There was hardly an empty seat in the church when at 4 o'clock the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, the church rector. The chancel was decorated with white chrysanthemums and palms, and the house where the reception was held was likewise decorated with white flowers, standards of chrysanthemums, white roses, and lilies of the valley adorning the magnificent drawing room and halls.

Owing to the death of the late Henry H. Rogers, Mrs. Benjamin's father, the invitations to the house were limited to the relatives and intimate friends of the two families.

Miss Marjorie Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, who was maid of honor, wore a gown of pink satin charmeuse, veiled with embroidered chiffon, and a big pink hat.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Constance and Beatrice Pratt, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Katharine McCook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anson G. McCook, and Miss Janetta Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander. They wore violet crepe de chine, made with sashes of pinkish mauve satin. Their picture hats were trimmed with pink tulle, with a large bow of violet tulle and pink roses. Bridesmaids and maid of honor carried old-fashioned nosegays of pink rosebuds, violets, and lilies of the valley covered with violet ribbons. They also wore violets pinned to the corsage.

Mrs. Pratt, Mr. Pratt's mother, wore white satin, veiled with black thread lace. Her small black hat was trimmed with white gardenias and a black aigrette.

Mr. Pratt's best man was Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen. The ushers were Percy R. Pyne 2d, Lydig Hoyt, Malcolm D. Sloane, Courtlandt Nicoll, William Baylis, Jr., Charles D. Miller, John A. Dix, John Hone Auerbach, and Edmund P. Rogers of this city and Pierce Archer of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt will leave shortly for Virginia Hot Springs. Later they will go to Staatsburg, N. Y., for a stay of a few weeks, returning to visit Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin in New York for a month before Mrs. Benjamin sails for a long trip abroad in February.

You Cannot Make Good Evaporated Milk from Mediocre Cow's Milk

Evaporation is a severe test for any milk since the more water you take out the more plainly will all impurities be in evidence.

Carnation Milk

is simply pure, rich cow's milk, with part of the water taken out.

It undergoes no treatment whatever except sterilization which enables it to retain indefinitely its original purity and flavor.

Right from the can it tastes like very rich cream. Diluted with water it tastes like the best fresh milk.

If any brand of evaporated milk has a foreign flavor or a curdled, separated look, it means that either the original milk was not good, or the process was wrong—perhaps both.

The cows from which Carnation Milk comes feed on the green-all-the-year-'round pastures of the mountainous north Pacific coast, and drink the pure snow water of the mountain streams. They give the richest, purest milk in the world. That's why Carnation Milk tastes different.

"Carnation Milk—the Modern Milkman"

MILK BREAD.—Heat moderately ½ cup Carnation Milk diluted with 1½ cups water, and turn it into the mixing bowl, adding one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon salt. When cool add ½ cup yeast and stir in from 3 to 4 cups flour, or enough to make a drop batter; beat thoroughly until smooth and full of air bubbles. Cover and let stand in a warm place until morning, then add enough flour to make a dough; about two quarts of flour in all will be required. Mix thoroughly, knead until smooth and elastic and will not stick to the board or hands. Let rise; when light turn it onto the floured board, and shape it into loaves with as little kneading as possible. Let rise to double its bulk; bake in a hot oven about one hour.

Talks on Teeth
BY
G. Gordon Martin
(Incorporated)

Will These Teeth Last?

There is one question which is nearly always asked of our examining dentists, viz.: "Will the Martinolar teeth last?"

A very natural question.

If they would not stand the rough usage to which most of us submit our teeth, they would be a failure—"a false front"—a veneer of teeth, "for looks only."

Those wouldn't do.

Did it ever occur to you how much you use your teeth?

Not alone three times a day at meal time, but nearly every hour between meals they are at work.

Our plan, as we have said so often before, is to follow Nature's plan as closely as possible—and provide a set of teeth that would stand the constant use which teeth are put to—useful teeth as well as ornamental.

The Martinolar method is a common sense, mechanical plan of teeth restoration without using plates or ordinary bridge work, or boring or cutting into the gums. In the exclusive practice of this method we are protected by letters patent granted by the United States and six foreign governments.

Here is a testimonial from a man whose case was desperate.

He, no doubt, wanted to know when he first came to our offices how long his new teeth would last.

Read what he says:

343 West 50th St., New York City.
Dr. G. Gordon Martin.

Dear Sirs—Replying to your letter, asking me how I am satisfied with the work you did for me, will say that I can hardly find words to express the comfort and satisfaction it has given me. If, you remember, my case was a very difficult one and I was afraid I would be compelled to wear a plate the balance of my days. I am happy to state that my teeth are now as firm and solid as nature's own, and the pyorrhea is entirely cured.

Thanking you for your kind and courteous treatment, and wishing you the success you so richly deserve, I beg, sir, to remain, Very truly yours,
JAMES CLEARY.

The above letter is only one case—we can cite hundreds of similar ones, which bear upon the lasting properties of Martinolar teeth.

If your teeth are loose or missing you should come and let our examining dentist look them over. His services are entirely free. If you can't come now, send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry," which explains the method in detail—we send it free.

Delays are dangerous—the teeth are the most important organs of the human structure and deserve good care—call or write now—to-day.

YALE STARS MUST BE WELDED INTO A TEAM

CRIMSON A POWERFUL RIVAL

Neutral Class Believes Game Saturday Will Be Greatest Ever Fought Between Blue and Crimson.

There are at least three viewpoints from which to look forward to next Saturday's Yale-Harvard football game, and every one of them is interesting in itself. Two, naturally comprise the opinions of Yale men and Harvard enthusiasts. Then comes that of the strictly neutral person—if there can be any such being where the outcome of a big football game is concerned—who wants to see a spirited, evenly contested struggle regardless of who is evolved the victor.

The views of the first two classes can be put in the class of the interesting—if true. That is to say, they are so warped by the wish that is father to the thought that one hesitates to accept them until they have been carefully analyzed and at least 50 per cent. discounted. Logically, Yale men can see nothing but a Blue victory ahead. Just as firmly do the loyal sons of Harvard foresee nothing but a glorious triumph over their legendary foes, a sort of matitutinal, al fresco cakewalk, with Old Eli paying the piper the while Johnny Harvard disports himself.

To the man up a tree—and that is exactly the position of the third, or neutral, class—the game which is scheduled for Saturday is going to be the greatest in point of desperate, prolonged, and never-say-die fighting that has ever been contested between the Blue and the Crimson. He has tradition in some measure to back up this belief, for while Yale has the great preponderance of the games safely stowed in her locker she has always known that she has been in a good scrap before the coveted championship ball was hung in the gymnasium trophy case at New Haven. But more than tradition, the work of both elevens this year warrants and supports the belief that it is a case of Greek meeting Greek Saturday, with the chances slightly in favor of the Blue.

Taken individually and on paper the Harvard team has been made by some to appear slightly inferior to the Yale eleven. But paper comparisons never have been established as a rule to win football games by and anyhow to offset this apparent advantage for the Blue, there is team work of such high class in that Crimson aggregation, such helping of the runner in every play—not, as with Yale, in isolated cases—such splendid morale, that if Old Eli wins on Saturday it will be because eleven individual stars have been welded into a star eleven. Unless Yale's team play improves by a hundred per cent. over that shown against Princeton, and unless the attack is driven home and not stopped on some five-yard mark, because of a lineman blocking the hole, Yale is going to get some bumps at the Stadium that she will never forget.

At the door of "new" football may be laid much of the doubt about the outcome, but against Yale's adoption of the "new" game should be mentioned the very consistent and successful development of a line attack at Harvard. Whether there is another Ver Wiebe among Harvard's backs is a question that can be answered only after 5 P. M. next Saturday afternoon. If Minot is able to smash outside the tackles as Ver Wiebe did in 1908—then there's trouble brewin' for Old Eli. And it must not be forgotten that what one good heavy back can be taught to do another can also. So it will not be surprising to see the open field work of Hobbs and Lilley proceed much more slowly against Harvard than it did against the Tigers. They'll be kept too busy stopping those tackle drives to be blocking many kicks or spilling plays back of the Harvard line.

It's a tradition at New Haven that Harvard has never won twice in succession from the Blue. Well, that same tradition existed with regard to Princeton just before the 1899 game. And then one little Arthur Poe upset form, tradition, hopes, and everything else Yalensian by a goal from the field in the last half minute of play, doing the unexpected as he had the year previous, when he ran the length of the field for the only touchdown of the contest. Yale undergraduates may be optimists to the extent of betting 5 to 3 on their team against Harvard, which they were doing last Saturday. But neither Yale alumni nor the public are going to bite off any such piece of fatuity as that. The Harvard team is too good to be rated as anything but an even-money proposition, and, since the contest is on the Crimson's field, even money is all that Harvard has a right to expect. It is probably all she will get, at any rate, from the discerning.

WILL CAPT. FISH PLAY?

Chief Question at Harvard Before Annual Game with Yale.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—Will Capt. Fish play against Yale on Saturday? is the unanswered question in Harvard football circles. Well-informed persons say that the sturdy leader will not start against the blue, while a large contingent of crimson followers declare he will be on the firing line, if only for a few minutes.

The report that a Chicago specialist is on the way to Cambridge to examine the captain caused much mirth among the players and coaches. The players say their leader is in good condition, and Trainer "Pooch" Donovan and Dr. Nichols, the club's physician, confirm it.

The stadium never held a more enthusiastic crowd of rooters than those that greeted the players after the secret work was over this afternoon. Undergraduates and graduates joined in showing their loyalty. Each player and coach was cheered. The practice this afternoon was light, consisting of the usual formations and punting. The gridiron was covered with hay and the men found the going slippery. Bush was at Capt. Fish's place at right tackle. To-morrow morning the eleven leaves for the Norfolk Hunt Club to stay until Saturday. The line-up was as follows:

So great is the interest in the Harvard-Yale football game this year that persons who are planning a visit to Boston next Saturday and who have not reserved accommodations will be forced to accept rooms at the smaller hotels or limit their sojourn to one day. Even then they will find it difficult to obtain food.

All rooms and tables at the leading hotels in the city have been reserved for weeks, and a round of the different hostelries to-day showed that even permanent guests would have to yield temporarily to the tired army which is expected from Cambridge within an hour after Harvard and Yale have settled the football championship in the Stadium.

The football ticket market opened yesterday on the Washington Street curb with prices unusually firm through an active demand and a meagre supply. Bids of $10, $20, and even $50 for good seats were offered, with a few recorded transactions.

WEST POINTERS AT GAME.

Cadet Football Squad Coming to See Indians Play Against Brown.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 17.—The Brown 'Varsity went through its practice to-day on a wet, muddy field in preparation for the Indian game on the Polo Grounds, New York, next Saturday.

The linemen were put through a short scrimmage and practiced breaking through and blocking punts. The backs practiced handling punts and forward passes, but the slippery ball prevented much success. Contrary to the rule of previous practices, the drop kicking drill was omitted and work for the ends substituted.

"Dan" Pryor, who arrived yesterday to take charge of the ends, gave them practice at using their hands while going down the field under kicks. The ends' weakness in this line was very evident in the Yale game, and but slight improvement was shown last Saturday against Vermont. Coaches Gammons, Conklin, Heckman, Curtis, and Pryor were present today.

Manager Jeffris announced to-night that the West Point eleven had accepted his invitation to the game, and that the whole squad of twenty-six cadets will be present.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 17.—The Carlisle Indian football practice this afternoon saw a slight let-up in the strenuousness of the redskins' efforts to prepare for the Brown game at the Polo Grounds in New York on Saturday.

The scrimmage of twenty-five minutes followed a quarter hour of signals, which were devoted to perfecting team play, in which department Coach Warner is afraid his pupils might be deficient against Brown, owing to the late changes. An important move of the Indians will be the advancing of Capt. Libby on defensive work to a half-back position, while Dupuis on defense will take the back field, having fully demonstrated last Saturday his talent for handling any kind of punts in the open field. Practically all of Carlisle's cripples are now out for practice.

The Indians leave next Tuesday for the Thanksgiving game against St. Louis University. The Indians' scrubs under Coach Windgard made a strong showing in this afternoon's scrimmage.

Pennsy Right Guard Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The University of Pennsylvania football team received another setback to-day when Lamberton, who has been playing right guard all season, left the game with a torn ligament in his shoulder. Dr. Torrey examined the big man's shoulder and announced that he would be out of the Cornell game Thanksgiving Day. Lamberton's absence from the game will be a handicap to the Pennsylvania game. Pike, who has been playing a remarkable game lately, will be used in his place.

Hutchinson continued to work at quarter back this afternoon, while Capt. Miller was used at end. It is very likely that the latter will start the game against Cornell at this position if Marks does not get into shape. The team was put through a hard signal practice and then lined up against the scrubs for half an hour of scrimmage work. The work of the team was very good, yet there was a great tendency to fumble. The 'Varsity was able to score three touchdowns on the scrubs.

AUTO RACERS WRECKED.

Robert Burman Narrowly Escapes Death at San Antonio, Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 17.—Driving his Buick racer at a terrific pace into the stretch turn to-day in the six-hour race, the closing event of the four days' automobile meet, Robert Burman narrowly escaped death, when his machine overturned and hurled him to the ground. Burman was badly shaken up and severely bruised, but not seriously injured. The car turned a complete somersault, just missing Burman when it fell to the ground.

Of the five cars which started in the race, four were wrecked or withdrawn. The Chalmers-Detroit car, driven by Ben Johnson, was awarded first prize after covering 216 miles in 4 hours and 52 minutes. The second and third prizes were pooled, and divided between Clark and Dehymel.

The race started at 11 o'clock this morning, the entrants being Barney Oldfield in a Knox car, Toby Dehymel in a Stoddard-Dayton, George Clark in a Jackson, Ben Johnson in a Chalmers-Detroit "30," and Burman in a Buick. On the fifth lap a connecting rod broke on the Knox car, and Oldfield dropped out of the race.

With the Stoddard-Dayton and Jackson cars on their 267th lap, the latter but a few lengths in the rear of the Dehymel car, the front wheel of the Stoddard-Dayton machine whirled off a hundred yards into a field. Immediately behind it was George Clark; driving the Jackson. Seeing that a fatal collision with Dehymel was imminent, Clark pointed his car straight at the high embankment and shot over it. Clark safely retained his seat in the flying Jackson as it leaped over the band and landed upright a dozen feet below the outer edge. He was not hurt.

American League Meets Here Dec. 15.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Dec. 15 has been fixed as the date for the American League's annual meeting, and it will be held in New York this year, the same as last, concurrently with the National League's business session, announced to begin on Dec. 14. As the younger league has fewer cases on its docket than its rival, it was figured it could start a day later than the National and still be in convention at the same time in the event concurrent action on any matters of importance to both leagues is found advisable.

Collegians in Cross Country Run.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Ten colleges are entered for the intercollegiate cross-country championship, which will be run in Brookline next Saturday morning, as a sort of preliminary to the Harvard and Yale football game at the Stadium in the afternoon. The colleges which will be represented are: Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Columbia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Princeton, Yale, Cornell, Michigan, Harvard, and Dartmouth. The course, which will be over a broken country, is about six miles.

BURLESQUE GAME ON YALE GRIDIRON

LEMON USED FOR FOOTBALL

Head Coach Jones Selects Team to Play Against Crimson—Daly and Vaughan Not in Lineup.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Yale's eleven has been picked for the Harvard game at Cambridge next Saturday, and the last scrimmage of the year, taken to-day on Yale field, amounted to only signal drill. It lasted an hour and combined a set of vaudeville stunts, making the last local appearance in football togs of members of the class of 1910. A burlesque eleven was formed as follows: Centre rush, Ford Johnson; guards, Fred Murphy and Ted Coy; tackles, Logan and Henry Holt; ends, "Ham" Andrus and "Buster" Brown; quarter backs, Carroll Cooney; half backs, "Dutch" Goebel and Henry Hobbs.

Cooney started play with a quarter back run, but he exceeded the speed limit and was set back twenty-five yards. A score was finally made with the lemon which was used for a football. Goebel claimed a field goal, and Andrus declared that he tossed a forward pass over the cross bar, but the score was not questioned.

The substitutes had their picturesque war dance around the gridiron, tossing their old bits of uniform, pieces of blanket, and worn out togs into a bonfire, while they circled around, singing the Omega Lamba Chi song and cheering for the 'Varsity.

Two of the guests at the practice were Johnny de Saulles, the former Yale quarter back, and Frank Bergin, the Princeton quarter back. Bergin was found to have a broken rib in the game here last Saturday, and came to his home in this city to recuperate. He was invited to see the Yale secret work. Later he returned to the Yale gymnasium with the Eli players and remained until the squad separated.

Two players have been changed since the Princeton game here last Saturday—right end and right half back. Fred Murphy has succeeded Fred Daly, whose shoulder was badly hurt last Saturday. Daly has stopped training. He was at the field this afternoon in citizen's clothes.

Savage gets the place of Harry Vaughan, at right end. Vaughan was out to-day, but not in uniform, and he has practically no chance of starting the game Saturday. Logan, who has been out of the game three weeks with a wrenched knee, was in uniform to-day, and is improving fast. He may be used at right end part of the second half. Yale's stalwart back field trio, Capt. Coy, Murphy, and Philbin, are rugged enough to play nearly throughout the game, and, as there are no more games for them to reserve themselves for, none expects to quit until late in the second half. Savage, Francis, and Field are the substitute back field selected, Savage being called back from end in case he is needed. Coy will exchange places with Savage occasionally during the game, alternating at left end and full back.

Ford Johnson has been picked for first substitute quarter back ahead of "Pop" Corey. Howe is in much better condition than he was when he played against Princeton last Saturday, and is expected to last well into the second half.

Brooks and Naedele are substitutes for the end rush positions, Paul and Spencer for the tackles, "Buster" Brown for guard, and Hyde for centre. Cooney's knee is in bad shape, and Hyde is expected to play a good part of the game at centre.

Head Coach Howard Jones said to-night: "The Yale eleven is in excellent condition, and is capable of playing a powerful game. I regard Harvard as sure to give us a hard and exacting struggle. Personally, I take no stock whatever in any of the stories of injured players at Harvard."

HOLY CROSS LINE BRACING UP.

Shift of Joy to Right End Adds Strength to Worcester Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 17.—Although the ground was muddy from a hard rain early this morning Coach Larkin had the Holy Cross eleven out for two hours' work on Fitton Field this afternoon, the second team trying out supposed Fordham formations to be employed against the purple at American League Park next Saturday, and the big fellows trying to break them up. There was no tackling, but the Holy Cross men worked hard, the cool weather putting snap into the players.

Fumbling was frequent, however, and things did not go smoothly during all the practice, although the line to-day showed more strength than it has for some time, and the men of the first team were on the alert all the time, following the ball well and working out plays against the formations of the seconds with precision.

Joy's work at right end in the practice was fast and classy, and added strength to the whole team, and with a few more changes in the line Coach Larkin will have a fine aggregation and ought to give the Fordham crowd one of the hardest battles it has had this season. At the present time the feeling among the purple following seems to be that the forces of the teams will practically be even, although Holy Cross is a slight favorite in the betting already placed, being 10 to 8 in favor of the purple team.

Contrary to the custom the usual mid-week scrimmage practice was eliminated yesterday at Fordham Field. Instead the maroon team went through a light practice that included running back kicks, getting down under punts, and winding up with a half hour's signal drill, in preparation for the Holy Cross game on Saturday at American League Park.

Several of the regulars did not report in togs. McCaffrey, White, and S. McCarthy are on the hospital list. Capt. Gargan did not take part in the practice, as his right hand is still in bad shape. The absence of Capt. Gargan, White, and McCaffrey caused several shifts to be made in the 'Varsity line-up. Geary was taken from right half back and put in at quarter back, J. McCarthy playing right half back. Though rather new to the position, Geary ran the team in clever style. It is not thought, however, that Capt. Gargan's injury will keep him out of Saturday's contest with Holy Cross.

Navy Scores Twice on Scrubs.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 17.—With several of the best men out of the line-up the Navy regulars had no trouble in scoring twice on the scrubs this afternoon at the Naval Academy. While no hard contest is expected from Davidson College on Saturday, the last of the regular games, the interest of the players is still maintained by the hope that a game will be scheduled to be played either on Thanksgiving Day or the Saturday after it. The management is still hoping to get such a game. Dalton and Austin, the regular halves, laid off this afternoon, and their places were filled by Scowell and Cochran. Elmer and Hamilton were at the ends, and Loftin also rested, his place at right tackle being filled by Merring.

Yost's Men Off for Minneapolis.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17.—Coach Yost and Trainer Fitzpatrick, with nineteen members of the University of Michigan football squad, left Ann Arbor this afternoon for Minneapolis, where they will meet the University of Minnesota eleven on Saturday. The players are in good physical condition. It is expected that Joy Miller will succeed Wasmund, who played his final game last Saturday.

Why the Franklin is the most comfortable and the most reliable of all automobiles.

The closest possible examination of the leading water-cooled automobiles shows them to be practically alike in all important features—alike in their construction principles, comfort and road ability. Yet it is claimed for each one that it is superior to the other.

Now an automobile in order to be essentially better than another must necessarily be different; for example, if it is more comfortable, there must be a reason for it. Water-cooled automobiles with their semi-elliptic springs and steel chassis frames all ride about the same. You can get but little more comfort with one than another.

The Franklin is different. It is really comfortable. With its four full-elliptic springs and laminated-wood chassis frame, it is the most comfortable automobile in the world.

Even the shock absorbers, rubber bumpers, and other devices used on water-cooled automobiles fail to give the comfort you want. Comfort, like any quality, must be founded in the design.

The comfort of the Franklin gives it the greatest road ability of all automobiles. You can make time everywhere. Passengers, even aged people, can ride long distances without fatigue. And being comfortable also means that the Franklin lasts indefinitely—it does not rack and strain itself. The deterioration and the rattle and noise which develop in other automobiles are avoided.

Other automobiles are all about the same on tires—usually unreliable. Their tires are too small and too weak You know it; everybody knows it. So everywhere you go you carry an extra outfit of tires. This does not prevent the tire trouble with its annoying delays but it is the only thing you can do. Here again the Franklin is different. We practically eliminate tire trouble. The solution of the vexed problem is simply in providing tires large and strong enough for the service required. It is true that many automobiles are so heavy and stiff in construction that this is not practical. But the Franklin is light and flexible. It is easy on any tires, and with our 1910 tire equipment tire troubles are not a factor. You do not have to carry extra tires. The tires used are larger even than the tires used on water-cooled automobiles that weigh a great deal more.

Being mechanically reliable, as shown by winning severe reliability and endurance contests, and having reliable tires, the Franklin is the most reliable automobile you can buy.

In another important principle the Franklin is different and that is the cooling system. This difference is for the same definite reasons as the other differences—to get better general results, greater reliability, lighter weight and greater comfort. The Franklin air-cooling system is as far in advance of water cooling as full-elliptic springs are better than semi-elliptic springs.

The announcement of our 1910 cooling system early last summer created a sensation. So marked and effective is it that its success and advantage were instantly recognized. It is superior in every way to any water cooling system. If you will make the test severe enough, you can satisfy yourself that the Franklin engine will cool perfectly when water-cooled engines will give trouble from overheating Our cooling system cannot fail to work—there is nothing to get out of order. The only moving part is the suction-fan fly-wheel, and as a fly-wheel is required on any engine, the system is simplicity itself. This suction-fan fly-wheel is a new thing and is the most efficient fan known to science.

Franklin dealers will show you the new cooling system. You will understand it at a glance and will appreciate more than ever the advantage of air cooling over water cooling with its plumbing, weight and complication, and liability to freeze or boil dry

The control is another feature in which the Franklin is also different There is only the throttle lever Ignition is by Bosch high-tension magneto with the Franklin governor which dispenses with the usual spark advance lever Better results are therefore obtained at all speeds.

The 1910 Franklins have been in use in all parts of the country for over five months and have thoroughly demonstrated the merit of the new cooling system.

Franklin automobiles are built in three chassis sizes four- and six-cylinder, with sixteen different body styles embracing touring two-, three- and four-passenger runabouts, close-coupled bodies, limousines, landaulets, town-cars and taxicabs.

TURFMEN SHOW FAITH IN FUTURE OF RACING

Futurity Entry List for 1911 Closes with 366 Nominations.

Keene, Belmont, Haggin, Whitney, Mackay, Fanshawe the Most Prominent Nominators for Stakes.

Confidence in the future of racing is partly reflected in the way in which nominations are made for the future events, and the closing of the Futurity for 1911 and the Lawrence Realization for 1912 tend to show that breeders and owners of the largest racing establishments have an abiding faith in the sport. These two fixtures of the Coney Island Jockey Club closed Monday at midnight, and with several mails still to be heard from the Futurity shows a list of 366 entries, while the Realization has received 167 nominations. The Realization has a later closing for yearlings, Nov. 15, 1910, when its total will undoubtedly be very considerably swelled.

These Futurity entries compare particularly well with the entries for the running of the Futurity of 1909, decided last September. While for that running 954 nominations were made, so many yearlings were shipped abroad, and for other reasons could not be figured in the final count that no less than 334 were declared void. This year there will not be a void list, and the nominations that are made will represent the best of the yearlings from every establishment.

It is of interest in the list to find that Harry Payne Whitney, who practically deserted the American turf for England at the close of the season of 1908, is a liberal nominator. He has named 26 in both the Futurity and Realization.

James B. Haggin, as in former years, is the most extensive nominator, sending in 58 for the Futurity and 29 for the Lawrence Realization. Each year Mr. Haggin has been an extensive seller, and he has always realized the increased value of a colt that was properly engaged. The wisdom of engaging a colt in his babyhood was never more forcibly shown than in the racing season just closed. Fitz Herbert, by long odds the best horse of any age that raced during the year, was woefully handicapped by not having been nominated in the big three-year-old fixtures. Had he been as liberally engaged as even his stablemate, Joe Madden, his winnings would surely have placed Samuel C. Hildreth first on the list of winning owners rather than second to James R. Keene.

John E. Madden has made no nomination in the Lawrence Realization, evidently having deferred those selections until the later closing of the stake Nov. 15 of next year. For the Futurity he has 43 eligibles, all from Hamburg Place.

Chairman August Belmont of The Jockey Club has nineteen named for the Futurity and an even dozen are in the Realization list. The nursery-bred two-year-olds were not particularly prominent in a racing way during the past year, but it was an off year and Mr. Belmont will not find his new crop lacking in opportunity.

James R. Keene is a good nominator from his Castleton stud and for the Futurity he has named thirty-five, with sixteen already eligible for the Realization. Capt. E. B. Cassatt, who is seeking to restore the glories of the old Cassatt establishment when his father, A. J. Cassatt, was one of the prominent men in racing, has nominated nine in both the Futurity and the Realization. These weanlings are the get of the English horse Aeronaut, who raced with such success for George F. Johnson. He is a son of Ayrshire and Miss Ellie, and his blood lines have always attracted the breeding sharps.

Clarence H. Mackay, whose most famous stallion is Meddler, has fourteen in the Futurity, while he has deferred his Realization entries. H. T. Oxnard, who had the misfortune to lose the good English stallion Islington, has named twenty-four in the Futurity, several of them the get of Inflexible, who raced in the colors of the late William C. Whitney.

W. F. Fanshawe, who came back to racing last season under the name of the Silver Brook Farm, has named eight in the Futurity and six in the Realization. Last season, though his colts did not have any important engagements, they showed to decided advantage under the handling of Richard Miller. His colts are the get of Heno, himself a first-class race horse.

Some of the other prominent nominators are W. O'B. Macdonough, with seven in the Futurity and six in the Realization; Francis R. Hitchcock, with four in the Futurity and three in the Realization; Mrs. T. J. Carson, with five in the Futurity and four in the Realization; John Dyment, the Canadian breeder, five in the Futurity; Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., five in the Futurity; Lucien O. Appleby, four in the Futurity and two in the Realization; William Lakeland, two in both the Futurity and Realization; Joseph E. Widener, two in both stakes; Catesby Woodford, eight in each stake; John Sanford, the Amsterdam breeder, three in the Futurity; J. L. McGinnis, two in each stake; Newcastle Stable, three in the Futurity; T. C. McDowell, three in the Futurity and two in the Realization, and Woodford Clay, five in the Futurity and three in the Realization.

This list will not be completed until some other mails are received. One breeder, who has telegraphed the Coney Island Jockey Club that his nominations are on the way, is Irving H. Wheatcroft, who races under the name of the St. James Stable. Mr. Wheatcroft is a Canadian who recently became interested in the turf, and he has established a first-class breeding establishment, making extensive purchases of both stallions and brood mares last year.

J. E. SULLIVAN'S BIRTHDAY.

Amateur Sportsman Honored by Surprise Party at His Home.

James E. Sullivan, the retiring President of the Amateur Athletic Union, had a birthday yesterday and last night he was the central figure in a little surprise party at his house. Mr. Sullivan cannot avoid birthdays, because he is becoming accustomed to them, but he is still somewhat of a novice in the matter of birthday celebrations.

Some of Mr. Sullivan's many friends remembered the advent of a new year for the popular leader in athletics as well as they kept in their mind's store the numerous good things he has done for sport, and they assembled at his home, at 540 West 114th Street, and showered blessings upon him having reached another milestone in his career.

It was very gratifying to Mr. Sullivan to have among his callers Everett C. Brown of Chicago, his successor as President of the Amateur Athletic Union, and J. R. Hickey, a delegate from San Francisco. Several New York friends were among Mr. Sullivan's well wishers.

N. Y. U. Second Team May Meet Union

New York University's second team is receiving most of Coach Olcott's attention at present, for he has an idea that, if the scrubs can show sufficient skill, they will be lined up against the Union College eleven next Saturday. N. Y. U. has a stronger second team than she has had in years, and unless Union turns out to be better than she has shown herself so far, the scrubs think they can handle the up-Staters without much help from the 'Varsity. It is not probable, however, that Olcott will take any chances on letting Union score. Yule will probably play at full back, and Nixon at quarter, but the other nine to start the game will probably all be substitutes, as follows: Dutcher and W. Eliffe, ends; Davis and Stone, tackles; Crowley and Dresler, guards, Kopff, centre; Moore and Norlin, or Napoliallo, half backs. But if the N. Y. U. loses ground, 'Varsity men will be sent in to bolster up the Violet defense. The second team was lined up against High School of Commerce on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon, for a short scrimmage. They easily outplayed the high school boys, but they need considerable coaching before Olcott will feel satisfied with their work. The 'Varsity men were sent out yesterday to coach the scrubs individually while playing, and were responsible for much of the good work done.

Napoliello, a former Yonkers High School crack player, has only recently come out for football. Olcott placed him at left half back and is much pleased with his playing. The 'Varsity men are taking only light practice.

Texas "Aggies" Still Undefeated.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 17.—The Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College eleven defeated the Oklahoma State University eleven by a score of 14 to 5 in the game of football played in Dallas to-day.

The Texas A. and M.'s have this season defeated the Haskell Indians, the Texas University, the Louisiana University, and the Oklahoma University, and have not yet suffered a defeat.

Heathcote School Victories.

The Heathcote School eleven of Harrison defeated Irving School in football yesterday by a score of 24 to 0 at Harrison. Heathcote School has lost only two games this season.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Mills Working at High Pressure to Fill the Rush of Orders.

According to leading trade authorities, the iron and steel trade, which showed some signs of slackening at the opening of the month, has resumed at full tilt, the demand forcing the mills to work at high pressure to fulfill contracts.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> After a slight decrease in specifying against contracts for finished material, both specifying and ordering have been resumed in large volume. Railroad buying of the week has been an important factor. Pig iron, however, continues quiet, with some indications of weakness in the Southern market. The pace at which iron and steel plants are being driven is shown by the fact that the Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries in October established 141 new records, some of them at plants which are operating only during periods of unusual prosperity. New records were also made by many independent steel interests.

The Iron Age says:

> In conection with the large sales made in recent weeks in bars, shapes, and plates for the first quarter of next year interest has centred in the variations in prices named by different mills. While 1.50c for bars and 1.60c for structural material and plates have been commonly reported as established, sales have been made at 1.45c for bars and 1.55c for plates and shapes. The higher prices now more generally prevail, and premiums are paid for early deliveries.
>
> Car works have taken some further large orders, and one builder of steel cars has 30,000 cars on its books, enough to keep its largest plant busy an entire year. The difficulty of getting material from the mills greatly hinders the delivery of new cars.
>
> Rail purchases for 1910 are estimated to be close to 1,500,000 tons thus far. Wire mills have done an enormous business since Oct. 1 and one producer is asking $2 a ton advance for nails and some wire products.
>
> Higher prices for semi-finished steel are named for delivery in 1910, and from $1 to $2 a ton more is asked for second quarter than for first quarter delivery. Sales of sheet bars have been made at $29 and $30 for the first three months.
>
> Lake Bessemer ores for next year have been largely taken up in reservations made without the fixing of prices.

$250,000 MOTOR SPEEDWAY.

Western Capitalists May Build Automobile Course Near Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Local capitalists whose names are withheld for the present are reported to be behind a company to build a $250,000 motor speedway for Chicago. These men are under the guidance of David Beecroft, Chairman of the Technical Committee of the Chicago Motor Club. A tentative site on the line of the Northwestern Railroad is said to have been chosen.

The large attendance and interest shown in races held on the motor speedways at Atlanta and Indianapolis, despite the chapter of accidents near the Hoosier capital, are said to have aroused local automobile enthusiasts to the possibility of such an enterprise here.

Around the Billiard Table.

The Billiard Room Keepers' Association held a meeting last night at Doyle's academy in Times Square, and made the drawings for the first three matches in the 18.2 balk line championship tournament to be held in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, beginning next Monday night. Calvin Demarest of Chicago will oppose George Sutton of Chicago in the match on Monday evening, and on Tuesday afternoon George Slosson of New York and Harry P. Cline of Philadelphia will be the wielders of the cue in the second match. Tuesday evening Albert Cutler of Boston and Firmin Cassignol of Paris will be the opponents. The matches for the remaining games will be subject to the results of these contests.

In preparation for the tournament Cassignal played two matches yesterday at McGraw's academy. In the afternoon he defeated George Moore, 300 to 58, with high run of 102 and an average of 27 3-11. Fred Poggenberg was his opponent in the evening, and he won again with 300 to 158. His high run was 136, and average 33⅓, against Poggenberg's best run of 59 and average of 17.

George Sutton had excellent practice at Slosson's academy last evening, when he played 300 points against T. H. Rodman, with a high run of 84 and an average of 21 6-15. Rodman scored 43 points for an average of 3 4-13.

Calvin Demarest had two opponents in his practice matches yesterday at Maurice Daly's academy. He ran his string of 300 against Ike Mannis in the afternoon, Mannis making 63. Demarest's best run was 111, with an average of 11 3-27. William Wortherly measured cues with Demarest in the evening, and assembled 44 points to Demarest's 300, the latter making 115 in one run for an average of 21 6-14.

In last night's game of the three-cushion handicap tournament now in progress at Doyle's academy, M. Roy defeated Bud Fisher by a score of 25 to 21, in fifty-one innings. Fisher made 4 as the highest run.

Rain Spoils Deer Hunting.

Special to The New York Times.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Nov. 17.—The heavy downpour of rain this forning did not pdevent deer hunting parties from going out to the favorite haunts of the King of the forest. Many parties same in automobiles, and the stands in the early morning were all taken. Several hunters stood for hours in the drenching rain and chilly wind waiting to get a shot, only to return wet to the skin and shaking with cold, without even seeing a deer. Only three bucks were killed to-day, but several sportsmen missed good shots. One of the largest killed this season was brought down by Dick Burge of this place, on the Mispah Road near Pine Swamp. It was a four-snag buck and weighed nearly 200 pounds. Another four-snag buck was killed by Pleasantville gunners, and weighed 160 pounds. Many deer were reported to have been seen by the huntrs. Richard McHamy of Atlantic City headed a party that killed a 211-pound buck in the Bacon Field, near here.

Columbia Crew Races on Tuesday.

The race between the Columbia first and second 'Varsity eights, which was scheduled to be rowed on Thanksgiving Day, has been set for Tuesday afternoon, Nov 23. The course will be one mile, laid out above the boathouse at Edgewater.

This race will mark the end of the Fall practice on the water. In the week left Coach Rice will work his 'Varsity squad in hard daily practice. Twenty-five men reported on the machines yesterday to get into better condition. A long row had been planned on the Hudson, but the high wind made practice on the water impossible.

That Coach Rice may get an early line on the speed of his crews several of the engineering students on the rowing squad have marked out a four-mile course similar to that at Poughkeepsie, every half mile being indicated by a post. The course starts at the boathouse, and continues northward up the Hudson.

Jim Jeffries will be among the guests, and some of the old-time and present jockeys who have accepted invitations are Jimmy McLaughlin, "Snapper" Garrison, Willie Martin, Harry Spencer, Walter Miller, Herman Radtke, "Mickey" Gannon, "Mickey" Miles, Willie Shaw, and Johnny Reiff. The champion Corinthians will bowl against the Belvideres.

Mayor Sets Foot on Toledo Fights.

GOULD ANNOUNCES MO. PACIFIC PLANS

New Bond Issue Will Be Used to Strengthen the System's Financial Status.

AMPLE SECURITY FOR THEM

Special Meeting of Stockholders Will Be Held in St. Louis to Pass on the Plan.

The Missouri Pacific financial plan underwritten by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. was announced yesterday. The plan calls for the issue of $29,806,000 out of a proposed authorized issue of $175,000,000 first and refunding mortgage convertible fifty-year 5 per cent. bonds, to which the stockholders of the Missouri Pacific will have the right to subscribe at 95.

Payment is to be made in installments extending to April of next year, and the syndicate formed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. undertakes to take any part of the issue which may not be subscribed for by the shareholders, in which event the syndicate will make the payments at the times provided in the subscription offer to the stockholders. The syndicate will take the bonds at the same price at which they are offered to the stockholders, the syndicate's compensation being paid directly by the company.

The proceeds of this issue will supply the Missouri Pacific with all the cash it will need for a considerable period, and will serve to strengthen its financial position. The new bonds will be a direct first mortgage on 165 miles of main track, and in respect to the remaining mileage will be subject to only $66,293,000 underlying bonds.

After the issue of the $29,806,000 new bonds the mortgage debt of the company on the lines securing the first and refunding bonds will be at the rate of $25,500 a mile, including all outstanding underlying bonds. The new bonds will be additionally secured by the pledge of at least $5,300,000 St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern bonds, and will be a lien subject to certain of the underlying bonds on over $18,600,000 of equipment.

The new bonds will be convertible into Missouri Pacific stock at par from Sept. 1, 1912, to Sept. 1, 1932. The bonds are subject to redemption at 110 and accrued interest on Sept. 1, 1917, or any interest day thereafter, but if called may be converted into stock up to within thirty days of the time fixed for payment.

The proceeds of the bonds to be sold at present, it appears from a statement made by President George J. Gould, will be issued as follows: $19,700,000 against the deposit of a like amount of underlying bonds, $5,300,000 to acquire at not less than 95 improvement bonds of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, and $4,806,000 against the deposit of par in cash to be expended for additions and betterments.

The balance of the proposed authorized issue is to be reserved for the refunding of underlying bonds, for improvements, for the acquisition of improvement bonds of the Iron Mountain, and for other uses, including $4,640,500 to be used if necessary in connection with refunding operations to provide for premiums and discounts.

President Gould's statement bearing on the plan says:

> The Kansas & Colorado Pacific Railway Company, the Central Branch Railway Company, and certain other companies formerly holding title to portions of the system, have been consolidated with the Missouri Pacific Railway Company, and the lines of other companies holding title to auxiliary or branch lines (excepting the leased Boonville, St. Louis & Southern Railway Company, controlling about forty-four miles) will be conveyed to the Missouri Pacific Railway Company, so that the first and refunding mortgage will be a direct mortgage, and eventually a first mortgage, on practically the entire mileage (exclusive of the system of St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company) now owned or controlled by the Missouri Pacific Railway Company.
>
> The Missouri Pacific Railway Company owns about 40 per cent. of the stock of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company, the latter extending from the Missouri Pacific's western terminus at Pueblo to Salt Lake City, while the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company owns a majority of the capital stock of the Western Pacific Railway Company, whose line, extending from Salt Lake City to San Francisco, is now rapidly nearing completion.
>
> The Missouri Pacific Railway Company will thus become an integral part of an important transcontinental line extending from the Mississippi River at St. Louis through the heart of the American Continent, to the Pacific Coast at San Francisco, aside from the control which it already possesses of a system of lines extending through the Southwestern States to the Mexican border.

A special meeting of the stockholders will be held in St. Louis on Jan. 18 to approve the proposed issue. The stockholders of record on Dec. 8 will have the right to subscribe to the new bonds to the extent of 36 per cent. of their stock holdings, payment for the bonds at 95 to be made in installments, 35 per cent. by Jan. 21, 1910, 30 per cent. by March 4, and 30 per cent. by April 15.

The new bonds were quoted on the Curb yesterday at from 96½ to 97, the last sale being made at 96¾, and the subscription rights at from ⅝ to 9-16, with the last sale at ⅝.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Olive Oil Claimed by Manufacturers Not to be Edible Is Dutiable.

Judge Platt in the United States Circuit Court denied yesterday that large importations of olive oil are entitled to entry free of duty as not being edible. Several heavy importers of the olive oil, not satisfied with the ruling of the Board of United States General Appraisers, appealed the issue to the Circuit Court.

The court says that after reading the testimony of the witnesses for the importers it is unwilling to reverse the finding of the board. Judge Platt says in part:

"The question of fact in this case is simply and solely whether the olive oils covered herein are fit or suitable for manufacturing purposes and for no other as contended by the importers. The board upon conflicting testimony has found that they were all edible oils.

"I do not think that the testimony so plainly points in the opposite direction that I am at liberty to decide the question of fact the other way even if I felt like doing so. After reading the testimony of Dr. Sharples and Dr. Fuller, witnesses for the importers, I am unwilling to say that I should do so if I could. Decision affirmed."

The importers figuring in this litigation include the Holbrook Manufacturing Company, the Swan & Finch Company, the Oil Seeds Company, A. Klipstein Company, Welsh, Holm & Clark Company, and Arnold, Hoffman & Co.

PHILADELPHIA BANK CLOSED.

Undigested Securities Cause of the Troubles of Small Concern.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The State Department of Banking to-day ordered the American Trust Company of Philadelphia closed. A. L. Taylor, a State Bank Examiner, was appointed temporary receiver, and took charge of the company's affairs.

Undigested securities probably caused the institution's troubles. The company is a small concern, and the failure had no effect on any other financial institution. The deposits amount to about $400,000.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—There was some profit-taking in evidence in the early local market which checked the advance in the copper shares. The volume of trading continued large, with orders well distributed, however, and the advance in the selling price of the metal had a good effect later in the day, and the upward movement was to some extent resumed. Calumet and Arizona was the feature, advancing over 4 points, to 109½. North Butte sold up a point, Greene-Cananea was in demand uround 14, and the balance of the market advanced fractionally all around. The close was active and strong, with but little stock pressing for sale.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—There was a firm opening to the wheat market, with values ¼@⅜c higher on steady cables from Liverpool, where prices were influenced by small stocks, firm cash markets, and no fear of manipulation on this side. Very prominent commission houses and speculators were heavy sellers and the market turned weak, losing all of the early advance and closing at a net loss of ⅜@⅝c. December shorts appeared to be less nervous and not disposed to buy heavily and sentiment was more bearish. News from Argentina was of a decidedly more encouraging nature. Receipts at interior points were 827,000 bushels, against 1,123,000 last week and 990,000 last year. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 360 cars, against 706 last year, and Winnipeg reported 400, against 536 a year ago. Cash wheat here also closed easy, with No. 2 red $1.26 asked, elevator, domestic, and $1.25½ nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.16¾, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.19⅝, free on board, afloat, both nominal.

CORN—The corn market opened firm and during the day moved in a comparatively narrow range, easing off a little with wheat, and closing net unchanged to ¼c lower. Speculative interests appeared to favor the selling side, but commission houses bought, and spot markets generally ruled firm. Reports from the Southwest indicated increasing stocks in elevators there and claimed a poor demand, except in small lots. There were some complaints of inferior grade of the new corn in parts of Iowa, and the approach of cold weather will be very acceptable, as it is expected to be very beneficial to the corn in crib, which was beginning to mold on account of the wet, cold weather. No. 2 corn quoted at 73c, elevator, domestic; 73½c delivered, and 73c free on board, afloat; No. 2 yellow, 73c, all grades nominal.

THE TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE.

The practical consolidation of the principal telegraph and telephone companies may be justified by its fruits, but the chief of these fruits must be lower tolls and better service to the public. If the operating economies made possible through a single control and management shall prove to be as large as the reports indicate, it ought to be possible to make the service better and cheaper, while at the same time providing a reasonable and even generous return to the shareholding owners of the property.

The business of conveying messages by telephone or telegraph is in its nature one that may with obvious advantage be carried on under a single management without competition, constituting in form and fact a monopoly. Communities which have had rival telephone companies have come to consider the duplication a nuisance. No man's convenience is served by the installation of two telephones for service that one might easily render. Undoubtedly the convenience of the public is served when from any telegraph office a message may be sent to any part of the country; to be told that the message submitted must be taken to the office of the other concern blocks away is a cause only of vexation.

But if the benefits of competition disappear and the extortions of monopoly are practiced, then, plainly, telegraph and telephone consolidation become a public injury. The public would be prompt to discover that fact, and in these modern days the people have a way of making themselves exceedingly annoying to misbehaving public service corporations. The telegraph and telephone monopoly is one of great magnitude. The concentration of ownership is a piece of news so conspicuous that nobody will miss it in the daily newspapers. As the telephone and telegraph are now used by all but a very small part of the country's population, interest in the merger or consolidation will be very widespread. If the new monopoly conducts itself like a "bad trust" the people, through their lawmakers, will be very quick to apply a corrective. The Postal, the Western Union, and the telephone companies will find themselves, their business, their rates, and all their procedures, subject to scrutiny and regulation by a Federal commission for their inter-State business, by State commissions everywhere for their intra-State traffic. In many States commissions already have supervision over telegraphs and telephones; the attempt to extend the powers of the Public Service Commissions in this State to the telegraph and telephone will doubtless be renewed this Winter. These commissions, Federal and State, will be meddlesome just in proportion as the companies show by their behavior that the public interest demands meddling with them.

It is a great opportunity for wisdom, for an exhibition of modern business methods and sagacity, and the doing voluntarily as an act of sound judgment what regulating laws will require to be done if it is not done voluntarily. No laws, no commissions can force the telegraph and telephone companies to do so much for their patrons as they can do of their own motion, and will do if they are wise. There have been so many bad examples that something like heroic self-denial will be required. First of all, the temptation to celebrate the merger by pyrotechnical overcapitalization must be resolutely put aside. It ought to be plain that no new capital values have been created by this coming together. In the saving of cost the public should be remembered first, since from it comes the privilege to do business at all. The brief statement of assets issued in Boston is imposing, but invites scrutiny. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company does an immense business, but it is a proper subject of inquiry whether in its $680,000,000 of assets telephone instruments are figured at something near their cost, or whether they are appraised at the price at which they were sold some years ago to the subordinate companies. If any real consolidation with new capital issue were to be contemplated, it would be worth while to ask, also, whether bonds issued to pay for ocean cables long since disused and gone to destruction were a proper basis of value for securities upon which interest or dividends would be paid indefinitely. But at present there is no admission that a complete merger under one stock issue is contemplated.

There is no general and loud complaint that telephone and telegraph charges in this country are unreasonably high. In many instances they are no doubt low. But in a great many others they are so high as to constitute an impediment to the traffic. That is entirely contrary to all intelligent modern theories of business. Convenient and cheap communication is among the chief of the facilities that promote business. Under a single management with wasteful duplications cut off, with power to establish a uniform quality of service everywhere, and with the privilege of employing both for the telephone and telegraph the best devices for saving time and cost, there can be no doubt that the new consolidation will find itself able to supply a high quality of service at rates so moderate that the public will have no cause of complaint. The use it makes of its opportunity will furnish the test of the business capacity and wisdom of the management.

MAKING FOOTBALL ILLEGAL.

Chief of Police SYLVESTER of Washington, D. C., who has written a book on football, defines it with its mass plays as "a continuous assault." It is assault and battery, and occasionally manslaughter. There is no reasonable objection to Commissioner MACFARLAND's drafting a bill for the District of Columbia, as he proposes to do, placing football in the same category with prizefighting and making it illegal. From Richmond, Va., comes the announcement that the next General Assembly will be called on to pass a statute abolishing football in that State. Thus far only two Presidents of universities, Chancellor MACCRACKEN of New York and President ALDERMAN of Virginia University, have condemned the game since its maiming and fatal character has been revealed in matches between leading teams.

But unless the college Presidents and Faculties act soon to wrest from the Intercollegiate Rules Committee the power it has wielded to make football a brutal and homicidal game, and to keep it so, it ought generally to be forbidden by law. Columbia University under President BUTLER has now for some years kept the game under a ban with salutary effect. Columbia has demonstrated that a great university can get along without football, and with undiminished prestige.

If a boy should be killed in the coming game between Yale and Harvard because of what President ALDERMAN has just called the "peril of death and injury inherent in the strategy of the game," what can President HADLEY and President LOWELL say for their part in permitting it to be played? Must we wait for their horrified exclamations after the event, as we have waited for President ALDERMEN's?

THE LORDS AND THE FINANCE BILL.

Evidently the result of the election in the workingmen's borough of Bermondsey in London has stiffened the spines of the British Peers. Lord LANSDOWNE's notice that he will move on Monday to withhold consent to the finance bill "until it has been submitted to the judgment of the country" is based on the hope, if not the expectation, that the judgment of the country will support the Lords and condemn the Liberal schemes of taxation and expenditure. As these schemes are avowedly addressed to the needs and desires of the working class especially and of the poor as opposed to the rich, the verdict in Bermondsey has significance.

Were the present bill a relatively unimportant one, the Government might ignore the challenge of the House of Lords and decline to dissolve Parliament. But as the bill practically covers the entire field of taxation and much of the field of expenditure, that course would not be feasible, and elections will undoubtedly be held in January. Their probable result is a matter on which prediction by even the confident partisans is made with much reserve. Varied and complex influences will affect it. The Liberals will seek, of course, apart from the merits of the budget, to make the "usurpation" of the Lords a prominent issue. Whether the action of the Lords be really usurpation is by no means clear. Authorities of Liberal affiliations, including Mr. GLADSTONE himself, the founder of the modern school of Liberalism, are quoted in support of the Lords. The Conservatives will appeal to the British instinctive aversion from the rule of a single chamber and to the strong British attachment to the idea of checks and balances in the administration of affairs. On the naked issue of the power and duty of the Lords we are inclined to think that the verdict is likely to go with the Conservatives.

But back of this issue, and back of the merits of the Liberal budget plans, lies the important question of the alternative policy the Conservatives, or Unionists, as they are now called, can propose. On this side they are unquestionably weak. The alternative is protection. The party goes before the country condemning the Liberal budget because it is "Socialistic" in spirit, tendency, and in effect. It has no other plan to propose than raising money by protective taxes on imports. Now protection is essentially Socialistic in itself. It rests on the principle that the Government can regulate prices of the necessaries of life better than they would be regulated by the law of supply and demand, and that the Government may by legislation raise the cost of living for one class in order to give a profit to other classes. Doubtless the Liberals will make the most of this absurdity.

Another matter. The first step in protection in England must be the taxation of food and of materials of manufactures, since these are largely imported. The tax on food will be a tax on the working class for the benefit of the land owners. A tax on materials will be a burden on labor. These two facts were the chief elements in the overwhelming defeat of the Unionists in 1906. It is quite possible that they may have a like effect in 1910.

MR. TAFT'S TROUBLESOME TAX.

It remains to be seen what will be left of the corporation tax after the lawyers get through with it, and they are raising fresh points every day. The latest is that suggested by Mr. CHARLES W. PIERSON. The precedent relied upon by the promoters of the law is the decision in the Spreckels case sustaining the tax imposed by the War Revenue act of 1898 upon the gross receipts of corporations engaged in the business of refining petroleum and sugar. But it is pointed out that a tax upon corporations alone is not sustained by a decision validating a tax upon "every person, firm, corporation, or company." Also a tax upon net receipts is different from a tax upon gross receipts. In other words, the tax to be valid must be universal, and must be in respect of the franchise merely, not upon profits by whatever phrase they are described. A discriminatory income tax is doubly bad.

The attempt to make the tax universal in form by applying it to all corporations exposes it to another danger—that of exercising a power not conferred upon the Federal Government, and already expressly invalidated in analogous cases. There can be no doubt that the right to grant corporate franchises inheres in the sovereignty of the States, and was not expressly granted to the United States by the Constitution.

It is true that there are Federal corporations, but they are few in number, and were created as incidental to powers expressly conferred upon the Federal Government. The dispute is not about taxing corporations which Congress has the right to create, but about taxing those which it has not the right to create, to which it gives no privileges, and over which its jursdiction has yet to be established.

It has been decided repeatedly that the States have not the right to tax the instrumentalities of the Federal Government. The States cannot tax patents, or copyrights, because they have not the right to create them, and have not the right to cripple or destroy what the Federal Government has created. If the case were reversed, and the States had power to grant patents and copyrights, it cannot be doubted that the Federal Government would not have the right to cripple or destroy instrumentalities of the State Governments. The case is reversed regarding corporations, and it is contended that the Federal Government has not the right to destroy them, which is part of the right to tax. In the exercise of powers strictly related to a Federal function, the Federal Government taxed State bank notes out of existence. If it can tax corporations it can tax them out of existence. By assuming to tax profits it takes power to say what are profits, and whether there shall be any profits.

AMUNDSEN AND THE FRAM.

ROALD AMUNDSEN discovered the Northwest Passage and the north magnetic pole: ROBERT E. PEARY discovered the geographical pole. Now AMUNDSEN announces his purpose to discover and chart the polar seas in the Fram, the vessel that sixteen years ago carried NANSEN across the circumpolar sea. On NANSEN's return in 1896 the unknown region remaining round the pole was 1,930,000 square miles. It is a deep sea. Commander PEARY could find no bottom at the pole after 1,500 fathoms of piano wire had been reeled out; Prof. NANSEN found depths reaching to 2,187 fathoms—nearly two and one-half miles. But its solid covering fits it, as no other sea is fitted, for the purposes of oceanography.

Oceanic exploration is in its infancy. The instruments which make it nearly an exact science have been perfected since NANSEN's Fram first drifted into the floes. They can now take samples from the strata at the bottom of the sea that reveal its changes through the geologic ages, and they can measure the extent and formations of the great submarine continental shelf that surrounds it. The currents of the volumes of water that fill the basin may be studied from the solid crust above as upon no other sea; their temperatures and salinity at varying depths may be ascertained, as also their general trend about the pole with reference to the northern continents.

Up to this time the currents in the deep seas have not been investigated, because of the wave motion and the erratic movements of ships that would affect the gauges. There are no waves in the polar sea. Similarly, the action of the tides over the deep sea has never been observed with certainty. AMUNDSEN may now determine the precise advances of the tidal wave as it rolls unimpeded by land and shallows—a matter of importance to all navigators. The effects of the wind in forming currents may here be learned, while during the long nights and days the reciprocal action of light and darkness upon the life of plants and animals, and the modifying effects of the flaming, shooting boreal aurora may be observed.

AMUNDSEN and his crew of twenty men will devote five years to drifting and working out their problems amid the floes. The whole voyage will last seven years. It should be time well spent.

"Fabrication" is the term the alienists apply to a form of fantastic insanity that manifests itself in the telling of untrue stories. So when Mr. GIFFORD PINCHOT makes use of the word in denouncing the story that he has sent an ultimatum to President TAFT demanding the dismissal of Mr. BALLINGER from his Cabinet, with the alternative of the Chief Forester's resignation, it may be taken to mean that the person must be crazy who tells it, as Mr. PINCHOT would certainly be crazy to send such an ultimatum.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Lesson in Criticism.

We confess an almost complete failure to get any light and leading from the addresses which Gov. HUGHES has been delivering to the Yale students. Perhaps if our expectations had not been so high our disappointment would have been less, for, of course, we know how difficult it is for ordinary men to resist, when talking to those "just starting out in life," the temptation to weary unoffending and helpless youth with solemnly uttered rehearsals of the platitudinous and the obvious.

But the Governor is not an ordinary man. His experiences have been varied, his abilities are large, the excellence of his intentions cannot be questioned. He has fought many lions and slain not a few. He should, therefore, have had something new to say—should not have been driven to telling the boys what they knew as well as he, to wit, that the recognized virtues are, on the whole, preferable to the recognized vices, and that good citizens are better for a country than bad ones. These things are true; far be it from us to doubt or deny that; but really, isn't it a waste of time to give them elaborate and laborious discussion at this late day?

Most of all, naturally enough, have we noticed the—can we without too great disrespect call it the futility of what the Governor had to say about the right and the wrong kinds of journalistic criticism? He has studied that subject at first hand for several years now; at any rate, he has been the object of no end of newspaper praise and blame. Yet all that he has to say about it is, in effect, that newspaper criticism of public officials must be fair and honest if it is not to do no end of harm! So far as we know, that is a self-evident proposition. Certainly nobody ever made a contrary contention.

And we are inclined to be a little resentful of the implication it contains that public officials suffer a great deal from unfair and dishonest criticism from the papers. Some that they get is doubtless mistaken and made without a full knowledge of the facts, but deliberate and conscious misrepresentation is, we like and can believe, extremely rare if it exists at all. The officials themselves are not the best judges as to the moral content of the criticism they receive, and they are at least as prone, unjustly, to attribute bad motives to the newspapers that oppose their plans and ambitions as are the newspapers to do the same thing in regard to the holders of public position.

Coerced, but not Convinced.

To the careless reader Mrs. STETSON's proclamation, issued after two long secret sessions with Mrs. EDDY's representatives, may seem to be an unqualified announcement of docility, submission, and obedience, and therefore another striking illustration of the efficiency of Christian Science discipline. It does, indeed, illustrate that efficiency to no small degree, and reads almost as if it had been written by Mrs. STETSON's judges and then signed by her at their stern command. Almost, but not quite.

The rebel yields to major force like a wise woman, but it is significant that she says: "My leader's letter induces me to believe that I may have been wrong where I felt that I was absolutely right." Now that "may have been" in place of "was" is indicative of something less than complete submission and more than hints a lingering determination to fight again another day. The possibility of having been wrong is admitted, but that very admission involves an assertion of the opposite possibility, and therefore the recalcitrant one is still recalcitrant. She has been coerced, and knows when she is beaten, but she is not convinced, and has only put her old opinion aside in very cold storage, where it will keep for future usage if ever circumstances become more propitious.

And of course it is fair to wonder whether Mrs. STETSON's semblance of surrender is made from the mortal or the absolute plane. In other words, can or can it not be repudiated later? The statement contains no explicit abandonment of her heresies as heresies. So we feel that disinterested observers of this most interesting little war need not grieve over the establishment of peace before the fur and feathers had really begun to fly. It is only a skirmish that has been lost and won. There have been no fatalities and no very desperate wounds. With any sort of luck we shall soon see the main armies engaged, and that will be a very different matter, with no end of fun and excitement for the neutrals.

Charlatans and Publicity.

One of our friends and readers has written to us a letter of rather stern upbraiding for the amount of space we have given to the performances of EUSAPIA PALADINO. "Tricks of levitation," he says, were done forty or fifty years ago in this city, and since that time have been exposed again and again, and the woman is no more clever in her jugglery than half a dozen "mediums" who advertise daily in some of the papers and reap a golden harvest from the overcredulous.

So our friend thinks that "if papers like THE TIMES were to ignore steadily all these humbugs and declined to notice their séances, their trade would soon weaken and die the natural death. Notoriety," he continues, "is the life-blood of all charlatanism. There will always be silly people, but the traps for them will be lessened when the newspapers unite in a policy of ignoring the fakers."

We have a degree of sympathy with this correspondent's ideas, but experience has not taught us that evils disappear when they are ignored. On the contrary, we hold the opinion that publicity is the most effective of remedial measures, provided, of course, the publicity be of the right kind. Our own view of EUSAPIA PALADINO has been made sufficiently manifest on this page, and we have no compunctions of conscience for having done what we could in our news columns to let the public know what she and those around her are doing.

The woman is not without a certain importance. Trivial, futile, suspect, and unconvincing as her miracles seem to us, they have been deemed worthy of attention by men of eminence in several branches of science. They have observed her with care and been puzzled by her apparently supernormal powers. They have written much about her. This, properly enough, has excited a wide interest which it is alike the duty and the privilege of a newspaper to render informed and enlightened. Nobody has been deceived or misled by our reports of these séances, and the reports have not confirmed superstition or credulity. On the contrary, they have, we hope, promoted the growth of healthy skepticism for application to EUSAPIA PALADINO and all her shabby tribe.

Meanwhile we and our critic can calmly wait further developments, indifferent whether in the end she is to be added to the almost endless list of fully convicted frauds or turns out to be a dim window through which the unknown can be vaguely glimpsed. The suggestion that she controls or is in control of "spirits" is worth only a weary smile.

SECRET DIVORCES.

States Almost Unanimously Demand a Uniform Law Forbidding Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The various references to the Astor divorce case in THE TIMES of yesterday lead me to call attention to the provision recommended in the proposed uniform divorce law which has already been enacted in three States. It is as follows:

> All hearings and trials shall be had before the court, and not before a master, referee, or any other delegated representative, and shall in all cases be public.

In the divorce congress that prepared the uniform law the opinion was unanimous that private hearings in divorce suits are productive of far more evil than good. Only one State cast its vote against the measure, and that was done only because of the peculiar constitutional difficulties in that State. President Warren of South Dakota said in the congress, when the matter was under consideration: "Private hearings are a great scandal in South Dakota, and I emphatically vote for this prohibition." To disinterested parties the practice of New York in its large use of private hearings has seemed for a long time full of mischief. If the recent case should lead to some legislation in that State regarding the practice, a source of much scandal would be removed.

Let me add that I do not understand that Justice Mills did more than administer the law as it stands. SAMUEL W. DIKE, Corresponding Secretary of the National League for the Protection of the Family.

THAT "AWFUL BELL."

Wants Board of Health to Suppress Its Ringing on Twenty-ninth Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you allow me to say in reply to the many sufferers who have complained in THE TIMES of the ringing of a harsh bell at 7:15 o'clock every morning, belonging to the Church of the Transfiguration, at Twenty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, that if they will address their complaints to the Board of Health something may finally be done to abate the nuisance?

The Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noise, of which Mrs. Isaac L. Rice is President, has sent letter after letter to the church authorities only to have them ignored. More than courteous protests is needed.

The nuisance has lasted for more than three years. It is said to be intended as a call to prayer. One sufferer, an elderly lady, tells me that when that bell disturbs her every morning, is the only time of her life that she wishes to be a man, so that she might express in fitting terms her feelings. There is a chorus of groans and oaths at 7:15 o'clock every morning in this neighborhood.

One physician that I know of has certified that the health of one of his patients, a sufferer from this awful bell, is seriously affected by loss of sleep due to it. Is it not about time that the Board of Health took some action? H. H. H.

Young Women and Football.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This barbarous game of football should go and never again be played by true American men. Death after death belongs to its record. Women, especially young women, frequent this game; take no part save to applaud the poor fellow hurt, perhaps killed. They are safe upon the stand. If, perchance, the stand should collapse and some of these dear creatures should be maimed or killed, what an everlasting howl would be made! C. D. L.

New York, Nov. 17, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to thank you most warmly for your editorial this morning on "Stop the Mass Play." As a mother who has had a son for six years on school and university teams, I can keenly appreciate all you say on the "august (and obstinate) Rules Committee," and also that the Faculty and parents should have some voice, rather than always the final word of this same arbitrary Rules Committee. I had intended to write and ask you to agitate this problem, and now to my satisfaction I read your article.

ONE OF THE ANXIOUS ONES.

Russian Faithlessness.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Joseph M. Price's letter in your columns on "Russian Justice" is most timely. In response to the protest of an exceptionally large number of influential Americans, Stolypin promised that Tchaykovsky should have a prompt and fair trial. As for the promptitude, every one knows how the matter has already been put off interminably. And as for the fairness, it is now proposed that Tchaykovsky shall be "tried" in secret, like Ferrer.

If the Russian Government is capable of so flagrant a breach of faith in the case of a prominent man like Tchaykovsky, whose fate is being watched with solicitude by persons of influence all the world over, judge what chance of justice is there for the many thousands of friendless, obscure, and unknown political prisoners with whom the dungeons of Russia are crowded to overflowing? C. E. M.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 16, 1909.

Wait for the Traffic Signal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read in this morning's papers of the fatal accident to Mrs. Jones on Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon. May I, as a woman who is obliged in the course of her business duties to cross Fifth Avenue several times a day, protest against the habit which so many women have of trying to cross this very crowded street without waiting for the traffic signal, or even making the crossing at the street corners?

My office window overlooks Fifth Avenue, above Thirty-fourth Street, and every day I see scores of shoppers dodging across the avenue, in and out among horses and automobiles, and I only wonder that such an accident has not occurred long before this. E. E. H.

The Palladino Tricks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am loath to speak where men of great psychological and generally great scientific attainment are reported to have spoken, and yet as an obscure citizen have I not the right to ask, Is not this Palladino business another case of exploiting the public? Have we in this twentieth century not outgrown the sorceries and magic and soothsayings of ancient Arabia and Assyria, and the witchcraft practiced by the old hags of early Rome, which, following down through the gross ignorance of the ages, was rather effectually condemned in our own Salem? Do not you agree that if the spirits Palladino has to deal with are evil spirits that we already had enough of American manufacture without importing any from Italy or elsewhere? H. F. F.

ICE PROSECUTION RESTS.

Letters Introduced to Show the Tactics Followed by the Trust.

After the reading yesterday of letters written by John D. Schoonmaker when he was President of the American Ice Company, the prosecution rested its case in the trial of that corporation before Supreme Court Justice Wheeler for violation of the anti-monopoly act.

One series of letters, written in 1903, referred to the fact that the Mountain Ice Company was showing such signs of fight in Jersey City that the American felt obliged to enter the field, regardless of the inconvenience such a step might cause to its ally, the New Jersey Ice Company, of which Oren Dennett was President. From these Deputy Attorney General Clark read aloud the following:

> We don't want to stand any nonsense from the Mountain Ice crowd, and we will get at them right where they live. It may cost us something at the start, but we will get 10 to 1 when it comes to showing hands. Old man Dennett will set up an awful howl, for it will tear him up a good deal, but that won't mean anything in dollars and cents to this company.

Another letter which aroused especial interest dealt with Augustus C. Sprague, the clerk in the Knickerbocker Steam Towage Company, to whom was issued the mysterious $14,000,000 worth of stock in the American. According to testimony introduced yesterday, Sprague filed suit against the company in 1906 for recovery of $1,100, which, he said, was due him for salary earned the previous year. In reference to this Mr. Schoonmaker wrote:

"We want to be sure whoever defends our case is some one who is not friendly with Sprague or the powers that were once in this company. I doubt very much if Mr. Morse will dare allow Mr. Sprague to go on with this suit."

COUNTESS FESTETICS HERE.

With the Count to Visit Her Mother—Going Back on New Yacht.

Among those who arrived yesterday on the Red Star liner Zeeland, from Antwerp, were the Count and Countess Festetics and their little daughter Anna. The Count is an Austrian. His wife is the daughter of Mrs. Gardner Wetherbee of 241 West Seventy-second Street.

Recently the Count's yacht Tolna was wrecked. He has now purchased Commodore Tod's yacht Thistle, and renamed it the Tolna. The yacht is now lying in a Brooklyn basin. The Count and Countess will spend two months with the latter's mother, and then sail for Europe on their yacht.

"I am looking forward with great interest to the trip," said the Countess. "It will be my first trip across the Atlantic in a yacht. I have no fear, for my husband is a navigator. We will probably first visit the West Indies in the yacht, and then go direct to the Mediterranean."

THEY SHRINK FROM MARRIAGE.

Bachelors Lack Courage to Assume Its Duties.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading the various replies to the queries of "An Unclaimed Flower" I observe that no one attempts to answer the other half of her question, namely: "What is the matter with the men?"

The general trend of the answers seems to be that the woman is too unemotional and cold, or too intellectual and capable, or has too much self-respect and mind of her own. Is it not possible that the men—some of us at least—are a little to blame that such women remain "Unappreciated (and unappropriated) Blessings?" Does she not "make cowards of us all," this woman who can do so much more than we can to make a happy and thrifty home, even to the point of carrying the financial burden in case of dire adversity? It does take courage, I admit, to make love to a girl who is manifestly superior to us, and to many of her own sex, in the variety of her capabilities and charms. Are we not a little apprehensive that, if by any lucky chance she could believe in our latent possibilities and consent to become our companion and helpmeet, we might lose to her some of the traditional prestige of the head of the house?

It seems to be a popular fallacy that a woman becomes less womanly and lovable directly in proportion to the amount of salary she can command for herself, or the amount of money she can save for her husband by using her capable fingers and trained brain in his home. Is the college graduate so much less desirable than the "clinging vine," or the selfish girl who will have a diamond engagement ring, even if you have to go into debt for it, or than the vain child who spends a week's wages on a hat? It is time we began to realize that intellectual and sensible women can be also domestic. They are helpful companions on those long tramps or fishing trips that we fondly imagine are for men only. They are an acceptable substitute for a lonely pipe and newspaper, or even men companions at the club of an evening; but, then, of course, you wouldn't necessarily give up absolutely the pipe and the newspaper, or the club either. When bachelors become less selfish and lazy, and more courageous in assuming the married man's duties (and pleasures) perhaps there will be less need of so many fine women working in their own support, and less overcrowding of the business and professional worlds. Try it and see. AN OBSERVER.

Eight Million Must Be Old Maids.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Statistics show that there are eight million more women than men on top of this old earth. May this not account in a measure for even so choice a blossom as an "Unclaimed Flower" remaining unplucked? Doesn't it stand to reason that a few of us are doomed to "blush unseen?" A BUD OF TWENTY-SIX.

Bad Texture of Postcards.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to call your attention to the rotten paper that is used lately for our Untied States postal cards. Who is the grafter and where? No doubt the Government pays a high price for cheap goods. It is almost impossible to write on this paper. A REFORMER.

MEDIAEVAL ECONOMY.

By donjon-keep belonging to
His fair innamorata,
Sir Wilfrid on his trumpet blew
An amorous cantata.

By donjon-keep and archway grim
That knight gave his recital.
One tune alone was played by him,
"Elfrida" was its title.

Elfrida, fickle lady,
Was wholly captivated by Sir Marmaduke O'Grady.

Though Wilfrid didn't know it.
Unfaltering, he blew his lay—

Elfrida hears the trumpet's din
And shows immense discretion.
She takes her place, unwinking, in
The marital procession.

And while poor Wilfrid, 'neath the arch,
His love apostrophizes,
His ditty as a wedding march

FORNARO CONVICTION LACKS A PRECEDENT

Lawyers Can Find No Record of a Similar Case and Want the Law Construed.

CARTOONIST IN THE TOMBS

Defense Contends That No Libel Was Committed Against the Mexican Editor.

In his argument yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Seabury for a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Carlo De Fornaro, the cartoonist, sentenced to Blackwell's Island for one year at hard labor for criminal libel against Senor Espindola, the Mexican editor and friend of President Diaz, George Edwin Joseph, his lawyer, said that if this verdict was allowed to stand a citizen of any land who saw something about himself in an American newspaper or magazine he didn't like might have the editor of the publication sent to jail.

"Even Cook's Eskimos, who didn't like the way they have been handled by the newspapers, might come down here and prosecute the editors," he said. He did not believe the Legislature in framing the law for a non-resident's redress intended to include cases where the complainant wasn't known in the community in which, it is alleged, he was defamed.

The case of De Fornaro has attracted wide attention because, as stated to the court, no record of a similar prosecution in this State can be found, the law, therefor not having been construed, and because of the possible far-reaching results if the verdict is upheld.

De Fornaro's counsel admitted to the court that the cartoonist had said some sharp things about Espindola in his book, "Diaz, Czar of Mexico," but the question at issue then was not whether he had written them, but whether, as charged in the indictment, he had aided in circulating the English edition of the book. Counsel contended that he had not done so, and that the prosecution had failed to make out its case.

According to the cartoonist's counsel Espindola, having seen a copy of the book in Spanish in Mexico City, came to New York. While at the Park Avenue Hotel a friend obtained a copy of the English edition, and on this the charge of criminal libel was based.

Mr. Joseph contended that no evidence had been adduced to show that the English edition had been circulated or had been seen by a single person other than the man who procured it for Espindola. On the other hand, it had been shown by Eisele, Superintendenet of Brentano's foreign book department, that De Fornaro had sought to sell him only copies of the Spanish edition, the cartoonist not being responsible for the handling of twenty-four copies of the English edition by the bookstore.

In this manner, the lawyer argued, the people had not shown that any one had read the English book, Espindola's reputation thereby suffering in their estimation, as contemplated by the law on criminal libel, nor had it been proved that De Fornaro aided in the circulation of the English book, as also held necessary for conviction.

When Mr. Joseph made the contention, however, that under the reading of the code in Sections 249 and 250 a non-resident could not prosecute for criminal libel in this State except where he had been libeled by a newspaper, Justice Seabury replied that this would not hold, as Section 242, defining criminal libel, was broad enough to give foreigners proper redress.

The succeeding sections quoted by the lawyer dealt mainly with the procedure in bringing suit. The lawyer did not press the point further than to say that he had been unable to find a record of a similar case in New York, and he would like to see the law construed.

He complained seriously of the manner in which Justice Malone, the trial Justice, had allowed the case to be conducted by the District Attorney, particularly of the District Attorney's manner of questioning the accused. Assistan District Attorney Mayper, not being ready, was allowed two days in which to submit his brief.

De Fornaro is still in the Tombs on an order from Justice Seabury, staying his removal to the penitentiary.

FOR INSURANCE AGENTS.

State Department Issues Circular as to Issue and Renewal of Certificates.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The New York Insurance Department to-day issued a circular of instructions to all life companies doing business in New York relative to applications for agents' certificates in force on and after Jan. 1, 1910. On May 7 last the amended agents' certificate law vesting in the Superintendent of Insurance the right to refuse to issue or renew any life agents' certificate, went into effect.

Superintendent Hotchkiss to-day said:

"The purpose of the Legislature was, as I understand it, to elevate the standard of the life agency field. In giving effect to this policy it has been the rule to refuse certificates to purely professional men, bankers, merchants, and manufacturers, as well as to many others whose answers to the questions propounded by the Department did not seem to indicate a bona fide intention on the part of the applicant to devote his time largely or chiefly to the solicitation of life insurance.

"It is well known that the anti-rebate section of the insurance law has been frequently evaded through the appointment as agent of a friend or employe of the insured. It is also well known that regular agents have in the past been frequently compelled to divide commissions with men in no way connected with the insurance business, but who merely gave a friendly tip or suggestion as to a possible prospect. It is also well known that scores of persons having no knowledge of the meaning of insurance contracts or of the relative merits of rival companies have in the past, through ignorance, want of training or lack of appreciation of the responsibility which results from the relation of principal and agent, made misrepresentations as to the experience of companies and the nature of contracts proposed by them which misrepresentations in the aggregate have seriously affected the confidence of the public in insurance itself and made soliciting by trained agents often difficult and without result.

"In my opinion, not a little of the public criticism on the methods of life insurance companies and agents may be traced to the haphazard methods which have in the past obtained of appointing as agents practically any persons who may apply, no matter how little their training, what may have been their character in previous avocations, or what are their real intentions in seeking authority to represent companies.

"The question has been asked whether, to an extent at least, similar conditions do not exist in the fire insurance field. As to that I am not now prepared to express an opinion."

MASSENET'S "SAPHO" IS DISAPPOINTING

Specifically Musical Element of Opera, Heard Here for First Time, Is Thin and Bare.

New operas succeed one another in the lyric theatres of New York almost as the night the day. Another new one was presented to the attention of the operatic public last evening at the Manhattan Opera House when Massenet's "Sapho" was given for the first time in America. It was the third opera of Massenet to be performed in New York within ten days, two of which were new to this country, and the third, almost the same as new. Massenet's name has been found a good one to conjure with in the new state that has been brought about lately in operatic affairs.

It did not seem, however, as if the spell was likely to be exerted by this latest specimen of the adept French master's handicraft, although the opera had the advantage of Miss Garden's popularity in the heroine's part, and the cast was otherwise a good one, with Mr. Dalmores and Mr. Dufranne in the chief men's parts.

Massenet's muse, as there has been recent occasion to remark, is docile and tractable. She goes wherever he finds it advisable to lead her. There is no definite style of which he can be said to be an exemplar, and he is continually experimenting with the public taste. in "Sapho," based on Daudet's novel, afterward dramatized, he has produced something of a different sort from his other operas known here.

There are five acts in "Sapho" as it is presented here. The first shows the meeting of Jean Gaussin, a shy young Provencal, come to Paris to study, with Fanny Legrand, known to the artists as Sapho, a model of notorious life, but strong personal attraction, at a costume ball given by the sculptor Caoudal. There is noisy dance music and a mad whirl of gayety, from which Jean withdraws, confused, and sings of his native country, a fine air, a broad and expressive cantabile, one of a very few that the opera contains. Fanny, whose fancy is captured by this young man, so strangely different from her friends, promptly makes his acquaintance; and as the guests are shouting for her to come to supper, takes him away with her.

In the next act he is found in his lodgings, where his parents are installing him as a student. Jean sings the song of Frederic Mistral, "Magali," which comes in again later to lendw a touch of Provencal color to the piece. Here, with this exception and that of a fragment of his air from the first act, all is conversation in music, rapid and free declamation over a continually varied orchestral accompaniment—a style that has been made familiar in numerous of the later Italian lyric dramas.

Father and mother and Irene, a "jeune fille," adopted by them, and evidently destined as the wife for Jean, say Good-bye. No sooner are they out of the door than Fanny comes in, unannounced, immediately takes possession of Jean and the apartment, and drives out all memory of his parents. Here is more of the conversational musical style, interrupted by a duet between these two that has the accent of passion—enhanced, naturally, by its separation from other purely musical numbers.

In the third act the lovers are at a little outdoor restaurant near Paris, and still very happy, as they sing together in another duet of less substantial musical quality than the foregoing. There is an artists' dinner at the place, and as the diners arrive there is more lively chorusing and an excruciating imitation of a wandering band.

Now, by a chance word from Caoudal, the sculptor, Jean learns for the first time that his Fanny is none other than Sapho, the notorious model, and he is told something of her past. He is thunderstruck, and when Fanny reappears to join the party, she at once sees what has happened, as Jean turns upon her with rage, then leaves her. She sings her own rage in music much more declamatory than musical, and the scene is suddenly and violently brought to an end.

In the fourth act we are in Provence, where Jean has gone back to his parents. The "Magali" air is heard in the prelude, sung at a distance. Jean comes back to ask forgiveness, which he very promptly obtains from his mother, in an appropriate duet, followed by an affectionate air from Irene. And then who should appear but Sapho herself, with the obvious intention of reclaiming him. Jean is cold in his reception and keeps her in mind of her past and the impossibility of rejoining her. She goes away without him.

There is a long and not at all interesting prelude to the fifth act, which is entitled "Solitude." Fanny is there alone in their lodging, about to leave it, but even as she prepares to go Jean comes back to her. She prays him to go again, but he will not have it, and is ready to sacrifice all that life may hold for him. She promises to stay, but as he falls asleep in his chair she steals away and leaves him.

There are few orchestral phrases used to give the fundamental tone of this act, but music is here reduced to the lowest terms of vocal declamation and fragmentary support from the orchestra. A few of these orchestral phrases have vaguely the significance of "leading motives," but they are used in a very sketching way and with very little positive issue musically. There is, in fact, not much of the Massenet of the earlier operas in this one. In those he always had something to give, musical ideas characteristic of something, if only of himself; by turns suave, elegant, sweetly tinctured, and then resonant, pompous, and brilliant, even if empty.

In "Sapho" the specifically musical element is thin and bare. All is fragmentary, declamatory, touched with spots of color by the orchestra, emphasizing this and that dramatic point, but only grazing it. And it must be said, too, that very little of this material has distinction or vitality; little of it fires the imagination or touches the heart. It seems empty and cold, very mannered.

Miss Garden took the part of the heroine. It is the sort of part in which she has previously shown some of her histrionic ability; the contrast between a wickedness overcome by sentiments of a higher order, as she has exhibited it, for instance, in "Thais," though in a very different guise. She brought out this contrast significantly in "Sapho," as the fundamental element in her conception. Yet for whatever reason, whether the part is unsympathetic to her or not, she has not given so unsympathetic a performance in New York before.

Her impersonation of the Sapho of the costume ball was flamboyant and hard, showing small traces of the fascination that must have exerted so seductive an influence upon the shy young countryman, and it is expressed with a gross exaggeration of all the mannerisms of gesture and posture and bodily writhing that she has made familiar in some other parts. When she is unmasked to her lover in the second act, she turns upon her artist friends with the shrill violence of a Billingsgate fishwife.

There is no remnant of the personal dignity that might be supposed to be left even in such a situation, with a woman of the womanly qualities that have been a potent factor in her relations with Jean. The character is misconceived and distorted. Of finesse or allurement there is nothing in the impersonation.

Many of Miss Garden's admirers were disheartened at the manner of her singing this music. It is, after all, music, even when it is declamatory; but she made as little of it as possible, and lapsed frequently into the speaking voice. Her singing has never been so bad. The strident quality that used to reside in the upper tones was heard last evening in them all. There used to be expressive tones, often beautiful ones, in her middle and lower registers, but they were not heard in this music; and there was hardly a phrase in which there was purity or steadiness or an even tone.

Nor was Mr. Dalmores in his best voice; he sang explosively, with effort, and the beauty of his voice was at times strangely clouded. Mr. Dufranne was also afflicted with the prevailing tendency to violence in vocalization. The chorus sang with vigor, and the effect of the ball in the first act was boisterously carried out. The scenic pictures were adequate, but they were not notable for beauty. Mr. de la Fuente put all his sgill into bringing out the movement and the picturesque value of the score.

YOLANDA MERO'S RECITAL.

Young Hungarian Possesses the Basic Qualities of a Fine Pianist.

Miss Yolanda Mero, the young Hungarian pianist, who made her American debut with the Russian Symphony Orchestra last week when she was heard in two concertos, was brought before this public in recital yesterday afternoon at Mendelssohn Hall. The qualities noted in her playing at her first audition were again in evidence yesterday. It is obvious that Miss Mero has technique, fire, passion, and a pair of iron wrists. Her tone is generally fine except when she misuses the pedal in some of her fortissimo passages and produces a clanging, mingling of sounds which are not musical in their effect.

It is very evident, however, that she possesses the basic qualities of a fine pianist, and that when she gains some knowledge of the value of repose in playing, more feeling for the poetic beauties of the work she interprets, and depends less on exaggerated contrasts for her effects, she will be well on the way toward what is undoubtedly her goal.

She commenced her programme yesterday with the Bach-Stradal organ concerto in D minor, her performance of which was more notable for its technical accuracy than for any other quality. Without leaving her seat she plunged recklessly into the second group, mendelssohn's F sharp minor concerto; Shubert's G major Impromptu, and Chopin's Noctrune in C minor, and Scherzo in C sharp minor.

The third group was composed of modern music: Dohnanyi's fascinating "Tolle Gesellschaft" which was played extremly well; Debussy's "Jardin sous la Pluie," which she played in a passionate Hungarian manner, totally out of keeping with its content, as if it were the "Erlkonig" or the "Walkurenritt;" a serenade of Rachmaninoff, which displayed her sense of rhythm and a "Valse Intermezzo," in the salon style of Moszkowski by Audor Merkler. The programme closed with performances of Liszt's "Libestraum" and the Second Rhapsody.

Mrs. F. M. Freeman's Theatre Party.

Mrs. Frank Morgan Freeman gave a theatre party yesterday, followed by a small dance, at the Plaza for Miss Constance Hunter. The guests were almost wholly young people, debutantes, and girls who have yet to make their debuts. In the theatre party, which assembled at Mrs. Freeman's residence, 37 West Fiftieth Street, were Miss Constance Hunter, Miss Louise Lynch, Miss Alice Brewster, Miss Sybil Young, and Miss Dolly Lynch, and Mrs. Freeman's daughter, Miss Louise Freeman; also Charles Inman, Frederick Seggerman, Eugene Moore, Russel Dougherty, Calder Stewart, Cyril Crimmins, and Judge Dyke. The play seen was "The Harvest Moon" at the Garrick, after which the party motored to the Plaza.

Mrs. Freeman wore a gown of white satin trimmed with lace and her daughter was in a black gown with a white lace bodice and wore silver in her hair. Miss Hunter wore pink chiffon. Mrs. Freeman received alone.

At midnight there was a buffet supper. Among a few of the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tappen Fairchild, Judge Holmes, and the Misses Hilda Holmes, Rosalie Elliman, Madelon, Weir, Marion Smyth, May Weatherbee, and Hicks Weatherbee.

Jan	Master John Tansey

At last a capital and labor play that really seems worth while, a play vital, vigorous, very much alive, that has the effect every now and then of a cold shower after a warm plunge—it sets the nerves tingling and quickens circulation. It is a long way from the flowered melodramatics of "The Long Strike" to such a play as this, also about a strike, from the florid melodramatics of Dion Boucicault to the hard, clear, clean-cut directness of Mr. John Galsworthy's "Strife" — so long a way in fact that one cannot help wondering at the enduring nature of the problem, wondering, perhaps, whether the ethics of the situation have progressed as steadily as the telling of the tale. With this, however, Mr. Galsworthy is not concerned.

He gives us the facts as he sees them, and, being a dramatist, he naturally emphasizes those features of a struggle which he conceives to be dramatic. He takes no sides, however, or if he does is careful to conceal it. But at the end there is the moral—a biting, bitter moral, full of irony from any point you view it. For after this long strike there is a compromise, and—as one of the characters remarks—the terms are the same—the very same—drawn up and put to both sides before the fight began.

In the meanwhile, however, much has happened. There had been bickerings on the one side, wrangling on the other, blows have been exchanged, and words harder than blows, a woman has died, others are starving. And when all is over, when the fight is lost and won, and both sides are the winners and the losers, there remains only the pathetic picture of the leaders—egoists to the point of madness—now spent and broken. There is not often a bigger moment in any play than the one near the very end, when John Anthony, defeated by his Directors, resigned from his chair, salutes David Roberts, suddenly aware, too, of the compromise that has been made. And when Roberts, bitterly turning away, is told to "go home"—home, as if there could be a home where that cold, stark figure lies to remind him how far sacrifice can go and still avail not.

John Anthony, 76, grim, determined, obstinate to the point of granite hardness, has been fighting against labor for half a century, has never given way to what he regards as its extravagant demands. What if his shareholders are clamoring about the depreciation of their stocks?—what if women and children are starving? He stands for a principle as he sees it, and he cannot be budged; he regards himself as champion of the wealthy classes of the future, as well as of the present. He despises sentimentalism, regards it as a menace to the best interests of society.

"To say that masters and men are equal, he argues, is cant—that capital and labor have the same interests, more cant. Masters are masters and men are men. Their hostility is the natural result of different interests and a different point of view. Equally sincere—equally blind to anything outside his immediate range of vision—is David Roberts.

He has a grievance to begin with, for the company has paid him a beggarly sum for the rights to an invention out of which its profits have run into the thousands. And, brooding over this and the wrongs of the working people in general, he has become a tragic zealot. With him, too, there can be no compromise; it must be all or nothing. It is the tragedy of extremists; in the end both men go down before the power of common sense.

Mr. Galsworthy solves no problem—he does not pretend to do so. But he sets before us plainly and circumstantially, in photographic clearness and directness, the process of the struggle, with here and there touches of real art, little delicacies in contrasts that make the play something more than a mere translation of the real, that give it poignancy and weight.

The most powerful scene, perhaps, but powerful in the somewhat familiar way of the theatre, is the one in which the two parties among the laboring men battle for supremacy in an open-air meeting, now ready to give in to their employers, now moved to stubborn resistance by the impassioned eloquence of David Roberts, beautifully and powerfully played by Mr. Bruning, and culminating in an exquisitely expressed suggestion of sudden depression and collapse upon receipt of the news that his wife is dead.

More, indeed, might have been made it seems of the scene in the home of the dying woman, more of the slow, relentless tragedy of the situation into which Mr. Galsworthy, with a little touch of art, the introduction of a boy with his insistent penny whistle has brought a touch of the trivial to emphasize the gloom. On the whole, however, the representation is excellent, the actors well chosen, and well able to express the figures that the dramatist has drawn. It was Mr. Bruning's night perhaps, more than that of any of the others, but Mr. Calvert, though, somehow a little less hard than Anthony appears to be, had authority and grasp and poise, and played the final scene with a splendid grip on all its possibilities.

Miss Thais Lawton, making her first appearance with the company, gives admirable promise, though here she seems somewhat conventionally melodramatic in a role that might be made more impressive handled in some other way. Mr. McVay plays the sleepy Scantlebury very humorously, while Mr. Gottschalk, Mr. Anson, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Homans, Mr. Yapp, Mr. Wendall, and Mr. North outline the various other types neatly, where necessary, quite vigorously. A word is due Mr. George Foster Platt for the general direction.

In the main essentials the story reads the same; whether the tinplate industry is located in Wales or in Ohio, whether Pittsburg or London, is anathema in the mouths of the workingmen. But in localizing Mr. Galsworthy's play has not the fact been overlooked that over here the tinplate industry is not unionized, and that, therefore, strictly speaking, the powers of the union delegate here shown, might not exist at all!

JOINS NEW THEATRE COMPANY.

Guy Bates Post Said to Have Principal Role in "The Nigger."

A new engagement for The New Theatre company is Guy Bates Post, recently seen here in Harrison Grey Fiske's production of "The Bridge" and in the role of Joe Brooks in "Paid in Full." Mr. Post will make his first appearance with the company in "The Nigger," Edward Sheldon's play of the South, to be produced on Saturday evening, Dec. 4.

While no announcement has come from the theatre management regarding Mr. Post's engagement for the company, it is understood that he will have the principal role in Mr. Sheldon's drama, that of a negro in the South in the present time.

"THE BARTERED BRIDE" GIVEN.

Smetana's Opera Admirably Performed at The New Theatre.

Kruschina	Herbert Witherspoon
Kathinka	Marie Mattfeld
Marie	Emmy Destinn
Micha	Adolph Muhlmann
Agnes	Henrietta Wakefield
Wenzel	Albert Reiss
Hans	Carl Jorn
Kezal	Adamo Didur
Springer	Julius Bayer
Esmeralda	Alma Gluck
Muff	Ludwig Burgstaller

Conductor, Alfred Hertz.

The second performance of opera at The New Theatre was given yesterday afternoon, when Smetana's Bohemian opera, "The Bartered Bride," was presented. The auspices were more favorable than on the previous evening at the performance of "Werther," though there was a delay of half an hour in beginning. The performance, however, was carried through not only with splendid spirit and unflagging gayety, but with much attention to detail in the stage management, and the smoothness and finish that come from it.

The scenery and costumes were similar to those which were used last season in "The Bartered Bride" at the Metropolitan Opera House, which were picturesque and appropriate. And most of the characters were sung by the people who were in the earlier representations. The exceptions were Herbert Witherspoon, who took the part of Kruschina, before taken by Mr. Blass, and Miss Alma Gluck, who was a substitute for Miss L'Hullier as Esmeralda, the dancer.

Of the admirable singing of Mme. Destinn, in the part of Marie, there was room for the fullest and most unreserved admiration yesterday. The surroundings of the New Theatre only enhanced the beauty and poignancy of her tones, and made more evident the ease and fluency of her delivery. It is, as it was last season, a captivating impersonation. Mr. Jorn's fine and fresh voice was heard with pleasure in the music allotted to Hans, and Messrs. Reiss and Didur gave two delightfully humorous and thoroughly characteristic impersonations as Wenzel, the foolish stammering suitor, and Kezal, the marriage broker, respectively.

The chorus sang with fine volume, precision, and animation, and the Bohemian dancers in the first two acts and the elaborate show in the last gave huge delight to the audience.

Mr. Hertz conducted, and with great zeal and spirit, and kept the performance on a high level of musical efficiency. It may be that some of his tempi might have been stimulated a little to advantage, as, for instance, the "furiant" that is danced in the tavern in the second act by the trio of dancers, and in some other of the livelier portions of the score. But much credit is due him for the gusto and fine finish with which the piece was carried through.

The New Theatre once more showed itself favorable to the hearing of operatic music, originating simultaneously from stage and orchestra pit. There may be a greater fusion of the several qualities and kinds of tone possible when the conductors have studied the matter more fully; but there is very little that needs improvement. Music sounds full, rich, homogenous, and is given its whole value by the acoustics of the house.

This performance was especially interesting because it was not possible to appreciate by comparison just how great the gain is through having such a work as "The Bartered Bride" performed in a smaller house. Those who saw the performance last season at the Metropolitan, and this one, must have been struck by the greater vividness, the enhanced interest of everything that went on upon the stage. The words were intelligible to those familiar with the language, and instead of a general and more or less vague comprehension of what it was all about, it was possible for the attentive listener to follow the story and the action in detail. It was not a very large audience that gave itself this pleasure. The orchestra seats were well filled and so were the boxes; the galleries were sparsely occupied.

"Little Brother of the Rich" Staged.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 17.—"A Little Brother of the Rich" had its premiere at the Garrick Theatre here to-night. Joseph Medill Patterson, the author of the book, had in the dramatization Miss Harriet Ford as a collaborator.

SLEZAK AS OTELLO AT METROPOLITAN

Czech Tenor Makes Successful Debut Here in Verdi's Work, Revived After 7 Years.

MR. SCOTTI AGAIN AS IAGO

Miss Aida as Desdemona Does Some Very Good Singing—Miss Wickham Efficient in a Small Role.

OTELLO.

Otello	Leo Slezak
Iago	Antonio Scotti
Cassio	Angelo Bada
Roderigo	Pietro Audisio
Lodovico	Herbert Witherspoon
Montano	Vincenso Reschigilan
Un Araldo	Bernard Begue
Desdemona	Frances Alda
Emilia	Florence Wickham

Conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

"Otello," which many feel justified in considering as Verdi's masterwork, was revived at the Metropolitan Opera House last night, and in thanking the management for performing this favor it is possible to pass over the fact that "Otello" has been missing from the Metropolitan repertoire for seven years.

There seems to be no excuse for this beyond the apparent apathy of the public when the work has been brought out in the past. To those who find in the early Verdi operas their preferred musical food "Otello" is a stranger. The perfect Wagnerite will have none of it because it is not German in spirit, and of course to the devotees of the French school it is as esoteric as it is to the early Verdiites.

Last night's audience, in a measure, reflected this apathy. It was not a very large audience and it was evident that the subscribers considered it an off night. Scarcely one of the boxes was filled until near the close of the first act.

And yet "Otello" is probably the greatest tragic opera of the Italian school. The Verdi of 73 years put into it all the fire and passion of his youth, but with the softened tone of maturity. Here is a genius whose glory grew. It is almost impossible to conceive that "Falstaff" followed "Otello."

It is certain that some day "Otello" will come into its own. Perhaps it will be this season. It is to be hoped so, as it is not to the credit of such an establishment as the Metropolitan that the work has been out the repertoire for so long. It will be remembered that "Aida" was not popular when it was first produced here. Those who loved their "Rigoletto" and their "Trovatore" found the Egyptian opera too advanced to suit their tastes. However, that day has gone by and "Aida" is now one of the expected outputs of every opera season.

"Otello" is bound to receive its just due. For besides possessing characterization and wonderful orchestration it flows with melody. And this melodic outline at least is bound to reach the public ear in time.

"Otello" has another interest. It has one of the two Shakespearean librettos which preserve the spirit of the English poet. "Falstaff" is the other. Arrigo Boito wrote both of these books as Verdi wrote the music for both. The libretto of "Otello" is an Italian poem, closely following the Shakespearean text with the necessary condensations and two additions, Iago's "Credo" and the chorus of Cypriots, who come to bring flowers to Desdemona.

"Otello" has seen some notable productions in New York in past years. It was first brought out here a little more than a year after its first production at La Scala, in Milan, at the Academy of Music, on April 16, 1888. Italo Campanini, who had seen the original production, was the manager of the company, which included a tenor named Marconi, Eva Tetrazzini, sister of the reigning coloratura soprano at the Manhattan Opera House, and Cleofonte Campanini as conductor. Dire failure was the reward of this enterprise, in spite of the fact that Italo Campanini himself sang the tenor part during the second week.

In 1890 the opera was sung here by Mme. Albani and Tamagno. In 1892 Jean de Reszke and Mme. Albani appeared in it. The most notable performances of the work which New York has known are those of the season of 1894-5, when the creators of Iago and Otello, Maurel and Tamagno, sang the parts at the Metropolitan. "Otello" then slumbered peacefully until the season of 1901-2, when it was revived, with Mme. Eames and Mr. Alvarez, Mr. Scotti, and Mr. Bispham alternated in the role of Iago. The opera achieved three performances. In the next season the same cast was heard in it, and the last performance at the Metropolitan, ere last night, occurred on Dec. 27, 1902, when Camille Seygard was heard as Desdemona.

Last season the opera was given for the first time at the Manhattan Opera House, with Mme. Melba and Messrs. Zenatello and Sammarco. After Mme. Melba's departure in the middle of the season Mme. Labia was substituted in her stead.

In reviving "Otello" last night it was made evident that the management intended to give the work serious consideration in the repertoire. The stage settings were new, elaborate, and very handsome. To Mr. Toscanini was given the honor of directing the score, and it is probable that he succeeded in making it even more vivid and more beautiful than it has sounded in past years. To him must be given the major credit for this performance. The crashing thunderbolts at the beginning of the first act, and the love scene at the end, were handled with equal tact. The orchestra possessed a singing power which brought out every detail of the score.

In the cast interest was largely centred of course in the debut of Leo Slezak, the Czech tenor, who, after singing several years in German music drama at the Court Theatre in Vienna, studied Italian opera, and made his debut in this very role at Covent Garden last June. He is very tall and very powerful in appearance. His features last night were obscured under the color of the Moor. His tones, but on the whole he must be credficient power, and he did some very good singing last night. At times there is a certain "white" quality noticeable in his voice, but on the whole he must be credited with making a successful debut. He will probably prove a valuable member of the company. His impersonation of the jealous Moor was entirely convincing.

Of another newcomer, Miss Wickham, nothing can be said at this time. She was quite efficient in the small role of Emilia.

Mr. Scotti's Iago is well known here. It is one of the best figures in this baritone's gallery of parts.

Miss Aida was probably an unfortunate choice for the part of Desdemona. Mr. Slezak's excessive height towering above her rather suggested a ridiculous picture than a pathetic one. A singer with more refinement of method would have been more successful in the first act. In the last act, however, Miss Aida did some very good singing, both the "solce" air and the "Ave Maria" were excellently sung.

The entr'actes were entirely too long, one of them extending over half an hour. As a consequence the final curtain fell a little before 12 o'clock, and the wonderful last act was interrupted by the pattering of feet as the subscribers tiptoed out.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Die Fiedermaus," ("The Bat,") Johann Strauss's operetta, will be sung to-night at the Irving Place Theatre by the comic opera stock company of that house.

The title of Rida Johnson Young's new comedy has been changed from "The Lottery" to "The Lottery Man," which describes the principal character, played by Jameson Lee Finney.

The first performance of "The King of Cadonia," with William Norris in the leading role, will take place at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, on Saturday evening. Among the principal members of the company will be Melville Stewart, Albert Gran, Burrel Barbarette, Donald Buchanan, William Davis, R. R. Neil, Jr., St. Clair Bayfield, William Danforth, Vincent Dusenberry, Clara Palmer, Mabel Weeks, Mabella Baker, and Gertrude Darrel.

John Drew will be present at the professional matinee of "The Fortune Hunter" at the Gaiety Theatre this afternoon, and will preside over a reunion of the Drews and Barrymores in honor of John of the latter family.

Billie Burke and her company in "Love Watches" were snowbound between Billings, Mont., and Minneapolis Monday, and reached Minneapolis thirteen hours late. The audience had assembled at the theatre when the company arrived, and the play was given with the scenery belonging to the house.

Cohan & Harris announce that they will produce in the Spring a new musical comedy entitled "That Man Smith," by George Parsons and Charles J. Gebest. Mr. Gebest is general musical director for Cohan & Harris, and Mr. Parsons 's an actor.

Robert Davis and Henry Kirk have contracted through their representatives, Sanger & Jordan for the production of "The Gringo," a comedy in three acts, at the Belasco Theatre, Los Angeles, Cal. The Belasco is a stock theatre under the management of Fred Belasco, a brother of David, the New York manager.

AN ANACHRONISM

We had to look up Webster on this the other day.

Briefly, then, an anachronism is something that is out of time, out of joint—a misfit in the scheme of things.

But a local example is better than a borrowed definition, and we have two in mind.

One is a horse car crossing Broadway.

The other is a piece of unimproved or inadequately improved property in the most progressive city in the universe.

New York with all of its fine buildings is still in the infancy of its development—at its busiest points only partially improved.

And think of the inducements to improve! In justice to himself that owner who neglects to develop his property should be sure of one thing:

That his reasons are good and sufficient.

MISSOURI PACIFIC FINANCING

Comprehensive Plan Now Announced—Government and Telephone Deal—More Gold for South America.

Business on the Stock Exchange underwent further curtailment yesterday and the bulk of such dealings as were reported sprang from purely professional operations. Commission house business came to a practical standstill. Under the circumstances the firmness of securities as a whole was rather noteworthy. Efforts were made to stimulate speculation in several directions, notably in Reading and in the Copper shares, but the response was hardly proportionate to the effort involved. A restrictive influence was exercised upon sentiment in the financial district by the publication of what purported to be an outline of new legislation which the President will recommend to Congress at its approaching assembly, and there was also considerable discussion of the report that close on the heels of the announcement of the Western Union-American Telephone deal, Special Assistant Attorneys General of the Government had arrived in this city to investigate the transaction. No one at all conversant with the present situation in the telephone and telegraph fields will question the economic wisdom of the arrangements now perfected, and the ultimate benefits to be derived by the public itself from the uniting of the telephone and telegraph forces are obvious. So prompt an inquisition on the part of the Government, therefore, savors of the "corporation baiting" which became so obnoxious in the regime of Mr. Taft's predecessor and is hardly calculated to stimulate enthusiasm in securities. The main item of news of the day was comprised in the announcement of the long-awaited Missouri Pacific financial plan. A convertible bond issue of $175,000,000, carrying interest at 5 per cent., $100,000,000 of the proceeds of which will ultimately be used in refunding operations, is the gist of this plan so far as capital is involved, although the more important features from an investment standpoint are the attractive price at which the bond is put out; the many safeguards thrown around it—it will become eventually a bond secured by a first mortgage on the entire mileage of the Missouri Pacific, exclusive of the Iron Mountain—and the fact that, including prior liens it means a bonded indebtedness for the road of not more than $25,500 a mile, which is well under the figures of mortgage indebtedness per mile of other roads operating in Missouri Pacific territory.

While money conditions here continue relatively easy in spite of the heavy engagements of gold for shipment to South American points in banking circles the disposition is to look to the course of the London market for the next month or so as the controlling factor. A rejection of the budget by the House of Lords and a general election, which is almost certain to have a depressing influence upon English business enterprise and to call for temporary financing of Government requirements, are of direct importance to our own market. It is conceivable that the present movement of gold to South America and to Canadian points may be indefinitely continued if the political situation causes real anxiety in England.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Prices Erratic on Discouraging Reports from the Western Belt.

The cotton market showed continued nervousness yesterday, a feeling attributed very largely to uncertainty regarding the action of the Revision Committee with respect to spot differences after the close, but on the whole displayed a steadier undertone, and seemed to be attracting more support from the strong bull interests.

Better cables than expected, continued bad weather in the Western belt, and bullish spot market advices were the encouraging factors from a bullish standpoint which figured on an advance during the afternoon. But after selling 13 to 19 points net higher with May touching 15.28c, or within 4 points of the season's high record, realizing sales became heavier, and the market lost a good part of the gain with active months selling at about the lowest prices of the day in the late trading, and with the close steady at a net advance of 1@15 points.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Much Trading; Few Commissions.

All during the recent activity in stocks, with transactions exceeding 500,000 shares a day, and sometimes running up to the 1,000,000-share mark, complaints have been heard from commission houses that they were not doing a volume of business commensurate with the recorded activity on the floor of the Stock Exchange. A commission broker, who himself has turned trader, offered the explanation yesterday that the operations of floor traders nowadays account for a much larger share of the total business than in the past. He pointed to the fact that since Amalgamated became recently the chief point of interest in the market, not less than twenty-five men on the floor were trading in that stock. The traders' purchases of steel amounted, he said, to not less than 25,000 shares a day. This stock being all sold out before the day is over or bought in if it was first put out on the short side, the completed transactions thus contribute fully 50,000 shares a day to the business in Steel. Out of 4,000 shares of one stock traded in one day lately, this broker said, he had bought or sold 1,200 on trading operations, and the fact that there were others trading in the same stock left very little out of the 4,000 shares which could be regarded as real business. This was an illustration on a small scale, he said, of what was going on in all the active stocks. This sort of trading swells the daily total of stock sales, but does not add anything to the profits of the commission houses.

Most Traders Bearish.

Most of the traders these days are operating on the short side of the market on the theory that the advances which have taken place in prices make it a little safer first to put out lines of stock and then take them in than to adopt the opposite course. This was not the rule in the recent upward movement in United States Steel nor during the early stages of the still more recent advance in Amalgamated Copper, but in both these issues for the last two days the bear side has been favored by the traders. Whichever side the floor traders favor, however, they are not taking any permanent position in the market. This in-and-out trading, completed in one session, had little net effect on the market by 3 o'clock.

⁂

Status of Copper Negotiations.

The next stage in the copper merger plans, it is understood, is the fixing of the values of the various properties to be taken into the combination. This is to be done by careful examination of all the properties, and it is likely, it is said, that several weeks will be required to complete this work. Meanwhile the general scope of the merger plans has become pretty well defined, and the delay which will be caused by the valuations of the properties will in no way endanger the success of the plans. Official information in respect to the negotiations has been carefully guarded, but it is pretty generally regarded in the financial district as assured that the coming copper combine will include at least the Amalgamated, the Cole-Ryan, and the Guggenheim copper properties.

Slackening Interest in Copper.

The copper merger appears to have run its course as a market stimulant in its present inchoate stage, taking the index offered by the dwindling transactions in the stocks which led the movement. Amalgamated, for instance, which sold 167,000 shares on Monday and about half that number on Tuesday, dropped in yesterday's market to a little more than 50,000 shares. Utah, which on Monday sold over 18,000 and 11,000 odd on Tuesday, reported less than 5,000 yesterday. Meanwhile, a corresponding decrease in the volume of general trading has taken place, and where Monday was close to a million-share day, yesterday's transactions were only 545,942 shares.

⁂

Fear Opposition to Merger.

Some of those who look on the copper merger as economically sound and heartily approve it as the solution of the disturbing effects of the instability of the copper market, express fears about the effect of a merger of the big producers on anti-corporation sentiment. The plans now under discussion do not involve, for the present at least, any greater control of the copper output than that exercised on steel by the United States Steel Corporation. There is this difference, however, in that the Steel Corporation is an established fact, and besides having had a certificate of good character from Theodore Roosevelt himself, the corporation officials have been at pains to show the public that it is not one of the "wicked" trusts.

⁂

Air Brake Dividends Soon?

As a natural result of the liberal buying of equipment by the railroads, the New York Air Brake Company, which passed its 8 per cent. dividend in December, 1907, has been reaping benefits in rapidly increasing earnings which have come to the other makers of railroad necessities. The statement came from semi-official sources, yesterday, that the New York Air Brake Company is now doing about three times as much business as a year ago. Talk of the resumption of dividends at, perhaps 6 per cent., is current.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

The volume of trading in the coffee market was small, total sales amounting to 18,750 bags, but of this amount about 8,000 were switches from the near to the distant positions, leaving about 10,000 bags of actual sales. The market was steady, however, and prices after opening unchanged to 5 points higher, showed comparatively little change throughout the day. Cables were steady. Havre opened lower, but later regained the loss and closed unchanged to the previous day, while it was a holiday at Hamburg. The Rio market was unchanged, but Santos was 50 reis lower, and there were reports indicating some reduction in firm offers from Brazil. Sentiment in coffee appears to be bullish, and recently there has been an increased interest manifested for Wall Street and Western account. The spot market was inactive, with No. 7 Rio quoted at 8⅜c. Contract prices follow:

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

American Securities Close Steady on the London Exchange.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Money was easier on the market to-day, and discount rates were weak, causing some fear that gold imports will be checked thereby.

On the Stock Exchange the announcement in the House of Lords regarding the budget caused much comment, but did not affect the markets, which continued quietly irregular. British securities were sufficiently supported by investors to prevent a set-back, but Kaffirs yielded on further Continental liquidation. Copper shares drooped and Mexican railway stocks weakened under poor traffic returns.

American securities were quiet and steady during the early trading and generally above parity. Heaviness developed in the early afternoon, but later New York support strengthened the list, especially low-priced issues, and the market closed steady.

Bar silver steady, 23⅜d per ounce.

Money, 3½@4 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4⅜@4½ per cent.; for three months' bills, 4⅛@4¼ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

Dealings in the specialties were the feature of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange during a good part of the day. It was only in the first and last hours that the standard stocks were at all prominent. The buying of Reading was particularly vigorous toward the close of the session, and it sold as high as 164⅝, compared with a New York Stock Exchange top price of 164½. It led United States Steel common, which was second in respect to volume. While the total business in all issues showed a decided contraction, amounting to but 62,860 shares, the market was a broad one, embracing sixty different stocks.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this date the following resolution was adopted:

"RESOLVED That, pursuant to the consent and authority given and conferred by appropriate action duly taken by this Company's stockholders for increasing its capital stock, and for the purpose of providing the funds necessary to meet maturing obligations of the Company, and for other corporate purposes, an increase of this Company's capital stock equal to twenty-five per centum of the aggregate amount thereof which shall be issued and outstanding at the close of business on the fifteenth day of November, 1909, is hereby authorized and directed, and the same shall be issued and disposed of in manner following:

The privilege of subscribing for said stock at par $50 per share, on December 8th, and to and inclusive of December 18th, 1909, on which latter date the privilege will cease, is hereby given to stockholders as they shall stand registered on the books of the Company at the close of business on November 15th, 1909, to the extent of twenty-five per centum of their respective holdings.

The terms of subscription will be as follows:

Payments may be made in three instalments, or they may be made in full, viz.:

The first instalment, 30 per cent., or $15.00 per share, at the time of making the subscription between December 8th and December 18th, 1909, inclusive.

The second instalment, 30 per cent., or $15.00 per share, between February 23rd and March 1st, 1910, inclusive.

And the third instalment, 40 per cent., or $20.00 per share, between May 26th and June 1st, 1910, inclusive.

Payments in full at the time of making the subscription, between December 8th and December 18th, 1909, inclusive.

Warrants will be issued by the Treasurer to each stockholder, specifying the amount of stock to which he is entitled to subscribe under this privilege, and such privilege may be sold by any stockholder, the warrants to have thereon a form of assignment therefor. The warrants, accompanied by the payment of the first instalment, shall be returned by the stockholders to the Treasurer between December 8th and December 18th, 1909, inclusive, and if not so returned, and the first instalment so paid, the warrants shall be void and of no value.

The Treasurer will issue, on surrender of the warrants and payment of the first instalment receipts which will be assignable and which are to be returned to the Treasurer at the time of the payment of the second instalment, whereupon assignable receipts covering the first and second instalment payments will be issued, which are to be surrendered to the Treasurer on payment of the third instalment.

Upon payment of the last instalment there will be issued a check for interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on the first instalment from December 18th, 1909, and on the second instalment from March 1st, 1910, all up to June 1st, 1910, which will amount to $0.63 per share.

To subscribers making payment in full between December 8th and December 18th, 1909, inclusive, and to those making payment of the last instalment between May 26th and June 1st, 1910, inclusive, full paid negotiable stock receipts will be issued for whole shares, exchangeable, ten days after payment, for stock certificates carrying all dividends thereafter declared.

For fractional shares, full paid stock receipts will be issued upon payments in full or upon payment of the last instalment. They will not carry any dividend or interest, but will be convertible into stock when the fractions presented make whole shares, provided such conversion is made on or before October 31st, 1910. After April 30th, 1910, such fractional stock receipts issued upon payments in full, or after October 31st, 1910, fractional receipts issued upon payment of the last instalment will be redeemed in cash at the rate of $50 per share, without interest.

Fractional receipts will pass by delivery.

The right to receive stock shall not accrue to any stockholder under this privilege unless the terms of subscription are fully complied with and payments made at the dates hereinbefore stated, and no subscription or assignment of the privilege will be recognized unless made on the forms furnished by the Company."

Warrants will be mailed about November 23rd, to stockholders of record November 15th, 1909, who have filed permanent dividend orders in this office, to the addresses indicated on such orders, and where dividends are collected by bankers, brokers, or others on powers of attorney or other authority, the warrants will be sent to such authorized parties for delivery to the stockholders, unless other instructions are received relative thereto prior to November 23rd, 1909.

TREASURER'S OFFICE,
195 BROADWAY.

A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

NEW YORK, N. Y., November 17, 1909.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY:

Pursuant to a resolution of the Board of Directors, adopted November 10, 1909, and subject to the approval of the Stockholders, for the purpose of securing which approval a special meeting has been called to convene January 18, 1910, the privilege will be given to stockholders of this Company to subscribe upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated, on or before January 21, 1910, for an amount of Convertible Five Per Cent. First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bonds, equal in face amount to thirty-six per cent. (36%) of the par value of their respective holdings of the stock of this Company, as registered on its books, at three o'clock P. M., on December 8, 1909.

Warrants signed by the Treasurer or an Assistant Treasurer, will be issued to stockholders as soon as possible after the closing of the books on December 8, 1909, specifying the amount of bonds for which each stockholder is entitled to subscribe. Such subscription warrants will be issued only for amounts of $500, or in multiples thereof. For each fraction of a $500 bond for which a stockholder is entitled to subscribe, a fractional warrant will be issued, which, if presented on or before January 14, 1910, with other fractional warrants aggregating $500, will be exchangeable for a subscription warrant for a $500 bond; and if the surrendered fractional warrants include a fraction in excess of $500, a new fractional warrant will be issued for such fraction.

On the back of these warrants will be two forms: The first is to be filled out and signed by the stockholders or by their assigns, in case they desire to subscribe. The second form, which is an assignment, is to be filled out and signed by the stockholders only in case they desire to dispose of their subscription privilege.

Stockholders who may wish to subscribe for a portion of the bonds covered by a warrant and dispose of the balance of the subscription privilege, or who may wish to dispose of a portion of the subscription privilege covered by the warrant to one person and the balance to another, should return their warrants to this office on or before January 14, 1910, to be split up into warrants for the desired amounts. Warrants so returned should be accompanied by a statement in writing specifying the number of warrants desired in exchange and the amount of bonds to be covered by each.

The price of subscription, payable in New York funds, is:
$475 per $500 bond, with accrued interest adjusted.
Such price will be payable at the office of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, in instalments as follows:

	Per $1,000 bond.	Per $500 bond.
At the time of making subscription, on or before January 21, 1910	$350	$175
On or before March 4, 1910	$300	$150
On or before April 15, 1910	$300	$150

Subscriptions may be paid for in full at the time of making subscription, on or before January 21, 1910, in which case the amount payable will be $944.44 per $1,000 bond or $472.22 per $500 bond; or, after the payment of the first instalment on or before January 21, 1910, as above provided, the remainder of the subscription may be paid in full on or before March 4, 1910, by paying $598.20 per $1,000 bond, or $299.10 per $500 bond.

Bonds will be issued with coupons maturing September 1, 1910, attached, and the foregoing payments include an adjustment of accrued interest to March 1, 1910.

The warrants must be surrendered to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York by the stockholders, or by the persons to whom assigned, on or before January 21, 1910, accompanied by the payment to said trust company, as depositary, of the first instalment; and all warrants not so surrendered with such payment on or before said date shall be void and of no value.

Failure to pay the second or third instalment when and as payable will operate as a forfeiture of all rights in respect of the subscription and the instalments previously paid.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York will, on surrender of the warrants and payment of the first instalment, issue receipts which will be transferable by delivery and which must be presented to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York upon the payment of the second and third instalments in order that such payment may be noted thereon.

Fractions desired by stockholders to complete full bonds, or fractions which stockholders desire to dispose of, must be bought or sold in the market, as the Company will not buy or sell fractions.

Full-paid receipts for bonds will be exchangeable for the engraved bonds as soon as issued.

No subscription or assignment of this privilege will be recognized unless made on the forms of the Company.

No stockholder of the Company shall be entitled to any of the above-mentioned bonds unless the terms of subscription herein specified are fully complied with.

The subscription and respective instalment payments must be made to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, at the dates and in accordance with the provisions stated above. Checks or drafts in payment of subscriptions must be drawn in favor of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, in New York funds, and for the exact amounts covering the respective instalments.

By order of the Board of Directors,
A. H. CALEF, Treasurer.

P. S.—A statement giving details of the First and Refunding Mortgage Fifty-Year Gold Bonds and of the security therefor will be furnished upon application at the office of the Railway Company.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

George J. Gould Pays $160,000 for 8th Avenue Corner—Sales in the Seminary Block—Spirited Bidding and Good Prices in Auction Room.

Over $600,000 worth of realty was sold under the hammer yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom.

Interest centred in the sale of the Robert Barkley estate properties, three parcels of which were purchased by David H. Taylor, as attorney for George J. Gould. The property, which consists of three four-story buildings on a plot 75 by 80, stands on the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, brought $160,000.

These buildings adjoin the Grand Opera House at the northwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, held by the Gould estate, under the corporate name of the Opera House Realty Company.

The Goulds also own a number of the small structures adjoining on both Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Streets. With to-day's purchase at auction they have squared out their holdings, and, with the exception of a small parcel 21 feet front at 310 West Twenty-fourth Street, now control a plot having frontages of 200 feet on Eighth Avenue, 275 feet on Twenty-third Street, and 245 feet on Twenty-fourth Street.

The acquisition of the Twenty-fourth Street corner by the Goulds is taken to mean that they have in view the ultimate reimprovement of the entire property.

Auction Prices Exceed Appraisal.

In the sale of the Taylor property at auction yesterday by Herbert A. Sherman, auctioneer; Charles A. Runk, Esq., referee, and Messrs. Lord, Day & Lord, plaintiff's attorneys the property brought $5,000 more than the highest appraisal made for the estate. All the property was sold to outside buyers, the prices being so satisfactory that none of the parties in interest bought.

Among the buyers were two lawyers, J. Archibald Murry and Thomas D. Day, Jr., who bought 11 Crosby Street at $31,700. Gilbert Kuh paid $18,450 for 345 West Thirtieth Street, Mr. Kuh being the owner of 328, in the same block. After spirited bidding F. M. Hilton secured the corner of Walker and Lafayette Streets on a bid of $55,000. The other properties, 163 Elizabeth Street and 364 West Twenty-third Street, went to Dominick Abbatte and Jacob Appel for $25,000 and $27,700, respectively.

The Munro Property Brings $61,000.

Another offering at the salesroom that brought forth spirited bidding was the Norma L. Munro property, consisting of fourteen acres on the Sound at Great Neck, L. I., with residence and outbuildings. It was finally sold by Auctioneer Bryan L. Kennelly to Charles E. Titus of the Stock Exchange firm of Daniel Odell & Co. for $61,000. Mr. Titus will occupy this property as a Summer residence, and will be surrounded by the residences of Clarence Bush, Cord Meyer, Alphonse H. Alker, and other well-known New Yorkers.

Negotiations are under way that will probably result in two buyers securing for residential purposes the Union Theological Seminary's block front on the west side of Park Avenue, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Streets. It was learned to-day that the sale has practically been completed of the plot, 100 by 125, at the southwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventieth Street, to George Blumenthal of the banking house of Lazard Freres. Commodore Arthur Curtiss James of the New York Yacht Club has also agreed to add another Park Avenue lot to the site, 75 by 125, on the Sixty-ninth Street corner of the block, which he purchased three or four weeks ago.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co., who have charge of the sale of the seminary's property, declined to-day to discuss the various transactions involving it. There now remains to be sold a frontage of fifty feet on Sixty-ninth Street, now occupied by three small dwellings, together with a similar frontage on the south side of Seventieth Street. It is not improbable that these two plots will each be sold to a single purchaser, with the result that the entire seminary site of fourteen lots will be given over to only four new dwellings.

$275,000 for 112th Street Apartment.

Thomas J. O'Reilly has sold for the Advance Building Company to a client for investment, the Phaeton, at 537 to 545 West 112th Street, a six-story elevator apartment house on plot 100 by 100.11, on the north side of 112th Street, 100 feet east of Broadway. The asking price was $275,000. The house has just been completed, and is of the most modern type of apartment house, with but four apartments on a floor. The same broker sold this plot to the Advance Building Company for improvement last January.

Many West Side Sales.

Louis Kempner has sold for Eva J. Ward 21 West Ninety-seventh Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 18.6 by 100.11, to a client for occupancy.

William Goldstone is reported to have sold 128 and 130 West Twenty-fifth Street, two three-story buildings on plot 50 by 81.8 between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.

The Brown Realty Company has bought 194 Tenth Avenue, a five-story building with stores on lot 26.2 by 100, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Streets.

B. Wagner has sold for the Callahan estate 119 Bowery, a four-story building on lot 25 by 100, which has been held by the estate for over twenty years.

Hibbard & Lesinsky have bought for a client 31 Coenties Slip, a four-story building on lot 27.6 by 45.6, adjoining the southwest corner of South Street. Title to the property stands in the name of Clara A. Chandler.

$1,000,000 for New Apartments.

The Brookfield Construction Company filed papers yesterday for a new twelve-story and basement apartment house to be built at the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and 103d Street. It will contain forty-nine suites of rooms, and be known as the Brookfield Apartments. It will cost $800,000. Lawlor & Haase are the architects.

A twelve-story apartment house to contain twenty-five suites is to be built from designs by Schwartz & Gross at a cost of $300,000 for Weschler & Noel, incorporated, on the north side of Seventy-ninth Street, 205 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue.

Plans for a $60,000 Dwelling.

Plans have been filed for a new six-story city residence for Charles C. Auchincloss at 10 East Seventy-first Street, on the Lenox Library block. It will be of brick, finished with decorated French limestone of Colonial pattern, from designs by R. H. Robertson & Son, having a second-story balcony and a mansard with balustrade. It is to have a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 71½ feet, and will cost $60,000.

Harlem Property in a Trade.

Clarence E. Hutchinson has sold the five-story flat, with stores 2,093 Madison Avenue, on a lot 25 by 96. As part payment the buyer gives 1,311 and 1,315 St. John's Place, Brooklyn; two four-story apartment houses on a lot 52.8 by 120. The same broker sold the Brooklyn houses to the present owner last December.

Bronx Apartment Planned.

Patrick J. Reville, superintendent of the Bronx Bureau of Buildings, will enter the real estate business upon the expiration of his term of office next January. With that end in view he has purchased, together with Edward C. Siesel, the vacant plot, 63 by 125 and irregular, at the northwest corner of 163d Street and Intervale Avenue, which it is proposed to improve with a six-story elevator apartment house.

Buyers for Bronx Property.

O. G. Manss has sold for E. Malino the five-story apartment house at the southeast corner of 160th Street and Forest Avenue, on lot 33 by 117. The same broker has sold for a client three lots, 75 by 100, on Steuben Avenue, near 210th Street, and four lots on Bailey Avenue, near Heath Avenue.

A. Shatzkin & Sons have bought the Wood Just Realty Company, six lots, on 222d Street, corner Fourth Avenue, 155 feet, fronting on 222d Street, by 114 feet in depth.

A $30,000 Bronx Loan.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company loaned yesterday on five first mortgages of $6,000 each on the two-story brick and frame dwellings located on the east side of Perry Avenue, 119 feet south of 205th Street. Each lot is 20 by 100, and each mortgage is for three years at 5 per cent.

Two Brooklyn Sales.

Benjamin J. Sforza has sold for Harry McKenna to Philip and James Russo 1,249 Sixty-fifth Street, a two-family frame dwelling, on plot 40 by 100; also, for Nicola Gianturco to Daniel J. Reilly of Manhattan the three-story double brick flat in course of construction at 6,705 Fourteenth Avenue, on plot 22 by 95.

14th Street Loft Building.

Plans have been filed for a new four-story loft and store building to be built by Sarah J. W. Bent to replace the old store building at the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street. It will be fireproof, from designs by Moore & Landsiedel, with a frontage of 56.7½ feet and a depth of 75 feet. The cost will be $50,000.

Woolworth & Co. on Washington Heights.

An important addition to the business colony around the Subway station at 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue was secured yesterday through the leasing of the stores at 1,415 and 1,417 St. Nicholas Avenue by Gustavus L. Lawrence to F. W. Woolworth & Co.

The lease calls for 5,500 square feet of space in the new building at the southwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 181st Street. The rental, a graded one, aggregating about $65,000 for the term, which is ten years and four months. The store, taken by Woolworth & Co., adjoins the corner leased recently by Riker's drug stores. The lease completes the renting by Mr. Lawrence of the stores on the avenue.

Hotel Property Leased.

John Tyler, of the Hotel Gazette, has leased the new Hotel Clinton in East Orange, N. J., for Mrs. Phebe J. Tylor to Soren Lund; also, the Summerland Inn, Summerland, S. C., for J. W. Mitchell to H. E. Hayes, and the Hotel Iroquois, Miami, Fla., for Daniels & Finlay to C. N. Bellak.

J., for a term of years.

The McVickar, Gaillard Realty Company reports that it has leased for the estate of George Bell the property at 110 West Eighteenth Street, size 25 by 92, to Edward Jansen, an adjacent owner, for a long term of years. The present old building will be replaced by a new one.

Beechhurst

All Advantages of City, Country and Shore—Only 20 Minutes from Manhattan Next Year

AT beautiful Beechhurst, overlooking the head of Long Island Sound in the Borough of Queens, you will find a combination of everything you long for in a home place.

BEECHHURST has all the conveniences—water, sewerage, gas, electricity, curbed and graded streets, cement sidewalks, fire and police protection, schools, churches, shops.

BEECHHURST has wonderfully inspiring and beautiful scenery. It is high and dry and healthful. Homes at Beechhurst have abundant fresh air and sunlight. Its avenues are tree shaded. Its outlook over the waters of Long Island Sound and the East River is superb. It has a fine exclusive bathing beach. The social life of the community is delightful. The Beechhurst Yacht Club house is the centre of interest for a large number of yachtsmen and automobilists. This is a first class residence section, but as yet prices have not gone up to the high figures asked for property of this grade elsewhere in the city.

BEECHHURST is right in New York City—not any further from the heart of things than Washington Heights or Prospect Park. It is at the Whitestone Landing Station of the Long Island Railroad. It has 50 trains a day to Manhattan—now a half hour distant, but next year, with the opening of the Pennsylvania R. R. tunnel, only 20 minutes away.

PRICES are from $600 the lot upward. Title is insured by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. Terms are made to suit the requirements of the purchaser. This property is selling rapidly and is steadily being developed.

WE want you to see Beechhurst. If you are looking for a home site or a safe and profitable investment you ought to see Beechhurst as soon as possible. Cut out and mail the coupon herewith. That will entitle you to free transportation. A representative of the company will go with you if you like. Take train to Whitestone Landing from East 34th Street ferry, Long Island R. R., or call or write to

OPPOSE IVINS PLAN FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Counsel for Present System Object to Power of Removal for the Mayor.

TEACHERS ALSO PROTEST

They Tell Legislative Committee They Want Control of Their Pay Left with the Legislature.

The legislative committee appointed last session to pass on the Ivins charter for the city devoted its first session yesterday to hearing those who wished to comment upon the provisions of the new charter affecting the Board of Education. Those who spoke yesterday were nearly all against the proposal of the Charter Commission to abolish the Board of Education as an independent body and recreate it as a city department, with its members subject to appointment and removal by the Mayor at will. Protest also developed against the commission's plan of limiting the Board of Education to five members from Manhattan, four from Brooklyn, and two from each of the other boroughs. Representatives of the teachers' organizations also objected to having the control of salary schedules taken away from the Legislature.

The hearing was held in the Council Chamber at the City Hall in the morning, nearly all the members of the committee being present. Julius M. Mayer is counsel for the committee, and Ray B. Smith, Clerk of the Assembly, against whose reelection a fight is now being made by Assemblyman Bennet, appeared as assistant counsel. Dr. Franklin W. Hooper, Director of the Brooklyn Institute, who represented ex-Senator George Brush, President of the Brooklyn League, was the first speaker.

Dr. Hooper said the organization he represented was opposed to the requirements of the new charter respecting education in every respect.

Opposes Educational Provisions.

"There is nothing new in it in this particular that is not bad, and nothing is retained from the existing charter that is good," he declared. Brooklyn, thought Dr. Hooper, had a better educational system under its old organization as a separate city, and if the provisions of the Ivins charter became effective it would be in still worse plight. He declared that the system of appointment and removal of Commissioners, which the new charter contemplated, would bring the Department of Education into politics and seriously interfere with many rights guaranteed to teachers under the existing system.

Robert Lee Harrison, a member of the Board of Education, spoke next, protesting against the plan of reducing the membership of the board and taking away its separate corporate existence. He said: "The members of the board would have to give their whole time to their duties, and that would introduce what has always been kept out of the board—namely, politics. It is, moreover, manifestly impossible for five men to represent the Borough of Manhattan; they would have just about time enough to look at the outside of the buildings. And aside from politics, to give the Mayor the power of removing the Commissioners at will would subject the board to all the fads and fancies of any particular occupant of the Mayor's chair, and create an autocratic power over educational affairs that would be extremely dangerous."

Mrs. Miriam Sutro Price, Secretary of the Public Education Association, agreed with Mr. Harrison as to the danger of giving the Mayor the power of removing Commissioners of Education at will instead of having them appointed for fixed terms. Mrs. Price urged that the control of salaries should be left with the Board of Education, and the unseemly controversy over the equal salary question be ended. Dr. Jane E. Robbins on behalf of the same organization voiced further objections along the same lines.

Clement A. Driscoll, as counsel for several local school boards, (which are retained in the Ivins charter,) made a bitter attack on the Board of Education as at present organized, and advocated making the department a city department like the other administrative divisions of the City Government. He was the first speaker to say a good word for the plan of the Charter Commission.

H. V. M. Dennis was one of several representatives of teachers' organizations who spoke in opposition to the proposal to take away from the Legislature the power of fixing the salary schedules. He declared that with the salaries in the control of the Board of Estimate the teaching force of the city would become subject to the power of political bosses.

Graft Charge Rouses Grady.

"We would find," said Mr. Dennis, "that the teachers who gave up the largest salary to the organization would get the best treatment."

This aroused Senator Grady to a defense of the organization against the charge of drawing its campaign funds from office holders.

"Have you heard of any public employe giving up to a political boss?" he inquired.

"I have heard rumors," said Mr. Dennis, "I do not charge it."

"I also have heard rumors," said Senator Grady, "but never in all my experience have I known such a thing to happen. I do not know of one case of a public official giving up part of his salary in the way you mention as a rake off."

Isador M. Levy as counsel for several local school boards, joined Mr. Driscoll in protesting against the present organization of the Board of Education.

Miss Grace Strachan, who headed the agitation last year for the equal pay propaganda, also spoke before the close of the day's sessions. She said that the provision in the Ivins charter forbidding any civil employe of the city to appear before any legislative committee or joining or contributing to any political organization was "gag rule."

"You don't take that seriously, do you?" asked a member of the committee.

"Yes, I do," said Miss Strachan.

"Well, nobody else does," came back from the committee's platform.

Miss Strachan's speech consisted in a presentation of the arguments, widely published last year advocating equal pay for men and women teachers employed in the same grades.

The legislative committee will meet again to-day, devoting the session to the Police and Fire Departments.

Brooklyn School Inquiry Begun.

Commissioner of Accounts Mitchel began yesterday the investigation which Mayor McClellan ordered him to make into the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School for Boys. He will first go over the testimony taken at the investigations of the Board of Managers and the State Board of Charities. The taking of evidence will probably be begun next week. One of the first witnesses who will be called will be the removed Superintendent.

FOR NEGRO EXPOSITION.

Booker Washington Asks Taft's Aid in Plan for Jubilee of Emancipation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Booker T. Washington headed a committee which called at the White House to-day to solicit the support of President Taft for a movement which has been started by leading colored people throughout the country looking toward the holding of an exposition in 1913 to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the freedom of the negro race in America. Emmet J. Scott, a member of the Liberian Commission, and Ernest Lyon, Minister to Liberia, accompanied Dr. Washington. The President expressed his deep interest in the venture.

The idea is to hold an exposition that will show the negro's progress in the course of the fifty years of his freedom as compared with the progress that he made during slavery days. Dr. Washington said it was the plan to enlist the help and sympathy, not only of the colored people, but of the leading white people throughout the country. Practically without exception, Southern papers and leading Southern white men among whom the movement has been discussed have given it their cordial indorsement, he said.

NEED NOT SERVE NEGROES.

Iowa Supreme Court So Decides in Case of Private Business Concern.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 17.—The Iowa Supreme Court to-day handed down a decision holding that a private business concern under the Iowa statute can legally refuse to serve a negro.

Susie Brown, a negress, sued the J. H. Bell Coffee Company for $1,000 damages because the attendants refused to serve her a cup of coffe at a pure food show in Des Moines a year ago. In the lower court she won her case, but the Supreme Court to-day reversed the decision, holding that the Bell company, being a private concern, had the right to refuse to serve any one it wished, even though the person had paid an admission fee at the door.

Chief Justice Evans and Justice Weaver filed vigorous dissenting opinions.

FAKE POISONERS, BOYS SAY.

Just Pretended They Killed Horses to Extort Money from Owners.

Fourteen-year-old Emanuel Blumberg of 286 West 142d Street and William H. Snell, two years older, of 237 West 142d Street, were held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Barlow in the Jefferson Market Court.

Snell, according to the police, confessed that he and Blumberg had read of the poisoning of many horses belonging to the Sheffield Farms Dairy Company, and so had written letters demanding $800 to the manager of the company on pain of his losing more horses. The boys knew nothing about the poisoning, but thought they saw an easy way to make money, say the police.

BOY FINDS MOTHER A SUICIDE.

Returns from Play and Discovers That She Has Taken Gas.

Eight-year-old Joseph Morris and his mother spent a good deal of time yesterday afternoon discussing how they were to maintain the little flat at 72 East 110th Street, since Joseph's father, William Morris had gone away Tuesday night, saying he would live with his sister in Williamsburg. Mrs. Morris cried a little and Joseph consoled her with tales of how much money he would make as soon as he grew a little older.

Then he went out to play and forgot all about his troubles. It was 6:30 o'clock when he ran up the four flights of stairs and flung himself against the door, expecting it to open as it always did at supper time. But last night the door was locked. Joseph peeped through the keyhole. He could see nothing, but he got a whiff of gas.

The boy ran downstairs to the janitor, Tony Wasseck, and asked for the pass key. Wasseck feared that the youngster could not turn the key in the lock, so he went upstairs with him and opened the door. A stifling gust of gas greeted them and Joseph ran through the flat into his mother's bedroom, while Wasseck hastened to open windows. Presently he heard the boy scream. Wasseck ran in and found Mrs. Morris dead on the bed.

Neighbors tried to console little Joseph and to find out where his father was. The youngster could tell little, however. He said his father and mother had not quarreled, but his father had gone to live with his sister. The youngster thought his aunt lived at 128 Scholes Street, Williamsburg, but no one there knew of his aunt or his father.

FIXING THE COTTON GRADES.

Revision Committee Determines the Rates of Difference for Deliveries.

Unusual interest attached to the meeting of the Revision Committee of the Cotton Exchange, yesterday, to fix the rates of difference between the various grades of cotton which will apply to deliveries on contract from now until September, 1910, when the next meeting of the committee will be held.

The unusually small amount of low grade cotton in the stocks here and the belief that a like scarcity of the same qualities exists in the South made the trade await with anxiety the publication of the rates. "Middling" cotton is the basis on which trading is done and penalties are exacted or discounts allowed at the rates fixed by the committee according as the cotton delivered is below or above the "middling" quality.

At yesterday's meeting slight changes were made in the penalties attaching to low grade deliveries. All of the high grades from "fair" to "strict middling" were left unchanged. The discounts on the lower grades were generally reduced. That on "middling stained" from $1 to 75c., "low middling tinged" from $1.75 to $1.50 "strict low middling tinged" from 75c. to 60c., "good ordinary" from $2. to $1.75, "strictly good ordinary" from $1.20 to $1.05 and "low middling" from 75c. to 60c. Differences were also fixed on the quarter grades, which, after being abolished (2 years ago,) go back into the contracts on March 1.

Shareholders Vote to Issue $20,000,000 for Improvements to System.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17.—Shareholders of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis (Big Four) Railroad to-day voted a bond issue of $20,000,000 for physical improvements to the Big Four system.

Melville E. Ingalls, Chairman of the Board of Directors, voted proxies for seven-eighths of the stock of the company. The shareholders through proxies elected four Directors to serve three years. They are William K. Vanderbilt, Chauncey M. Depew, J. Pierpont Morgan, and M. E. Ingalls.

James Stillman was elected a Director to serve one year to fill the unexpired term of James Barnett. George Baker and William K. Vanderbilt were also elected for terms of one year each.

MOTHER KIDNAPS CHILD AT THEATRE

TAKEN TO POLICE STATION

After a Separation the Mother Agrees to Leave the Little Girl with Her Grandmother.

A well-dressed woman, bare-headed and dragging a little girl, also bare-headed, from a vaudeville theatre and thrusting the child against its protestations into a waiting taxicab created great excitement yesterday afternoon in Broadway in the neighborhood of Lincoln Square. The woman, it was learned later, was Mrs. Rosetta Seldner of 238 West Fifty-sixth Street, and the little girl was her daughter, Eleanor Seldner.

Some time ago Mrs. Seldner separated from her husband, Harry Seldner, a chauffeur, and he took their only child, a girl of 4 years, to live with him at the home of his mother, Mrs. Susan Tallman, at 101 West Eighty-third Street. Recently Mrs. Seldner has been making every effort to regain possession of the child, although the case will come up for settlement in the courts in a short time.

She telephoned yesterday to her mother-in-law that she had something of importance to tell her and asked that she meet her with the little girl at the Colonial Theatre, adding that she had bought tickets.

Taking the little girl with her, Mrs. Tallman went to the theatre and met Mrs. Seldner, who was with another young woman giving her name as Maud Crawford. The party went into the theatre to see the performance.

Just before the intermission, when the lights in the theatre were turned down, Mrs. Seldner whispered to her mother-in-law that the child wanted a drink, and she volunteered to take her to the rear of the theatre. Leaving her hat and the little girl's hat also in the seats, the mother walked down the aisle and out of the theatre into the street. A taxicab was standing near the sidewalk, and half carrying, half dragging the little girl, the mother hurried toward it.

"Drive away quickly!" she shouted to the chauffeur. "It doesn't matter where you go, only go quickly."

The woman quickly thrust the child into the taxicab, although the little one held back and began to cry, got in after it and jerked down the shades. The chauffeur immediately swung around and started up Broadway. There were many people standing about the entrance to the theatre at the time, and the incident attracted wide attention. Several started toward the woman to interfere, but she was in the taxicab and off before they reached her.

Some one in the crowd shouted "Kidnapper!" and others took up the cry.

Soon several hundred persons had gathered in the street, and many started in pursuit of the taxicab, which was a block away and fast gaining ground. In the crowd were two detectives from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. At that moment another automobile was leisurely going up Broadway, and the detectives, hailing the driver, jumped into it.

There was a spirited race up Broadway to Sixty-first Street, where the detectives overhauled the taxicab. They ordered the chauffeur to stop, and when he did so the woman got out with the girl in her arms. The detectives made her get back into the auto and she was driven to the theatre.

Mrs. Seldner protested when she reached there that the child was her daughter, and that she had a perfect right to it. By that time Mrs. Tallman had come out of the theatre to look for the little girl. The crowd by that time blocked Broadway completely. Finally the detectives put the women and the child into the taxicab and all proceeded to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. No charges were made against either woman, but Lieut. Quinn insisted on an explanation.

Mrs. Tallman told the Lieutenant that the Seldners had separated and that the daughter, Eleanor, had been left with her by the father. She said it had been arranged that the mother was to see her child as often as she wished, but that she was not to take it away until the case had been settled in court. She said she did not understand why Mrs. Seldner should try to take her daughter away, as she had expressed herself as being perfectly satisfied with the arrangements made by her husband.

Mrs. Seldner tearfully said she did not mean any harm in trying to get possession of her daughter. She admitted it was true that she had leave to visit at the home of her mother-in-law at any time, but she said she had a natural yearning for her daughter and wanted to take her to live with her.

Lieut. Quinn finally told the women to go to the home of the mother-in-law with the child and wait there until the father returned and leave the matter with him for settlement. The women finally consented to this, and, the mother carrying the child, they went up to the Eighty-third Street apartment to await the father's return.

MRS. READ VIOLENT IN JAIL.

Defense in Phipps Extortion Case Holds She Was Insane.

DENVER, Nov. 17.—The defense to-day continued its efforts to prove that Mrs. Allen F. Read, on trial for the attempted extortion of $100,000 from Mrs. Genevieve Chandler Phipps, was insane at the time of the attempt.

Dr. Anna Ovitt, who accompanied Mrs. Aby Marshall to the jail to visit Mrs. Read shortly after the latter's arrest, testified that Mrs. Read was violent and attempted to strike Mrs. Marshall. Miss Jessie Campbell, Mrs. Read's sister, testified to Mrs. Read's erratic actions while in the East attending her father's funeral.

COURT PAPERS GONE.

Britton-Schroeder Affidavits Accusing Former Counsel Can't Be Found.

Before Justice Stapleton in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, District Attorney John F. Clarke caused a stir by asserting that the affidavits which, as he alleged, had been "surreptitiously" put in by the defense with the papers in the Britton-Schroeder case, had mysteriously disappeared from the County Clerk's office, where they had been filed. The papers were in the office on Tuesday, Mr. Clarke said, but when he went there yesterday to see them he was surprised to find that they were missing.

The disappearance of the affidavits, which the District Attorney had characterized as a "dirty attack" on Assistant District Attorney Elder and ex-Senator Thomas C. Whitlock, former attorney for Britton and Schroeder, may be investigated by the Brooklyn Bar Association.

Mr. Clarke told of the vanishing of the papers at a hearing on a motion by Lawyer Max Brown, counsel for Britton and Schroeder, the convicted bankers, to have his clients and Mr. Whitlock and Mr. Elder examined as to the allegations made in the affidavits. In these documents Britton and Schroeder accused Mr. Whitlock and Mr. Elder of having entered into a conspiracy to have the indictments against the two bankers quashed on the condition that the defendants "made good" the stealings from the Eagle Savings and Loan Company.

Mr. Elder and Mr. Whitlock submitted affidavits emphatically denying that there had ever been any such agreement between them.

When Mr. Clarke reported yesterday that the Britton-Schroeder affidavits had disappeared from the County Clerk's office Lawyer Brown asked if he was insinuating that he took the papers.

"I defy you to make such a charge," said Brown.

"There is no such charge," replied Mr. Clarke, "but I will say now that I am charging this gentleman with improper conduct, and the matter will come before another tribunal."

Mr. Brown was about to make answer when Justice Stapleton stopped him, saying that he would consider the motion to have the four men concerned examined as to the matters contained in the affidavits, if Brown would produce anything corroborative of what his client had sworn to. Brown said he would have another affidavit prepared.

"Lawyer Hill, who appeared before the court on Monday and asked for a new trial for Schroeder and Britton, did not know that these affidavits of Schroeder and Britton had been filed," said District Attorney Clarke. "When he discovered it, he abandoned the case. He wants to be released from being mixed up in any of this dirty work.

"If the court is in any doubt," he continued, "I welcome the examination and will do anything suggested. But I say to reopen the case on the affidavits of two self-confessed thieves, two men who committed perjury to the banking officials, would be an injustice. The charges of these two men in their affidavits are improbable. Elder and Whitlock have denied the allegations, and I believe them. I don't want, however, to be put in the attitude of opposing this motion. It is for the court to decide, but I don't want these men to run away with the case."

Old Home Ready for Criminal Courts.

After more than two weeks of confusion the scattered criminal courts will return next Monday to the building they were obliged to vacate on Nov. 4. Official notice to that effect was sent to all jurors yesterday by Chief Clerk Carroll of General Sessions. Shoring in the interior of the building is nearing completion. Such repairs as are needed on the exterior will not disturb business inside.

Gulls Come Inland; Winter's Begun.

New York's Winter colony of herring gulls has returned to its feeding grounds in the river and bay. To the water front weather prophets this means that Indian Summer is over and that Winter has as good as begun, the birds coming into the harbor to escape rough weather outside. Some seek the lake in Central Park. On the Jerome Park reservoir yesterday there was a flock of several hundred.

More Gold for South America.

Further engagements of gold yesterday brought the amount to be shipped to South America next week up to about $2,500,000. The National Bank of Commerce made arrangements to ship $500,000, half to Brazil and half to Argentina; Kidder, Peabody & Co. will send $500,000 to Argentina, and Goldman, Sachs & Co. $500,000 to the same destination.
